Guidance/Alerts/Other Updates

Alert on Impact of Sanctions and Export Controls on Russia's Military-Industrial Complex

On 14 October 2022, the US Department of the Treasury's OFAC, the Department of Commerce's Bureau of Industry and Security ("BIS"), and the Department of State issued an alert to inform the public of the impact of current US sanctions and export control restrictions targeting Russia's defense capabilities and to warn of the sanctions risks related to providing goods, services, or other support for Russia's military-industrial complex. The alert reminds the public that OFAC is prepared to use its broad sanctions designation authorities against non-US persons that provide ammunition or other support to the Russian military-industrial complex, private military companies, paramilitary groups, or others allegedly participating or supporting Russia's war on Ukraine. The alert also states that OFAC and the Department of State have and will continue to use their sanctions designation authorities against persons inside and outside Russia that engage in sanctions evasion or circumvention.

Guidance on Heightened Sanctions Risk for Support of Russia as a result of referenda

On 23 September 2022, G7 Leaders issued a statement condemning Russia's sham referenda, purported annexation, and continued occupation of the Kherson, Zaporizhzhya, Donetsk and Luhansk region of Ukraine and committing to impose further economic costs on Russia for the violation of Ukraine's territorial sovereignty. On 30 September 2022, OFAC issued FAQ 1091, which emphasizes OFAC's willingness and ability to aggressively use its existing sanctions authorities to target individuals and entities whose activities may constitute material assistance, sponsorship, or provision of financial, material, or technological support for, or goods or services (together "material support") to or in support of persons sanctioned pursuant to EOs 13660, 14024, and 14065, or sanctionable activity related to Russia's occupation and purported annexation of regions of Ukraine.

Most Favored Nation Status

On 8 April 2022, President Biden signed into law bill H.R. 7108, revoking normal trade relations with the Russian Federation and the Republic of Belarus. This follows the President's statement on 11 March 2022 that the US, along with the EU and G7 countries, would call for revoking Russia's "most favored nation" ("MFN") status—known as "Permanent Normal Trade Relations" in the US. MFN requires WTO members to give the most favorable tariff and regulatory treatment accorded to the product of any one WTO member to "like products" of all other WTO members (subject to certain exceptions). H.R. 7108 suspends normal trade relations between the US and Russia/Belarus, meaning that imports originating in Russia and Belarus will be subject to higher duty rates. H.R. 7108 also authorizes the President to further increase the rates of duty applicable to products of Russia and Belarus. The new law at Section 6 also contains "Reauthorization of Sanctions under the Global Magnitsky Human Rights Accountability Act with Respect to Human Rights Violations and Corruption." Section 6 repeals Section 1265 of the Global Magnitsky Human Rights Accountability Act, which terminated the authority to impose sanctions under the subtitle 6 years after the date of enactment.

Executive Orders/SDNs/General Licenses/Directives

Executive Order 14071

On 6 April 2022, President Biden signed an Executive Order ("EO") 14071 "Prohibiting New Investment in and Certain Services to the Russian Federation in Response to Continued Russian Federation Aggression." Specifically, EO 14071 prohibits:

- all new investment in Russia by US Persons (defined below), wherever located;
- the exportation, reexportation, sale, or supply, directly or indirectly, from the US or by a US Person, of any category of services as may be determined by the Secretary of Treasury to any person located in Russia; and
- any approval, financing, facilitation, or guarantee by a US Person, wherever located, of a transaction by a foreign person that would be prohibited for a US Person by the above.

On 8 May 2022, OFAC issued a determination that the prohibitions in Section 1(a)(ii) of EO 14071 (related to the export, reexport, sale or supply of services) apply, as of 7 June 2022, to the following categories of services: accounting, trust and corporate formation, and management consulting. Consequently, as of 7 June 2022, unless there is an applicable OFAC license or exemption, the exportation, reexportation, sale, or supply, directly or indirectly, from the US, or by a US Person, wherever located, of accounting, trust and corporate formation, or management consulting services to any person located in Russia is prohibited, except for:

- services to any entity located in Russia that is owned or controlled, directly or indirectly, by a US Person; and
- services in connection with the wind down or divestiture of an entity located in Russia that is not owned or controlled, directly or indirectly, by a Russian person.

On 15 September 2022, OFAC issued a further determination that the prohibitions in Section 1(a)(ii) of EO 14071, as of 15 October 2022, include quantum computing services. Consequently, as of 15 October 2022, the exportation, reexportation, sale, or supply, directly or indirectly, from the US, or by a US Person, wherever located, of quantum computing services to any person located in Russia is prohibited, except for:

- services to any entity located in Russia that is owned or controlled, directly or indirectly, by a US Person; and
- services in connection with the wind down or divestiture of an entity located in Russia that is not owned or controlled, directly or indirectly, by a Russian person.

OFAC Guidance on Implementation of Maritime Services Policy and Related Price Exception for Seaborne Russian Oil

On 9 September 2022, OFAC released its "Preliminary Guidance on Implementation of a Maritime Services Policy and Related Price Exception for Seaborne Russian Oil" ("MSP Guidance"). The MSP Guidance follows on the G7 Finance Ministers announcement of their intent to implement a comprehensive plan to permit services that will "clearly sustain the maritime transportation of seaborne Russian oil, permitting oil purchased at or below a price cap to be established by an implementing coalition of countries" ("G7 Plan").

The MSP Guidance provides information on the pending OFAC determination anticipated to be issued pursuant to EO 14071 prohibiting the involvement of US Persons, globally, in a "broad range of services" related to the maritime transportation of Russian crude oil and petroleum products. The MSP Guidance states that this services prohibition will take effect on December 5, 2022 for crude oil and February 5, 2023 for petroleum products. As an exception, the MSP Guidance explains that the provision of services for seaborne Russian oil at or below a to-be-determined price cap would not be prohibited. The MSP Guidance outlines how OFAC is preparing to implement the G7 Plan, provides additional insight on how companies should prepare, and also explains the price cap exception to the prohibition. Additional information can be found in our alert here.

On 31 October 2022, OFAC issued FAQ 1094 providing further guidance regarding its implementation of the G7 Plan.

OFAC FAQ 1094 states that OFAC's expected prohibition on US Persons providing or facilitating the provision of services related to the maritime transport of Russian-origin crude oil above the to-be-specified price cap (expected to become effective on 5 December 2022) will not apply to Russian-origin crude oil that is loaded onto a vessel at the port of loading prior to 12:01 a.m. US eastern time on 5 December 2022 and unloaded at the port of destination prior to 12:01 a.m. US eastern time on 19 January 2023.

Expansion of Sanctions Authorities to Additional Russian Economy Sectors

On 31 March 2022, the Secretary of Treasury, in consultation with the Secretary of State, determined that under EO 14024 Section 1(a)(i) sanctions may be imposed on persons determined by the US government to operate or have operated in the aerospace, marine, and electronics sectors of Russia's economy. On 8 May 2022, a further determination expanded EO 14024 Section 1(a)(i) to include the accounting, trust and corporate formation services, and management consulting sectors of Russia's economy. This determination provides the US Department of the Treasury's Office of Foreign Assets Control ("OFAC") with the authority, but no requirement, to impose SDN (defined below) designations on persons operating in these sectors of Russia's economy, in addition to the financial services sector, technology sector and the defense and related materiel sector.

On 15 September 2022, a further determination expanded EO 14024 Section 1(a)(i) to include the quantum computing sector of Russia's economy.

Executive Order 14068

On 11 March 2022, President Biden signed EO 14068 "Prohibiting Certain Imports, Exports, and New Investment with Respect to Continued Russian Federation Aggression." Specifically, EO 14068 prohibits:

- the importation of fish, seafood, and preparations thereof; alcoholic beverages; and non-industrial diamonds that are of Russian Federation origin into the US;
- the exportation, re-exportation, sale, or supply, directly or indirectly from the US, or by a US Person, wherever located, of luxury goods to any person located in the Russian Federation;
- new investment in any to-be specified sectors of the Russian Federation economy as determined by the Secretary of Treasury;
- the exportation, re-exportation, sale, or supply, directly or indirectly, of US dollar-denominated banknotes to the Government of the Russian Federation or any person located in the Russian Federation by a US Person or from the US; and
- any approval, financing, facilitation, or guarantee of a transaction by a US Person, wherever located, of a transaction by a foreign person where the transaction by the foreign person would be prohibited if performed by a US Person or within the US.

OFAC also published four General Licenses along with EO 14068:

- General License 17A (EO 14068): authorized all transactions, until 25 March 2022, that were ordinarily incident and necessary to the importation of alcoholic beverages or non-industrial diamonds of Russian Federation origin into the US pursuant to contracts or written agreements entered into prior to 11 March 2022. It also authorized all transactions, until 23 June 2022, that were ordinarily incident and necessary to the importation of fish, seafood, and preparations thereof of Russian Federation origin into the US pursuant to contracts or written agreements entered into prior to 11 March 2022.
- General License 18 (EO 14068): authorizes all transactions that are ordinarily incident and necessary to the transfer of U.S. dollar-denominated banknote non-commercial, personal remittances from (1) the US or a US Person, wherever located, to an individual located in the Russian Federation, or (2) a US Person who is an individual located in the Russian Federation. GL 18 states that the transferring institutions may rely on the originator of a funds transfer with regard to compliance, provided that the transferring institution does not know or have reason to know that the funds transfer is not in compliance.
- General License 19 (EO 14068): authorizes individuals who are US Persons located in the Russian Federation to engage in transactions that are ordinarily incident and necessary to their personal maintenance within the Russian Federation, including payment of housing expenses, taxes or fees, purchases or receipts of permits, licenses, or public utility services, and the acquisition of goods or services for personal use. It does not authorize transactions prohibited by EO 14024.
- General License 20 (EO 14068 section 1\(a\)\(iv\)/EO 14024): authorizes US Persons to engage in all transactions ordinarily incident and necessary to the official business of third-country diplomatic or consular missions located in the Russian Federation. GL 20 does not authorize the opening or maintaining of a correspondent account or payable-through account for or on behalf of any entity subject to Directive 2 under EO 14024; any debit to an account on the books of a US financial institution of the Central Bank of the Russian Federation, the National Wealth Fund of the Russian Federation, or the Ministry of Finance of the Russian Federation; the exportation, re-exportation, sale or supply of US dollar-denominated banknotes to the Government of Russia (other than the payment of certain taxes, fees, and purchases of permits, licenses or public utility services); or any transaction involving Blocked Persons (defined below).

On 28 June 2022, OFAC determined that the prohibition in section 1(a)(i) of EO 14068 applies to gold of Russian origin, with immediate effect. The import into the US of Russian-origin gold, excluding gold that was located outside of Russia prior to 28 June 2022, is now prohibited, unless there is an applicable OFAC license.

Executive Order 14066

On 8 March 2022, President Biden signed EO 14066 "Prohibiting Certain Imports and New Investments With Respect to Continued Russian Federation Efforts to Undermine the Sovereignty and Territorial Integrity of Ukraine." Unlike prior sanctions measures and export restrictions, EO 14066 prohibits imports into the United States, directly or indirectly, of oil and related energy products of Russian Federation origin and prohibits US Persons from engaging in new investment in, or financing or facilitating new investment in, Russia's energy sector.

Specifically, EO 14066 prohibits:

- the import of crude oil; petroleum; petroleum fuels, oils, and products of their distillation; liquified natural gas; coal; and coal products of Russian Federation origin into the United States;
- new investment in the energy sector in the Russian Federation by a US Person, wherever located; and
- any approval, financing, facilitation, or guarantee by a US Person, wherever located, of a transaction by a non-US person that a US Person would be prohibited from engaging in directly.

OFAC also issued a new General License in conjunction with EO 14066:

- General License 16: authorized, through 21 April 2022, all transactions that were ordinarily incident and necessary to the importation into the US of crude oil; petroleum; petroleum fuels, oils, and products of their distillation; liquified natural gas; coal; and coal products of Russian Federation origin pursuant to written contracts or written agreements entered prior to 8 March 2022.

OFAC also has provided guidance at FAQ 1,014 that EO 14066 does not prohibit the import into the US of non-Russian origin products that have transited through Russia or departed from Russian ports.

New Investment Prohibitions FAQs

On 6 June 2022, OFAC published 7 new FAQs providing guidance on OFAC's interpretation of the "new investment" prohibitions in EOs 14066, 14068 and 14071. This guidance does not permit transactions otherwise prohibited by the RuHSR or other OFAC sanctions programs.

OFAC FAQ 1049 explains the term "new investment." OFAC views "investment" as the commitment of capital or other assets for the purpose of generating returns or appreciation, and "new" investment as such a commitment made on or after the effective date of the respective EO prohibitions. FAQ 1049 also includes examples of transactions that are and are not considered to be "new investment" prohibitions. For example, transactions that are considered to be "new investment" include purchasing or acquiring real estate in Russia (other than for noncommercial personal use), lending funds to persons located in Russia for commercial purposes, and purchasing an equity interest in an entity located in Russia. Transactions that are not considered to be new investment include maintaining an investment in Russia made prior to the effective date of the relevant new investment prohibition and winding down or divesting such a pre-existing investment.

OFAC FAQ 1050 outlines the types of transactions that OFAC considers to be "maintenance" activities described in FAQ 1049 and outside of the scope of "new investment" prohibitions, and it defines the "maintenance" of investments to include:

- transactions to ensure continuity of pre-existing projects or operations located in the Russian Federation, including payments to employees, suppliers, landlords, lenders, and partners;
- the preservation and upkeep of pre-existing tangible property in the Russian Federation; and
- activities associated with maintaining pre-existing capital investments or equity investments.

FAQ 1050 clarifies that transactions ordinarily incident to performance under an agreement that pre-dates the relevant new investment prohibition is not prohibited, provided that such transactions are consistent with previously established practices and support pre-existing projects and operations.

OFAC FAQ 1051 states that the prohibitions on "new investment" do not prohibit the export or import of goods, services, or technology, or related sales or purchases, to or from Russia, provided that such transactions are made pursuant to ordinary commercial sales terms and refers the reader to FAQ 1049. In addition, FAQ 1051 clarifies that such trade related transactions can be supported by traditional trade finance products such as letters of credit and documentary collections.

OFAC FAQ 1052 explains that US Persons can continue to fund their subsidiaries and affiliates with projects or operations located in Russia in place prior to the effective dates of the new investment prohibitions, as long as the use of funds by a subsidiary or affiliate is consistent with "maintenance" of such an investment, as described in FAQ 1050, as opposed to new or expanded projects or operations.

OFAC FAQ 1053 states that transactions related to the divestment or facilitation of divestment of a pre-existing investment, including a pre-existing investment in an entity, project, or operation in Russia, are not prohibited by the new investment prohibitions, but such transactions may not involve a Blocked Person or otherwise prohibited transactions, unless authorized by OFAC. FAQ 1053 also clarifies that US Persons are prohibited by the new investment prohibitions from facilitating the buy-side of such transactions.

OFAC FAQ 1054 explains that the new investment prohibitions do prohibit US Persons from purchasing both new and existing debt and equity securities issued by an entity in Russia; however, the new investment prohibitions do not prohibit US Persons from selling or divesting, or facilitating the sale or divestment of, debt or equity securities issued by an entity in Russia to a non-US person. FAQ 1054 also clarifies that the conversion of depositary receipts into underlying local shares of non-sanctioned Russian issuers does not constitute a prohibited "new investment." In regard to investments in US funds that hold debt or equity securities of Russian issuers, FAQ 1054 states that such investments are not prohibited "new investments" provided that such securities represent less than a predominant share by value of the US fund's holdings.

OFAC FAQ 1055 states that the new investment prohibitions do not prohibit US Persons from lending funds to, or purchasing an equity interest in, entities located outside Russia provided that such funds are not specifically intended for new projects or operations in Russia and the revenues of the entity located outside of Russia are not predominantly derived from its investments in Russia.

US EXPORT CONTROLS

BIS adds 36 Entities to the Entity List

On 28 June 2022, BIS added 36 additional entities to the Entity List, 10 of which relate to Russia:

- six entities were added to the Entity list under the destinations of China, Lithuania, Russia, the United Kingdom, Uzbekistan, and Vietnam for allegedly providing support to Russia's military and/or defense industrial base, and for having supplied items to Russian "entities of concern" prior to 24 February 2022 and continuing to contract and supply Russian parties listed and sanctioned since the invasion;
- two entities were added under the destination of Russia on the basis of their attempts to procure items, including US-origin items, for activities contrary to the national security and foreign policy interests of the US; and
- two entities were added under the destination of Russia for actions contrary to the national security and foreign policy interests of the US.

These entities were added to the Entity list with a license requirement for all items subject to the EAR. BIS will review license applications for most of these items under a policy of denial, with food and medicine reviewed on a case-by-case basis for certain entries and others under specific end-use license review policies. No license exceptions are available for exports, reexports, or transfers (in-country) to these entities. This rule also revised a number of existing entries as well.

BIS revises 6 Entities on the Entity List

On 15 September 2022, BIS revised six entities under ten entries on the Entity List under the destinations of China, Lithuania, Russia, the United Kingdom, Uzbekistan, and Vietnam: Connec Electronic Ltd. (added under China and the United Kingdom); King Pai Technology Co., Ltd. (added under China, Russia, and Vietnam); Sinno Electronics Co., Ltd. (added under China and Lithuania); Winninc Electronic (added under China); World Jetta (H.K.) Logistics Limited (added under China); and Promcomplektlogistic Private Company (added under Uzbekistan). All six entities under ten entries were first added to the Entity List effective June 28, 2022, for supplying items to Russian entities of concern before February 24, 2022. The six entities are now designated as Russian 'military end users' pursuant to § 744.21, after continuing to contract to supply Russian entities on the Entity List or those have been sanctioned since Russia's further invasion of Ukraine, and the Russia/Belarus-Military End User FDP rule now applies to them. These six entities also have been given a footnote 3 designation to reflect their Russian 'military end user' status.

BIS/FinCEN Export Controls Joint Alert

On 28 June 2022, the Financial Crime Enforcement Network ("FinCEN") and BIS issued a joint alert urging financial institutions to remain vigilant for possible attempts by individuals and entities to evade BIS export controls on Russia. The joint alert provides an overview of BIS's current export restrictions, a list of commodities of particular concern for export control evasion, and select transactional and behavioural red flags to assist financial institutions in identifying suspicious transactions. A more in-depth analysis of the joint alert will be published separately.

71 Entities from Belarus and Russia added to the Entity List

On 2 June 2022, BIS added a total of 71 entities to the Entity List. Of those entities, 66 were added to the Entity List with a footnote 3 designation, which means that a license is required for the export, reexport, transfer (in-country), or the export from abroad (i.e., of items captured under the MEU Russia/Belarus foreign direct product rule) of all items subject to the EAR that are destined to these 66 entities. No license exceptions are available to overcome this license requirement and, further, BIS generally will deny all such license applications. Notably, however, BIS implemented (also on 2 June 2022) a new case-by-case review policy for license applications to send food and medicine designated as EAR99 to any party with a footnote 3 designation on the Entity List.

In addition to the above, 5 Russian entities were added to the Entity List without the footnote 3 designation. A license is required for the export, reexport, or transfer of all items subject to the EAR to these entities. No license exceptions are available, and BIS will review license applications with a policy of denial, including those for EAR99 food and medicine.

Separately, on 2 June 2022, BIS also issued a final rule to implement a number of clarifications and corrections to the export controls that have been imposed on Russia and Belarus since 24 February. We have incorporated these amendments below, as applicable. Notably, this final rule also authorized BIS to make enforcement case charging letters publicly available upon issuance. The change applies to all BIS enforcement actions, including enforcement actions related to the Russia and Belarus-specific export controls. Previously, charging letters were only made public after the final resolution of the administrative case (i.e., investigation), which was typically years after the charging letter was issued. BIS stated that allowing charging letters to be made available to the public prior to the final disposition of enforcement cases will benefit interested parties with more timely, enhanced visibility into BIS's enforcement activities and priorities. Documents other than charging letters will continue to be made available publicly only after the final administrative disposition of the applicable case.

BIS Publishes Charging Letter Against Russian Oligarch for Alleged EAR Violations Related to Unauthorized Flights of Aircraft to Russia

On 6 June, 2022, for the first time, BIS publicly released a charging letter on the same day it was issued to the alleged violator. The charging letter, which was posted to the BIS website, states that Roman Abramovich, a Russian oligarch, engaged in three alleged violations of the EAR by flying two different US-origin aircraft into Russia in March 2022 without the required license. Notably, BIS had previously identified both aircraft in its public list of aircraft that have operated in apparent violation of the EAR.

Under the heightened export controls on Russia, there is a license requirement (effect 24 February 2022) to export, reexport, or transfer (in country) to Russia an aircraft subject to the EAR, unless a license exception would apply. Since 2 March 2022, an aircraft subject to the EAR that is registered in, owned or controlled by, or under charter or lease by Russia or a national of Russia is prohibited from using license exception Aircraft, Vessels, and Spacecraft ("AVS") for flights to Russia. BIS provided additional guidance in the press release stating that this restriction on the availability of license exception AVS applies "regardless of whether that Russian national also has dual nationality." No other license exceptions are available to overcome the license requirement for aircraft going to Russia. The charging letter states that Abramovich, a Russian national, "effectively" owned, controlled, chartered and/or leased the two aircraft that were subject to the EAR and, accordingly, the flights of these aircraft into Russia were not eligible for authorization under license exception AVS. The charging letter further alleges that a license application was not submitted for any of the three flights and that they were conducted without the required BIS authorization. Abramovich has thirty days from 6 June to respond to the charges laid out in the letter, which is available here.

The publication of this charging letter comes on the heels of the 2 June amendment to the EAR that authorized BIS to make such charges public. Before 2 June, charging letters could only be made public after BIS had closed the relevant case (generally years after the charging letter was issued). In the Commerce Department press release, BIS stated that "[i]n publicly announcing this Charging Letter, BIS is ensuring that the exporting community and public writ large know who is allegedly violating [the EAR]. It also incentivizes those who may be in violation to cease and voluntarily self-disclose such violations."

BIS issues First Charging Letter

On 31 August 2022, BIS issued a Charging Letter against PJSC Lukoil for violating the EAR. The Charging Letter alleges that PJSC Lukoil exported a US manufactured aircraft bearing tail number VP-CLR and manufacturer serial number ("MSN") 34865, owned by PJSC Lukoil, from Dubai to Moscow, Russia on temporary sojourn without an EAR license on 12 March 2022. The aircraft was also not eligible for authorization under license exception AVS. In a related action, the DOJ obtained a warrant on 31 August 2022 to seize PJSC Lukoil's Boeing-737 bearing tail number VP-CLR and MSN 34865. This Charging Letter is the first of its kind and indicates that BIS and DOJ have started to enhance the enforcement of export controls for Russia with respect to aircraft. MSN 34685 is currently believed to be in Russia.

Expanded Russian Industry Sector Sanctions To Target Commercial and Industrial Operations

On 9 May 2022, BIS filed a final rule expanding the EAR's existing sanctions and export controls against the Russian industry sector, imposing a licensing requirement for exports, reexports or transfers (in-country) to and within Russia for additional items subject to EAR. Specifically, the new license requirement applies to EAR99 commercial and industrial items identified under specific Schedule B numbers or Harmonized Tariff Schedule codes. This final rule expands on the Russian Industry Sector Sanctions rule at Section 746.5 of the EAR, which imposes a licensing requirement (and general policy of denial) for certain EAR items used in the oil and gas sector.

Specifically, the existing Russian Industry Sector sanctions impose a license requirement for the export, re-export or transfer (in-country) of certain items subject to the EAR that the exporter knows "will be used directly or indirectly in exploration for, or production of, oil or gas in:" (i) Russian deepwater (greater than 500 feet); (ii) Russian Arctic offshore locations; or (iii) shale formations in Russia (collectively "Section 746.5 Prohibited Projects"); and in instances where the exporter is "unable to determine whether the item will be used in such projects." (See 15 CFR 746.5(a)(1)). BIS had previously amended the Russian Industry Sector sanctions on 3 March 2022, to include additional oil refining equipment, including: (i) any item subject to the EAR listed in Supplement no. 2 to Part 746 and items specified in ECCNs 0A998, 1C992, 3A229, 3A231, 3A232, 6A991, 8A992, and 8D999 when you "know" that the item will be used directly or indirectly in exploration for Section 746.5 Prohibited Projects or are unable to determine whether the item will be used in such projects; and (ii) any item subject to the EAR listed in supplement no. 4 to Part 746.

The new rule, effective 9 May 2022, adds 205 HTS codes (at the 6-digit level) and 478 corresponding 10-digit Schedule B numbers to Supplement no. 4 to Part 746. These additions result in numerous new items, which notably include, among other items, certain hydraulic power engines, wood products, woodworking machinery, refrigerating units, air conditioning machines, letterpress printing machinery, textile machinery, power looms, needles for knitting machines, dry cleaning machines, reaction engines, motors, and other parts of machinery, were identified because of their potential use by the Russian industrial sector. BIS further notes that the addition of these items also served to better align the EAR's Russia-related sanctions and export restrictions with the EU's controls, and specifically, to further reduce access to key industrial items by the Russian military.

On 2 June 2022, BIS updated three Schedule B entries for Supplement no. 2 to Part 746 (the list of items relevant for the 746.5 Prohibited Projects license requirements) by updating the Schedule B numbers for Electrostatic precipitators, industrial gas cleaning equipment (8421390120); Industrial gas cleaning equipment, NESOI (8421390130); and, Gas separation equipment (8421390140). BIS further amended Section 746.5 to state that these three Schedule B entries are also included in Supplement no. 4 to Part 746 (the list of items relevant for the broader industrial-related license requirements) and parties must comply with both of the license requirements as applicable.

BIS issued a final rule, effective 15 September 2022, to expand the industry sector sanctions applicable to Russia and add Belarus to the Russia Industry Sector Sanctions.

Changes related to industry sector sanctions can be divided into three categories:

First, BIS added a new license requirement for the export, reexport, or transfer (in-country) to or within Russia of a subset of EAR99 items that may be useful for Russia's chemical and biological weapon production and development capabilities (e.g., discrete chemicals, biologics, fentanyl and its precursors, and related equipment) or that likely are not manufactured in Russia or are otherwise important for Russia's development of advanced production and development capabilities to enable advanced manufacturing capabilities across a number of industries. (See 15 CFR § 746.5(a)(1)(iii) and supplement no. 6 to 15 CFR part 746.) This final rule also makes a corresponding change to incorporate these identified items into the scope of the Russia Foreign-Direct Product ("FDP") Rule (though no such corresponding change is needed for the MEU FDP rule, as it already extends to all items subject to the EAR). Direct products identified in the new supplement no. 6 to part 746 will also be subject to a license requirement under § 746.8(a)(2) or (3), as applicable.

Second, BIS added 57 additional entries to supplement no. 4 to part 746 (HTS Codes and Schedule B Numbers That Require a License for Export, Reexport, and Transfer (In-Country) to or Within Russia Pursuant to § 746.5(a)(1)(ii)). These additional entries, which include industrial machinery, equipment, and other items, will require a license for export, reexport or transfer to/within Russia under § 746.5.

Third, BIS added Belarus to the Russian industry sector sanctions under § 746.5, including those described in the two paragraphs above.

BIS Expanded Export License Requirements to all Items on the Commerce Control List and Excludes Belarusian Airlines/Operators from License Exception AVS

Effective 8 April 2022, a new Final Rule expanded the export license requirements for exports, reexports, or transfers (in country) to or within Russia and Belarus all items that fall under Export Control Classification Numbers ("ECCNs") on the Commerce Control List ("CCL") in Categories 0-2. These categories are:

- Category 0 – Nuclear Materials, Facilities And Equipment (and Miscellaneous Items);
- Category 1 – Materials, Chemicals, Microorganisms and Toxins; and
- Category 2 – Materials Processing.

This action, together with the previous expansion of license requirements for CCL Categories 3-9, means an export license is now required for all items with an ECCN (i.e., all items on the CCL) to Russia and Belarus. Items that were en route on 8 April 2022 were free to go without a license, but any export, reexport, or transfer (in country) not already en route as of that date is subject to the new license requirements.

In addition, BIS also revised the Russia/Belarus FDP Rule to now apply to all items on the CCL. Accordingly, as of 8 April 2022, items manufactured outside the United States that are the direct product of any software or technology with an ECCN on the CCL (Categories 0-9) or is produced by a plant or major component of a plant that is itself the direct product of such software and technology, will now be subject to the EAR under the Russia/Belarus FDP rule if there is knowledge that (i) the item is destined to Russia or Belarus or (ii) the item will be incorporated or further manufactured in or destined to Russia or Belarus. EAR99 items are not captured under the expanded Russia/Belarus FDP Rule. Items that are now subject to the Russia/Belarus FDP Rule as a result of the 8 April expansion are free to go without a license until 9 May 2022. Any item that is not en route on 9 May 2022 will be subject to the new license requirements.

Finally, effective 8 April 2022 BIS further narrowed the License exception AVS such that it cannot be used by any aircraft registered in, owned or controlled by, or under charter or lease by Belarus or a Belarusian national, in addition to Russia and Russian nationals.

BIS Denies Export Privileges for Nine Russian Airlines

On 17 October 2022, BIS issued a Temporary Denial Order ("TDO") on Ural Airlines due to its ongoing apparent violations of comprehensive export controls imposed on Russia by the Commerce Department. This enforcement action follows TDOs previously issued against Nordwind Airlines, Pobeda Airlines, Siberian Airlines, Aeroflot, Aviastar, Azur Air, Rossiya, and UTair (as discussed below). As with the other TDOs issued for Russia and Belarus, with this action BIS terminates the right of Ural Airlines to participate in transactions that involve items subject to the EAR. Among other things, the TDO against Ural Airlines prevents the export or reexport to Ural Airlines of any item subject to the EAR without BIS authorization and also prohibits the use of any items subject to the EAR to service any Ural aircraft absent a BIS authorization. The TDO also restricts third parties from engaging in certain activities with Ural Airlines when those activities also involve items subject to the EAR. The TDO was issued for 180-days and may be renewed/extended.

Previously Issued TDOs

On 24 June 2022, BIS issued Temporary Denial Orders ("TDO") on Nordwind Airlines, Pobeda Airlines, and Siberian Airlines due to their ongoing apparent violations of comprehensive export controls imposed on Russia by the Commerce Department. The TDOs were issued for 180-days and may be renewed/ extended.

In addition, BIS updated its list of aircrafts in violation of the EAR.

On 20 May 2022, BIS issued a TDO on Rossiya Airlines. In the press release, BIS stated that "BIS continues its efforts to notify the public that providing any form of service to aircraft subject to the EAR that may have violated these controls on Russia or Belarus requires authorization. Absent such authorization, any person anywhere—including within Belarus or Russia—risks violating the EAR and would be subject to BIS enforcement actions which could include substantial jail time, fines, loss of export privileges, or other restrictions." In addition, BIS outlined that "any subsequent actions taken with regard to any of the listed aircraft, including, but not limited to, refueling, maintenance, repair, or the provision of spare parts or services, are subject to the prohibitions outlined in General Prohibition Ten of the EAR."

On 7 April 2022, BIS issued TDOs denying US export privileges for three Russian Airlines – Aeroflot, Azur Air, and UTair. In the 7 April, BIS stated that "Aeroflot, Utair, and Azur Air engaged in and continue to engage in recent conduct prohibited by the EAR by operating controlled aircraft subject to the EAR without the required" license or other BIS authorization. These TDOs mark the first enforcement actions taken by BIS with respect to the new export controls on Russia and indicate that BIS is closely monitoring and investigating aircraft subject to the EAR that are operating to or within Russia.

In addition, on 21 April 2022, BIS issued a TDO on Aviastar, a Russian cargo aircraft carrier. In the press release, BIS stated that "[a]irlift capacity is essential for military success and economic prosperity, and that is why we targeted Russia's aerospace sector. [a]ctions like today's Temporary Denial Order demonstrate that BIS's Export Enforcement is working hard to ensure that our new controls have their intended effect: To severely degrade and diminish Russia's capacity to quickly move people, cargo, and weapons against Ukraine."

The TDOs deny these airlines from participating in transactions which involve items subject to the EAR for 180 days (BIS noted that the TDOs could be extended/renewed after that time). Specifically, the TDOs prohibit these airlines from engaging in any transactions or other dealings that involve items subject to the EAR – which greatly restricts their ability to acquire or otherwise deal in US-origin goods or goods that contain more than 25% controlled US-origin content.

BIS Denies Export Privileges for Belarusian Airline

On 16 June 2022, BIS issued a TDO denying all export privileges for Belavia Belarusian Airlines ("Belavia"). This is the first enforcement action taken by BIS against an airline in Belarus under the stringent export controls imposed by the US on 8 April 2022, which removed the license exception availability for any aircraft registered in, owned, or controlled by, or under charter or lease by Belarus or a national of Belarus, and imposed a license requirement for these Belarusian owned/operated aircraft. The TDO bans Belavia from participating in any transactions subject to the EAR, and it prohibits anyone (both US and non-US persons) from the following:

- exporting, reexporting, or transferring (in-country) to or on behalf of Belavia any item subject to the EAR except directly related to safety of flight and authorized by BIS;
- taking any action that facilitates the acquisition or attempted acquisition by Belavia of the ownership, possession, or control of any item subject to the EAR that has been or will be exported from the US;
- taking any action to acquire from or to facilitate the acquisition or attempted acquisition from Belavia of any item subject to the EAR that has been exported from the US;
- obtaining from Belavia in the US any item subject to the EAR with knowledge or reason to know that the item will be, or is intended to be, exported from the US; or
- engaging in any transaction to service any item subject to the EAR that has been or will be exported from the US and which is owned possessed or controlled by Belavia, or servicing any item, of whatever origin, that is owned, possessed or controlled by Belavia if such service involves the use of any item subject to the EAR that has been or will be exported from the US.

The Belavia TDO is substantially similar to the TDOs recently issued for Russian airlines. It is valid for 180-days from 16 June and may be renewed and extended by BIS.

BIS Publishes List of Commercial and Private Aircraft Exported to Russia in Violation of EAR – Puts Aerospace Industry on Notice of EAR Risks Associated with Engaging with these Aircraft

On 18 March 2022, BIS publicly identified over 100 commercial and private planes that flew into Russia "in apparent violation" of the EAR (i.e., were exported or re-exported to Russia without a required license). In its press release on the matter, BIS noted that this list puts the public on notice "that providing any form of service to these aircraft requires authorization. Absent such authorization, any person anywhere – including within Russia – risks violating the EAR and would be subject to BIS enforcement actions." BIS specifically noted that it was notifying "all persons and companies in the United States and abroad," highlighting that non-US persons and entities can be equally liable for violations of the EAR. Such violations, including violations of General Prohibition ("GP") 10 (described below), can result in significant civil fines and criminal penalties, including imprisonment (for individuals). In addition, there can be considerable internal costs and reputational harm to a company.

The list of planes is available in the press release, though BIS stated the list is not exhaustive and also that the list will be updated as warranted. The publication of this list follows the recently expanded export controls on aircraft and related items destined to Russia and Belarus (detailed further below).

BIS specifically noted that by publishing this list the general public is on notice that any actions taken with regard to the listed aircraft, including, among other things, repair, maintenance, refuelling and the provision of spare parts, are subject to GP 10 under the EAR. GP 10 prohibits proceeding with a transaction if you know or have reason to know that an export violation has or is about to occur. If there is such knowledge:

"You may not sell, transfer, export, reexport, finance, order, buy, remove, conceal, store, use, loan, dispose of, transport, forward, or otherwise service, in whole or in part, any item subject to the EAR and exported or to be exported with knowledge that a violation of the Export Administration Regulations, the Export Administration Act or any order, license, License Exception, or other authorization issued thereunder has occurred, is about to occur, or is intended to occur in connection with the item. Nor may you rely upon any license or License Exception after notice to you of the suspension or revocation of that license or exception. There are no License Exceptions to this General Prohibition Ten in part 740 of the EAR."

BIS has published several rounds of updates to the list – both removing aircraft that have been redelivered to non-Russian parties (after BIS issued authorization) and adding new aircraft identified by BIS as operating in apparent violation of the EAR. Notably, on 14 April BIS added for the first time seven Belarusian aircraft to the list. Previously, the list only included aircraft operated by Russian entities. In its press release, BIS stated with respect to Belarus: "[s]ince April 9, 2022, based on publicly available information, BIS has identified a number of commercial aircraft being reexported from third countries to Belarus, all of which are owned or controlled by, or under charter or lease to, Belarus or Belarusian nationals, and has listed those aircraft below (in bold). This is in addition to BIS's on-going identification of Russian aircraft via public listing that have likely violated the EAR since March 2, 2022."

These additions to the list indicate BIS is closely monitoring US jurisdictional aircraft operating to, from and within Belarus and Russia and we anticipate further additions to the list.

BIS identifies and adds First Non-US-produced Commercial Aircraft exported to Russia in apparent violation of US Export Controls to Aircraft List

On 2 August 2022, BIS updated its list of aircraft that have flown into Russia or Belarus in apparent violation of the EAR. This update marks the first time BIS has identified non-US-produced aircraft in violation of EARs license requirements for Russia and Belarus. These non-US-produced airframes were included on the list based on BIS's determination that the aircraft (1) exceed a de minimis amount – greater than 25 percent – of controlled US-origin content by value and therefore are subject to the EAR; and (2) were operated to Russia and/or Belarus in violation of the EAR. As with any of the BIS listed aircraft, these 25 non-US manufactured aircraft are subject to GP 10 prohibitions.

The 2 August additions bring the total number of aircraft currently identified by BIS in apparent violations of US export controls on Russia and Belarus to 183.

Prohibitions on Russian Vessels and Aircraft

On 22 April 2022, President Biden prohibited Russian-affiliated vessels from entering US ports. Specifically, vessels sailing under the Russian flag, or that are owned or operated by Russian or Russian interest, will not be allowed to dock in a US port or access US shores, except in very limited circumstances. The prohibition aligns with similar actions imposed by Europe, the UK, and Canada and follows President Biden's previous prohibition (effective 2 March 2022) on airlines and aircraft which are owned, certified, operated, registered, chartered, leased, or controlled by, for, or for the benefit of a national of Russia from flying in domestic US airspace.

Export Restrictions on Luxury Goods

On 11 March 2022, BIS imposed export license requirements on a broad list of Luxury Goods to all end users in Russia and Belarus and to certain Russian and Belarusian oligarchs and malign actors, wherever located. Previously, Luxury Goods had only been restricted for export to North Korea. Notably, under the 11 March restrictions, BIS issued an extensive list of covered Luxury Goods separate from the list relevant for North Korea that includes, among other items, tobacco products, clothing, footwear, jewelry, vehicles, boats, antiques, and spirits, wine, and beer. The full list is available at Supplement No. 5 to Part 746 of the EAR.

The license requirement applies to items included on the Luxury Goods list that are subject to the EAR, regardless of the monetary value of the item. Notably, however, under the 11 March restrictions, a license was required for the export, re-export, or transfer (in country) of any item subject to the EAR that was included on the list of Luxury Goods (outlined below), except for 61 Schedule B entries for clothing and footwear items. For these 61 entries, there was a USD $1,000 value threshold and, on 2 June 2022 BIS clarified that the license requirement applied for these 61 Schedule B entries only when the per unit wholesale price in the United States is USD $1,000 or greater.

- anyone in Russia or Belarus; and
- any Russian or Belarusian oligarch or malign actor, regardless of geographic location, who has been designated as an SDN under certain of OFAC's Russia or Ukraine-related EOs or for any transaction to which such a person is party.

However, on 15 September 2022, BIS issued a final rule which revises Supplement No. 5 to Part 746 of the EAR. To better align with the 'luxury controls' of US allies, BIS added additional dollar value exclusion thresholds for several entries, typically a $300 Per Unit Wholesale Price in the US dollar value exclusion, and modified the original dollar value exclusion for the clothing and shoes entries that were imposed under the 11 March restrictions. In particular, the final rule reduces the dollar value threshold for clothing and shoes from $1000 to $300 Per Unit Wholesale Price, and in instances where BIS determined that the 'luxury goods' did not warrant a dollar value exclusion, those entries remain unchanged. The final rule indicates that BIS "may make future updates and/or additions to the thresholds."

A very limited number of license exemptions are available and license applications for such transactions will be subject to a policy of denial.

The license requirements are effective as of 11 March and apply to all export transactions of covered Luxury Goods, though there is a savings clause for shipments that were en route on 11 March – such items are free to go without a license. Any future shipments to Russia, Belarus, or the designated Russian and Belarusian oligarchs will require a license if not otherwise authorized.

On 24 February 2022, the Department of Commerce's Bureau of Industry and Security ("BIS") issued a Final Rule, Implementation of Sanctions Against Russia Under the Export Administration Regulations (EAR) (the "Russia Final Rule"), which significantly expands existing export controls on Russia. In addition, the Russia Final Rule "imposes comprehensive export, reexport and transfer (in country) restrictions" on the Donetsk and Luhansk regions, which align with existing restrictions on the Crimea region of Ukraine and imposes a policy of denial to license applications for all three regions (collectively, the "Covered Regions of Ukraine").

On 2 March 2022, BIS issued as a final rule the Imposition of Sanctions Against Belarus Under the Export Administration Regulations (EAR) (the "Belarus Final Rule"), effective 2 March, which extended to Belarus many of the same restrictions applicable to Russia since 24 February 2022 and further expanded the restrictions as to Russia. Collectively, the Russia Final Rule and the Belarus Final Rule significantly expand existing export controls on Russia and Belarus. The Russia Final Rule primarily targets Russia's defense, aerospace, and maritime sectors, and is designed to restrict the export and re-export of highly sensitive US technologies to Russia. The Belarus Final Rule aims to prevent diversion of items, technologies, and software through Belarus to Russia, as well as impose similar restrictions on Belarusian defense, aerospace, and maritime sectors.

The changes under the Russia Final Rule were effective on 24 February 2022. The changes under the Belarus Final Rule were effective on 2 March 2022. As discussed further below, a very narrow savings clause applied to certain transactions through 26 March 2022.

Combined, the pre-existing restrictions in the Russia Final Rule and the new Belarus Final Rule restrictions:

- expand EAR export controls jurisdiction and impose new license requirements on a broader group of items subject to the EAR;
- expand export controls on Russian "military end users" and "military end uses"; ("MEUs"), adds Belarus to the list of countries subject to the controls on MEUs and also includes Belarus in the same expanded MEU controls which the Russia Final Rule imposed on Russia;
- create two new Foreign Direct Product ("FDP") Rules – one broadly applicable to each of Russia and Belarus as a country and the other specifically directed at Russian and Belarusian "military end users" – which serve to further expand EAR export controls jurisdiction to items manufactured wholly outside of the United States; and impose changes which will make it more difficult to obtain licenses or other authorizations to export, re-export, or transfer (in country) items subject to the EAR to Russia and Belarus.

Overview of the EAR

The EAR has broad jurisdiction and applies extraterritorially to items subject to the EAR everywhere in the world. EAR jurisdiction "follows the goods." This means that the EAR regulates exports, re-exports, and transfers of covered items globally, even if the transaction is between non-US persons and takes place outside the United States. Depending on the type of item, the destination, the end user, and the end use, a license may be required from the BIS for the export, re-export, or transfer of the item.

Items subject to the EAR can include:

- items anywhere in the world produced or manufactured in the United States;
- items in or exported from the United States, regardless of where they were manufactured;
- items manufactured outside the United States that include certain percentages (de minimis) of controlled US-origin content; and, in certain cases; and
- items manufactured outside the United States (i.e., foreign-produced items) that are the direct product of certain controlled US technology or software, or by a plant or a major component of a plant that is itself a direct product of such technology or software.

The new export controls on Russia and Belarus include special rules for de minimis and foreign-produced items. Accordingly, even wholly non-US entities intending to re-export items subject to the EAR to Russia and Belarus may be captured by the new restrictions.

While the new measures are specifically directed at the Russian, and Belarusian, defense, aerospace, and maritime sectors, including their supply chain companies, the measures will likely have a significant impact on other industrial sectors. This is because the new restrictions include most technology, including general electronics and computers as well as telecommunications and information security.

License Requirements for Additional Categories of Items Subject to the EAR

ECCNs in Categories 3–9 of the CCL, which include Electronics, Computers, Telecommunications and Information Security, Sensors and Lasers, Navigation and Avionics, Marine, and Aerospace and Propulsion, now have new license requirements for the export, re-export, or transfer (in country) of these items to Russia and Belarus. All ECCNs in these categories will require a license for Russia and Belarus unless a license exception applies, or the transaction is otherwise specifically excluded from the new license requirements.

These additional license requirements are "intended to further restrict items to the Russian military and defense sector" and in the case for Belarus "intended to restrict items to and within Belarus, thereby reducing the risk of diversion to the Russian military and Russian defense sector," but, in practice, have much broader implications. For example, the expanded license requirements apply to certain parts and components used in civil aircraft, which previously did not require a license for export to Russia, or Belarus.

In addition, items under these ECCNs now will be relevant for de minimis calculations. Businesses wholly outside of the United States will now therefore need to account for these new restrictions when conducting export jurisdiction determinations and evaluating potential exports and re-exports to Russia, or Belarus.

Military End Use and End User ("MEU") Rule for Russia and Belarus

The Russia Final Rule also expands the scope of the MEU rule, as it applies to Russia. Under this amended rule, a license is required if a party knows or has reason to know that any items subject to the EAR are intended for an MEU in Russia even if the item is actually intended for civilian use. Effective 2 June 2022, BIS removed the exclusion pertaining to food and medicine designated as EAR99. Accordingly, the license requirement for Russian and Belarussian MEU now extends to EAR99 food and medicine. BIS will review license applications to send EAR99 food and medicine to MEUs on a case-by-case basis. Applications for all other items subject to the EAR, including all other EAR99 items, that are destined for Russian and Belarussian MEUs are subject to a license review policy of denial. This applies to all Russian and Belarussian entities that have a footnote 3 designation on the Entity List (with a few narrow exceptions).

Notably, the Belarus Final Rule adds Belarus (which previously was not subject to the MEU rule), to the list of countries subject to the MEU rule and includes Belarus in the same expanded version of the MEU rule that the Russia Final Rule imposed on Russia.

In addition, the Russia Final Rule transfers 45 Russian entities – including many prominent Russian entities active in the defense, technological, and aerospace and aviation sectors – from the MEU List (a list of entities specifically subject to the MEU Rule) to the BIS Entity List, as well as adds two new Russian entities to the Entity List.

The Belarus Final Rule adds two new Belarussian entities to the Entity List, including the Belarussian armed forces. These Russian and Belarussian entities are denoted with a "footnote 3" designation on the Entity List, which subjects them to additional license requirements under the EAR (discussed below).

Entities on the Entity List are prohibited from receiving specified items subject to the EAR without a license. BIS has stated that additional entities may be added in the future.

In addition, on 1 April 2022, BIS announced additional export control measures, adding 120 entities closely linked to Russia's defense and other strategic sectors to the Entity List. Ninety-five of these were added as MEUs under the destinations of Belarus and Russia and also designated these entities under Footnote 3 of the Entity List. Accordingly, these ninety-five entities are subject to the Russia/Belarus MEU FDP Rule (as discussed in the section below). The other twenty-five entities were added under the destination of Russia for acquiring and attempting to acquire items subject to the EAR in support of Russia's military modernization efforts. Pursuant to these measures, a license is now required to export, reexport or transfer of all items subject to the EAR to the designed entities, and such applications will be reviewed with a policy of denial. Further, EAR license exceptions are prohibited for such transactions.

BIS issued a final rule, effective 15 September 2022, to expand controls for MEUs and Military-Intelligence End Users ("MEIUs"). Changes related to MEU and MEIU controls can be divided into three categories:

First, BIS expanded the "is informed" provisions under § 744.11 to add an additional provision noting that the Deputy Assistant Secretary for Export Administration can provide notice that a license is required to export, reexport, or transfer of specified items to an identified party because there is reasonable cause to believe, based on specific and articulable facts, that the entity has been or is involved, or poses a significant risk of being or becoming involved, in activities that are contrary to US national security or foreign policy interests or that an entity is acting on behalf of such an entity. Unlike the two original "is informed" provisions, this new provision allows for notice of parties that are not currently on the Entity List. Notice can be made orally, with written notice following within two working days, and it will include the license requirement, limits on the use of license exceptions, and the license review policy. BIS may subsequently seek to add the entity to the Entity List.

Second, BIS expanded the MEU controls under § 744.21 to reach Belarusian, Burmese, Cambodian, Chinese, Russian, or Venezuelan MEUs in anywhere in the world, rather than merely in Belarus, Burma, Cambodia, China, Russia, and Venezuela. The worldwide expansion is limited to Russian and Belarusian MEUs on the Entity List (supplement no. 4 to part 744) with a footnote 3 designation and to Burmese, Cambodian, Chinese, and Venezuelan MEUs on the MEU List (supplement no. 7 to part 744), though the application in Belarus, Burma, Cambodia, China, Russia, and Venezuela is not limited.

Third, and similar to the MEU expansion above, BIS expanded the MEIU controls under § 744.22 to reach Belarusian, Burmese, Cambodian, Chinese, Russian, and Venezuelan MEIUs, and MEIUs of Country Group E:1 or E:2, regardless of location. The expansion is limited—for Burmese, Cambodian, Chinese, or Venezuelan MEIUs that are outside of those countries or are entities working on behalf of those countries and for MEIUs that are nationals of countries in Country Groups E:1 or E:2 but are outside of those countries or are entities working on behalf of those countries—to the entities specifically identified under § 744.22(f)(2), though the application in Belarus, Burma, Cambodia, China, Russia, Venezuela, or a country listed in Country Groups E:1 or E:2 is not limited.

New Foreign Direct Product ("FDP") Rules Specific to Russia, and Belarus

The Final Rule creates two new FDP rules specific to Russia, and the Belarus Final Rule adds Belarus to both of the new FDP Rules, named:

- the "Russia/Belarus FDP Rule;" and
- the "Russia/Belarus-MEU FDP Rule."

The new FDP rules are very technical, but will primarily impact non-US entities who source US content for further manufacture or incorporation into their products.

The new measures are designed to restrict the flow of wholly-foreign made items (with certain US content) to or within Russia and Belarus:

- The Russia/Belarus FDP Rule asserts BIS export licensing jurisdiction over items manufactured wholly outside of the United States, when the items are either: (1) the direct product of US-origin software or technology listed in any ECCN; or (2) manufactured by plants or major components of plants which are themselves the direct product of such software or technology. Such foreign produced items which would be classified as EAR99 are excluded. The Russia/Belarus FDP Rule applies to transactions in which the parties know, or have reason to know, a foreign-produced item meeting the above direct product criteria is ultimately destined for Russia or Belarus, or will be incorporated into or used for production/development of parts, components, or equipment that is ultimately destined for Russia or Belarus. These transactions will require a BIS license, and the applications will be subject to a policy of denial. This is a new use of controls on foreign-produced items, and it significantly expands US export control jurisdiction over items produced outside the United States.
- The newly introduced Russia/Belarus MEU FDP Rule expands the export licensing jurisdiction in a manner similar to the Russia/Belarus FDP Rule, as it renders certain items manufactured wholly outside of the United States subject to the EAR for transactions involving Russian or Belarusian entities that have been assigned a footnote 3 designation on the Entity List ("footnote 3 designated entities"). Unlike the Russia/Belarus FDP Rule, the Russia/Belarus-MEU FDP Rule renders foreign produced items subject to the EAR when the items are either: (1) the direct product of US-origin software or technology listed in any ECCN; or (2) manufactured by plants or major components of plants which are themselves the direct product of such software or technology. Further, the Russia/Belarus-MEU FDP Rule does not exclude EAR99 items – which means it could ultimately capture a much broader group of products, including "humanitarian" items such as food and medicine. Further, the Russia/Belarus-MEU FDP Rule applies specifically in instances involving entities carrying the footnote 3 designation. Generally, if there is knowledge that the foreign produced item will be used or further incorporated by a footnote 3 designated entity, or even if a footnote 3 designated entity is otherwise a party to the transaction, the transaction will be subject to the new FDP restrictions – even if conducted wholly outside of the United States, with no US person or entity involvement.

The Russia/Belarus FDP Rule and Russia/Belarus-MEU FDP Rule impose license requirements to re-export, export from abroad, or transfer (in country) controlled items "to any destination" if known that the ultimate destination is Russia or Belarus or that there is the requisite involvement of a footnote 3 designated entity.

This is designed to address multi-country manufacturing processes, as the license requirements will apply to, for example, exports and re-exports from one manufacturing country to another so long as it is known that the item is ultimately destined for Russia/Belarus or to be "incorporated into or used in the production or development of any part component or equipment. produced in or ultimately destined" to Russia/Belarus.

A savings clause is included in both the Russia/Belarus FDP Rule and the Russia/Belarus-MEU FDP Rule, which made narrow exceptions for certain shipments of items already en route aboard a carrier to a port of export, re-export, or transfer (in country) by/on 26 March 2022.

Exclusion of Certain Countries from the Expanded Licensing Requirements for Russia and Belarus

Countries identified by BIS on the so-called "Russia and Belarus Exclusions List" under the EAR are carved out from certain of the expanded Russia and Belarus license requirements.

These are countries that BIS has determined "are committed to implementing substantially similar export controls" on Russia and Belarus, and notably include NATO countries and partner nations. Countries included on this list are excluded – in whole or in part – from the requirements under the new Russia/Belarus FDP rules (both the general and MEU FDP rule) and the expanded de minimis application to items controlled only for anti-terrorism (AT) reasons or for 9A991 items, which notably include certain aircraft and related parts and components.

Other Key Changes

- Limitations on EAR License Exceptions for Russia and Belarus

There are very narrow circumstances in which a license exception will overcome requirements imposed under the Russia Final Rule or Belarus Final Rule. Available license exceptions are restricted to only certain sections of the EAR Part 740 exceptions for Temporary Imports, Exports, Re-exports, and Transfers in Country (TMP); certain government activities (GOV); Technology and Software Unrestricted (TSU); Baggage (BAG); Aircraft, Vessels, and Spacecraft (AVS); Encryption Commodities, Software, and Technology (ENC); and Consumer Communication Devices (CCD).

Companies that have used license exceptions for shipments to Russia and Belarus in the past must review their licensing procedures and incorporate the new restrictions, as necessary.

- Policy of Denial for License Applications for Russia, Belarus, and Covered Regions of Ukraine

Applications for the export, re-export, or transfer of items subject to the EAR that require a license for Russia or Belarus under either the Russia or Belarus Final Rule will now be subject to a review policy of denial, except for very limited circumstances.

Applications related to certain categories—safety of flight, maritime safety, civil nuclear safety, humanitarian needs, government space cooperation, applications from companies headquartered in partner countries to support civil telecommunications infrastructure, government-to-government activities, and to support limited operations of partner country companies in Russia/Belarus— will be reviewed on a case-by-case basis.

Effective 2 June 2022, BIS amended the licensing policy for applications to send items subject to the EAR to the Covered Regions of Ukraine to align with the policy for Russia and Belarus. Accordingly, BIS will review on a case-by-case basis for the Covered Regions of Ukraine the same categories of license applications specified for Russia and Belarus as subject to a case-by-case basis review.

- Country Group Changes

The Russia Final Rule updates Russia's EAR Country Group designation, adding it to Country Group D:5.

Country Group D:5 are US arms embargoed countries. This change is intended to reflect Russia's identification by the Department of State as a country subject to an arms embargo, and it conforms the arms embargo-related restrictions in the EAR with the § 126.1 provisions of the US export regulations for defense and military items, the International Traffic in Arms Regulations ("ITAR") (22 CFR Parts 120– 130).

The Belarus Final Rule makes certain changes to Belarus' EAR Country Group designations. Most notably, Belarus was added to Country Groups D:2 (Nuclear) and D:4 (Missile Technology) to reflect that Belarus has been officially identified as a country of concern for nuclear proliferation and missile technology proliferation. Practically, these new designations result in increased licensing requirements and the restricted availability of license exceptions for exports and re-exports to Belarus.

UK SANCTIONS

UK sanctions on Russia are set out in the Russia (Sanctions) (EU Exit) regulations 2019 (as amended) (the "UK Russia Regulations"), which apply within the UK and to UK citizens and UK incorporated entities anywhere in the world.

UK sanctions measures are also adopted in the British Overseas Territories and Crown Dependencies (including Jersey/Guernsey/Isle of Man).

A consolidated version of the relevant UK Russia Regulations is available here. In the sections below, we provide an overview of some of the key provisions.

On 3 November 2022, the UK introduced new legislation to give effect to the internationally agreed Russian oil price cap, by preventing UK services being used in relation to the transport Russian oil above that cap.

The Russia \(Sanctions\) \(EU Exit\) \(Amendment\) \(No. 16\) Regulations 2022 will come into force on 5 December 2022 and will:

- Bring forward the introduction date for the prohibitions relating to imports of Russia oil and oil products into the UK. Those restrictions will now apply from to 5 December 2022 (rather than 31 December 2022).
- Impose a new prohibition on the supply or delivery by ship of Russian origin oil and oil products from a place in Russia to a third country, or from one third country to another third country.
- Impose a new prohibition on providing financial services, including insurance, to facilitate the supply or delivery of Russian origin oil and oil products from a place in Russia to a third country, or from one third country to another third country.

A General Licence will be introduced to allow a price cap exception where the supply or delivery by ship of Russian origin oil and oil products and the provision of related ancillary services will be available to third country importers, so long as they purchase oil below an agreed price. This is in line with previous commitments made by the UK to introduce a price cap on Russian oil.

The legislation will confer on OFSI the power to impose civil monetary penalties on a person who fails to comply with these new trade measures.

An accompanying UK Government press release states that the new legislation will "pave the way for a cap on the price of seaborne Russian crude oil... [and] prevent countries from using the UK's services to transport Russian oil unless it is purchased at or below the Oil Price Cap set by the Price Cap Coalition of the G7 and Australia." The level of the price cap is set to be determined by the coalition in due course.

A new team within OFSI has also been established to create the licensing and enforcement system for the Oil Price Cap; engage with industry to ensure readiness for the cap; and monitor the level and impact of the cap on an ongoing basis.

On 28 October 2022, the UK adopted further sanctions on Russia. As outlined in further detail below, The Russia \(Sanctions\) \(EU Exit\) \(Amendment\) \(No. 15\) Regulations 2022 impose the following restrictions:

- An expansion on the prohibition on loans or credits to include a new prohibition on making loans or credits with a maturity of more than 30 days to persons connected with Russia or persons owned, directly or indirectly, by a person connected with Russia ("category 5 loan"). The new regulation amends regulation 17(5), on loans and credit to bring companies outside Russia owned by a person connected with Russia into scope, including UK companies.
- New trade restrictions on the export, supply and delivery, and making available of listed goods (as well as related technical assistance, financial services and funds, and brokering services), to, or for use in Russia, that are critical to the functioning of Russia's economy. There is a new list of Russia Vulnerable Goods (in Schedule 3I) to which these controls relate.
- Expansion of the list of so-called G7 Dependency and Further Goods in Schedule 3E, to which certain export controls apply.
- Minor expansion of the list of revenue generating goods in Schedule 3D, to which certain import/purchasing restrictions apply.
- A new prohibition on the import of LNG, which is consigned from or originates in Russia, and the acquisition of LNG (as well as related technical assistance, financial services and funds, and brokering services), which originates in Russia or which is located in Russia, with the intention of the LNG entering the UK. These restrictions will come into force on 1 January 2023.
- New trade restrictions on the import of gold (as well as related technical assistance, financial services and funds, and brokering services), which has been processed in a third country and incorporates gold that, on or after 21st July 2022, originated in Russia and has been exported from Russia; and on the import and acquisition of gold jewellery (as well as technical assistance and financial services and funds and brokering services), which originates in Russia, is located in Russia and has been exported from Russia (with an exception for personal use, which will also apply to the export of gold jewellery), with the intention of that gold jewellery entering the United Kingdom.

On 30 September 2022, the UK Government announced its intention to introduce additional sanctions against Russia in response to the Russian annexation of the Donetsk, Luhansk, Kherson and Zaporizhzhia regions of Ukraine. The announced measures which are yet to come into effect include:

- A proposed ban on the provision of the following services to persons connected with Russia (i.e., Russian companies and residents/individuals located in Russia):
 - IT consultancy, including designing IT systems and software applications;
 - architectural services;
 - engineering services;
 - advertising services;

- auditing services; and
- transactional legal advisory services (which "will cover certain commercial and transactional services and hamper Russia's businesses' ability to operate internationally");
- A suspension of the current process by which actions taken to manage the orderly failure of Russian banks are recognised under the laws of the UK, in cases where the bank is a sanctioned entity; and

On 17 October 2022, OFSI and OFAC co-published a blog to announce an "enhanced partnership" between the financial sanctions implementation authorities. The initiative is intended to bring significant benefits to both organisations and to reinforce their coordination and collaboration, including in relation to measures imposed against Russia in response to the invasion of Ukraine. The enhanced partnership is also intended to support OFSI's move to become "a larger and more proactive organisation." In practice, OFAC and OFSI officials working on sanctions implementation and enforcement will now be further exchanging best practices and strengthening working relationships at all levels.

GUIDANCE

On 21 September 2022, OFSI updated its 'Guidance for the financial and investment restrictions in Russia \(Sanctions\) \(EU Exit\) Regulations 2019'.

On 12 July 2022, the Office of Financial Sanctions Implementation ("OFSI") and the National Crime Agency (NCA) issued a 'Red Alert' on financial sanctions evasion by "Russian elites and enablers." The alert indicates that designated persons are using a range of techniques to evade sanctions, including the transfer of assets to trusted proxies (such as relatives or employees) and other ways of relinquishing an asset while in fact retaining influence. The alert summarises the offences that could apply relating to sanctions circumvention and facilitation. The document also gives a list of "indicators" of suspected sanctions evasion and industry recommendations, including transactions being documented and not taken at face value.

On 30 August 2022, OFSI's General Guidance was updated to reflect an expansion of reporting obligations under UK sanctions regulations. The regulations have extended the definition of "relevant firms" that have financial sanctions reporting obligations to cryptoasset exchange providers and custodian wallet providers. The expanded definition came into effect on the same day that the OFSI general guidance was updated.

On 8 June 2022, OFSI published amended enforcement and monetary penalties guidance for breaches of financial sanctions and an accompanying blog was written by Giles Thomson, the Director of OFSI. The monetary penalty guidance was updated to reflect OFSI's new powers to impose monetary penalties on a strict liability basis for civil breaches of financial sanctions under s.146(1A) of the Policing and Crime Act 2017, as amended by the Economic Crime (Transparency and Enforcement) Act 2022 in March. That legislative provision and OFSI's amended guidance came into force on 15 June 2022.

The change in the law means the previous requirement for OFSI to prove that a person had knowledge or reasonable cause to suspect that they were in breach of financial sanctions will be removed. OFSI has stated that when considering any breach of financial sanctions, it will nevertheless continue to act proportionately and will assess factors such as the severity of the breach, the expected knowledge of the person and their exposure to financial sanctions risk, due diligence efforts to prevent such breaches, and the importance of self-disclosure.

OFSI has also gained the power to publicise details of financial sanctions breaches committed after 15 June 2022 even where a monetary penalty has not been imposed.

On 10 November 2022, OFSI published its Annual Review for 2021-22. In light of the role OFSI has played in the UK's response to the Russian invasion of Ukraine, the review includes additional reporting on data from 24 February to 24 August 2022 (the first 6 months of the war) as well as reporting data from financial year 2021 to 2022.

Asset Freeze

Since 24 February 2022, the UK Government has imposed an asset freeze on a number of individuals and entities, including various Russian banks and state-owned entities. This includes, but is not limited to, the following:

- Alfa Bank
- Exiar
- Bank Otkritie
- Bank Rossiya
- Credit Bank of Moscow
- Evraz plc
- GazpromBank
- PJSC Aeroflot
- Promsvyazbank
- Rosselkhozbank (Russian Agricultural Bank)
- Rostec
- Sberbank
- SMP Bank
- Sovcombank
- SovcomFlot
- Ural Bank for Reconstruction and Development
- Vnesheconombank (Veb)
- VTB Bank (VTB)
- Vladimir Potanin, Russia's second richest man and owner of Rosbank and major conglomerate Interros.
- In addition, on 29 September 2022, Elvira Nabiullina, the Governor of the Central Bank of the Russian Federation, has been designated for purposes of the UK's asset freezing measures, although the UK Government does not consider that Ms. Nabiullina owns or controls the Central Bank for the purposes of Regulation 7 of the Russia (Sanctions) (EU Exit) Regulations 2019.

The full list is available online here:

<https://www.gov.uk/government/publications/financial-sanctions-consolidated-list-of-targets/consolidated-list-of-targets>

The asset freezing measures apply automatically to any non-designated entity where (in summary):

- a designated person holds directly or indirectly more than 50% of the shares in the entity;
- a designated person holds directly or indirectly more than 50% of the voting rights in the entity;
- a designated person holds the right directly or indirectly to appoint or remove a majority of the board of directors of the entity; or
- it is reasonable, having regard to all the circumstances, to expect that the designated person would (if it chose to) be able, in most cases or in significant respects, by whatever means and whether directly or indirectly, to achieve the result that the affairs of the entity are conducted in accordance with the designated person's wishes.

On 22 March 2022, OFSI updated its general guidance to clarify its position on aggregating ownership of non-designated entities by designated persons. The new paragraph 4.1.4 states that:

"When making an assessment on ownership and control, OFSI would not simply aggregate different designated persons' holdings in a company, unless, for example, the shares or rights are subject to a joint arrangement between the designated parties or one party controls the rights of another. Consequently, if each of the designated person's holdings falls below the 50% threshold in respect of share ownership and there is no evidence of a joint arrangement or that the shares are held jointly, the company would not be directly or indirectly owned by a designated person."

This was confirmed in the FAQ guidance issued by OFSI on 19 July 2022.

This contrasts with the position set out in FAQ guidance by the European Commission (see EU Sanctions section below).

OFSI has published a number of General Licences in relation to some of these designations, including in relation to a wind down of existing transactions in relation to some of the designated entities and their subsidiaries (a full list is here <https://www.gov.uk/government/collections/ofsi-general-licences>).

This includes the following:

- On 17 October 2022, OFSI issued General Licence INT/2022/1552576 to permit Designated Persons ("DPs"), companies controlled by DPs or their legal representatives to make payments to the London Court of International Arbitration ("LCIA") to cover their arbitration costs. The General Licence also permits the LCIA to direct and receive such payments to use them to pay for arbitration costs and relevant institutions to process those payments. The licence took effect from 17 October 2022 and is of indefinite duration.

- On 22 August 2022, OFSI issued General Licence INT/2022/2104808 to allow applicable banks to take payment of bank fees from frozen accounts. The licence took effect from 22 August 2022 and is of indefinite duration.
- On 22 August 2022, OFSI amended General Licence INT/2022/1280876. The licence allows basic needs and other payments related to subsidiaries of designated Russian banks. It has been amended to include Guernsey subsidiary VTBC Asset Management International Limited and EU subsidiary VTB Bank (Europe) SE (VTBE) and any entity owned or controlled by VTBE incorporated in Germany. The licence took effect on 1 March 2022 and expires on 3 April 2023.
- On 18 August 2022, OFSI amended General Licence INT/2022/2009156. The licence allows UK designated persons to make certain permitted payments to UK insurers from a frozen bank account, and allows UK insurers to receive these payments. The permissions apply to all UK autonomous sanctions regimes listed in the annex to the licence. The licence has been amended to include within permitted payments:
 - Terrorism Insurance;
 - Property Owners' Liability Insurance; and
 - Claims Preparation Insurance.

The licence took effect on 22 July 2022 and is of indefinite duration.

- On 18 August 2022, OFSI also extended General Licence INT/2022/1710676. The licence allows the continued business operations of Evraz North American subsidiaries. The licence has now been extended until 31 March 2023.
- On 5 August 2022, OFSI issued General Licence INT/2022/2055384 to permit, subject to certain conditions, the use of retail banking services of UK designated credit or financial institutions to make or receive payments that are exclusively for the purpose of winding down business operations in Russia. The licence took immediate effect and is due to expire on 5 November 2022.
- On 22 July 2022, OFSI issued General licence INT/2022/2009156 to authorise UK designated persons to make payments to UK insurers for insurance premiums and broker commissions relating to the provision of building and engineering insurance cover provided to UK properties. The licence also permits UK insurers to make payments to UK designated persons due as a result of a successful claim made against an insurance policy provided by the UK Insurer or refunds due as a result of any over payments made pursuant to this licence. The licence took immediate effect and is of indefinite duration.
- On 10 June 2022, OFSI issued General Licence INT/2022/1919908 relating to the payment and processing of retail banking funds of non-designated third parties involving designated credit or financial institutions, subject to a condition that the total value of such payments does not exceed £50,000. The General Licence takes effect from 10 June 2022 and expired on 10 September 2022.
- On 30 June 2022, OFSI published a General Licence to permit the wind down of transactions involving Rosbank (and its subsidiaries), including the closing out of any positions, repayment of loans, withdrawal of deposits and closing of accounts. The General Licence took effect on 30 June 2022 and was initially due to expire on 30 July 2022, however on 29 July 2022 OFSI extended the licence for a period of 2 months to 30 September 2022. The General Licence has now expired.

- On 7 July 2022, OFSI issued General Licence INT/2022/1947936 and an explanatory blog regarding humanitarian activity under the Russia sanctions regime. The UK Government is seeking to further assist the efforts of humanitarian actors by issuing the General Licence to allow the timely delivery of humanitarian assistance activity in relation to the conflict in Ukraine. The General Licence also contains permissions for relevant UK financial institutions to carry out any activity to effect the delivery of humanitarian assistance, and other activities that support basic needs in relation to the conflict in Ukraine. The General Licence has immediate effect and is not subject to an expiration date.
- On 28 October 2022, OFSI issued General Licence INT/2022/2305324 and General Licence INT/2022/2307324 in relation to "category 5 loans":
 - General Licence INT/2022/2305324 provides that category 5 loans may be granted to Saving Energy For Europe GmbH, otherwise known as Gazprom Germania, and its subsidiaries, including SEFE Marketing & Trading Limited and SEFE Energy Limited. The General Licence takes effect from 29 October 2022 and expires on 29 October 2023.
 - General Licence INT/2022/2307324 provided a 7-day wind down period to allow the granting of category 5 loans until midnight on 5 November. The licence has now expired.
- On 28 October 2022, OFSI issued General Licence INT/2022/2252300 to authorise UK legal firms or UK counsel to receive the payment of legal fees and expenses from designated persons under either the Russia or Belarus UK sanctions regimes, subject to certain limitations. OFSI described the new licence in a blog

In relation to specific licence applications, on 28 July 2022 OFSI issued the following statement regarding licencing timeframes and updated the official UK financial sanctions guidance to reflect the same:

"Due to OFSI experiencing exceptionally high demand at present, we are unable to provide substantive engagement on specific licenses within four weeks.

We aim to review all new licensing applications as soon as practicable. We are prioritising cases where there are issues of personal basic needs and/or wider humanitarian issues at stake which are of material impact or urgency, or which are deemed to be of particular strategic, economic or administrative importance.

If there are particular aspects of your application that you believe make your case especially urgent, please set these out clearly in your application for our consideration."

This follows testimony provided to the UK Treasury Committee on 22 June 2022 by the Director of OFSI, Giles Thomson, that the UK's sanctions enforcement office has been trying to introduce the "most extraordinary package of sanctions ever implemented" in UK history with a group of just 70 staff.

When submitting specific licence applications therefore, it is going to be increasingly important for companies to formulate and express any arguments as to the urgency and importance of the need for the permission being sought from OFSI.

Dealing with transferable securities or money-market instruments

In addition to restrictions that have been in place since 2014 on dealing in transferable securities or money-market instruments issued by specified Russian entities or their non-UK subsidiaries with a maturity over 30 days, the UK has expanded these restrictions as follows:

- it is prohibited to deal with transferable securities or money-market instruments issued after 1 March 2022 by UK subsidiaries of the listed Russian entities, removing the previous exemption for transferable securities or money-market instruments issued by UK subsidiaries;
- it is prohibited to deal in transferable securities or money-market instruments issued after 1 March by:
 - any individual ordinarily resident or located in Russia;
 - any entity domiciled in Russia;
 - any entity incorporated or constituted in Russia (except where that entity is domiciled outside of Russia);
 - any entity which is a branch or subsidiary of an entity incorporated or constituted in Russia (except where the entity or the parent entity is domiciled outside of Russia); or
 - any entity which is owned by or acting on behalf of any of the above; and
- it is prohibited to deal with transferable securities or money-market instruments issued after 1 March by or on behalf of the Government of Russia.

Loans and Credit Arrangements

In addition to the existing restrictions that have been in place since 2014 on making or granting a new loan or credit to any of the specified Russian entities or their non-UK subsidiaries with a maturity over 30 days, the UK has expanded these restrictions as follows:

- it is prohibited to make or grant, or enter into an arrangement to make or grant, a new loan or credit (of any maturity) after 1 March 2022 to the Government of Russia.
- As of 29 October 2022, it is now prohibited to make or grant, or enter into an arrangement to make or grant, a new loan or credit with a maturity of more than 30 days available to a person, other than an individual—
 - (i) which is connected with Russia, other than—
 - (aa) a person which on the date on which the Amendment (No. 15) Regulations come into force is incorporated or constituted in a country other than Russia, or
 - (bb) a person which is owned by a person falling within paragraph (aa),

- (ii) a person which is owned by a person within sub-paragraph (i), or
- (iii) a person which is owned by a person connected with Russia who is an individual,

The previous restrictions in relation to category 3 loans are being phased out.

As noted above this brings all companies outside Russia owned directly or indirectly by an individual or other person connected with Russia into scope of the prohibition, including UK companies.

Correspondent Banking Relationships

UK credit and financial institutions are prohibited from establishing or continuing a correspondent banking relationship with designated persons or their subsidiaries. This includes the provision of banking services by a correspondent to a respondent including providing a current or other liability account and related services, such as cash management, international funds transfers, cheque clearing, providing customers of the respondent with direct access to accounts with the correspondent (and vice versa) and providing foreign exchange services.

UK credit and financial institutions are also prohibited from processing (i.e., clearing or settling) a sterling payment to, from or via a designated person or its subsidiaries. There is an exception for processing a sterling payment for any fee or charge required to permit an aircraft to overfly, land in or take off from Russia.

For these purposes, the UK specifically designated only Sberbank. As of 6 April 2022, Sberbank is also subject to a broader asset freeze designation.

On 1 March 2022, OFSI published General Licence INT/2022/1277877, which authorised a UK credit or financial institution to continue to process sterling payments to, from or via Sberbank for the purpose of making Relevant Energy Products available for use in the United Kingdom, until 24 June 2022. Relevant Energy products include certain (1) Crude Oil; (2) Petroleum Products; and (3) Gas. The General Licence has now expired.

Financial services for the purpose of foreign exchange reserve and asset management to the Central Bank of Russia

Regulation 18A of the UK Russia Sanctions Regulations includes a prohibition on providing financial services to any of the following persons where those services are for the purpose of foreign exchange reserve and asset management:

- the Central Bank of the Russian Federation;
- the National Wealth Fund of the Russian Federation;
- the Ministry of Finance of the Russian Federation;
- a person owned or controlled directly or indirectly by any of the persons above; or
- a person acting on behalf of or at the direction of any of the persons above.

The term "foreign exchange reserve and asset management" means activities relating to the following reserves or assets:

- money-market instruments (including cheques, bills and certificates of deposit);
- foreign exchange;
- derivative products (including futures and options);
- exchange rate and interest rate instruments (including products such as swaps and forward rate agreements);
- transferable securities;
- other negotiable instruments and financial assets (including bullion); and
- special drawing rights.

On 1 April 2022, OFSI issued General Licence INT/2022/1495176 to authorise the provision of financial services for the purposes of the receipt and onward transfer of non-rouble denominated interest/coupon or maturity/principal payments from the Russian Federation institutions listed above in connection with debt issued by them before 1 March 2022. The General Licence has now expired.

Investments in relation to Russia

The Amendment No.12 Regulations, which came into force on 19 July 2022, introduced restrictions regarding investments (and services directly related to those investments) to prohibit:

- the direct acquisition of any ownership interest in Russian land, or persons connected with Russia;
- the indirect acquisition of any ownership interest in Russian land or persons connected with Russia for the purpose of making funds or economic resources available directly or indirectly to, or for the benefit of, persons connected with Russia;
- the direct or indirect acquisition of any ownership interest in entities with a place of business in Russia (which are not persons connected with Russia) for the purpose of making funds or economic resources available directly or indirectly to, or for the benefit of, persons connected with Russia;
- establishing joint ventures with a person connected with Russia;
- opening representative offices and establishing branches and subsidiaries in Russia; and
- the provision of investment services directly related to all activities above.

The Regulations provide for limited exceptions to, and licensing powers in relation to, the new provisions.

OFSI has published General Licence INT/2022/2002560 to provide temporary permission to engage in activity that would otherwise be prohibited in relation to investments in relation to Russia. The licence took effect from 19 July 2022 and expired on 26 July 2022.

Professional and Business Services

The Amendment No. 14 Regulations (which came into force on 21 July 2022) include (in Regulations 54B and 54C) a prohibition on directly or indirectly providing the following services to a person connected with Russia:

- accounting services;
- business and management consulting services; or
- public relations services.

For these purposes:

- “accounting services” includes accounting review services, but excluding auditing services; compilation of financial statements services, but excluding such preparation services of business tax returns when provided as a separate service; and bookkeeping services, but excluding bookkeeping services related to tax returns.
- “business services and management consulting services” broadly includes advisory, guidance and operational assistance services provided for business policy and strategy and the overall planning, structuring and control of an organisation.
- “public relations services” includes services provided by a person related to improving the image of their clients and their relationship with the general public and other institutions.

There is an exemption in Regulation 60DA in relation to acts done in satisfaction of an obligation to discharge a UK statutory or regulatory obligation, or obligations under contracts concluded before 20 July 2022 provided that they are completed by 21 August 2022, and notification is made to the Department for International Trade.

There is no exemption for services provided to subsidiaries in Russia of UK companies (which contrasts with the approach taken in the EU Regulations, which exempts the equivalent prohibition where services are provided to EU owned companies). This means that UK companies which provide, for example, HR services for their Russian subsidiaries will need to cease such activities no later than 21 August 2022 (assuming those services are provided under an existing contract – otherwise they need to cease immediately as of 21 July 2022).

Trade Restrictions – Exports to Russia etc.

The UK Russia Regulations include a restriction on the export, supply, delivery or making available of certain items to or for use in Russia or to a person connected with Russia.

The relevant items to which the controls now apply under the UK Russia Regulations include:

- critical-industry goods and technology as listed in Schedule 2A (now amended with additional listed items – see here);
- dual-use goods and technology as listed in Council Regulation \(EC\) No 428/2009 of 5 May 2009;
- military goods as listed in Schedule 2 to the Export Control Order 2008;
- aviation and space goods as listed in Schedule 2C;

- oil refining goods and technology as listed in Schedule 2D of the UK Russia Regulations (now amended with additional listed items);
- quantum computing and advanced materials goods and technology as listed in Schedule 2D;
- energy-related goods as listed in Part 2 of Schedule 3 (now amended with additional listed items);
- luxury goods as listed in Schedule 3A;
- interception and monitoring goods and technology as listed in Part 2 of Schedule 3C;
- internal repression goods and technology as listed in Part 3 of Schedule 3C;
- goods and technology relating to chemical and biological weapons as listed in Part 4 of Schedule 3C;
- jet fuel and fuel additives as listed in Part 8 of Schedule 2A;
- sterling or EU member state denominated banknotes;
- so-called "G7 dependency and further goods list goods" which includes various miscellaneous goods required for the functioning of the Russian economy, as listed in new Schedule 3E;
- from 1 January 2023, Russia's vulnerable goods (as specified in new Chapter 4M).

With the exception of the restrictions in relation to Luxury Goods and banknotes, there is also an express prohibition on the provision of technical assistance, financial services or funds or brokering services relating to these items to a person connected with Russia or for use in Russia.

These lists are broad. For example, the list of critical-industry goods and technology in Schedule 2A includes an extensive range of items used across multiple industries, including items under the following headings (this is not exhaustive):

- Electronic devices and components including general purpose electronic equipment;
- Computers, "electronic assemblies" and related equipment, and specially designed components therefor;
- Telecommunication equipment;
- "Information security" systems, equipment and components;
- Sensors and lasers;
- Navigation direction finding equipment, airborne communication equipment, all aircraft inertial navigation systems, and other avionics equipment, including components;
- Vessels, marine systems or equipment, and specially designed components therefor, and marine boilers and components therefor;
- Diesel engines and tractor units, and specially designed components therefor

There are some exceptions to these restrictions. For example:

- the prohibitions are not contravened by activity in relation to critical-industry goods which are— (1) the personal effects of a person travelling to Russia, (2) of a non-commercial nature for the personal use of a person travelling to Russia and contained in that person's luggage, or (3) necessary for the official purposes of a diplomatic mission or consular post in Russia, or of an international organisation enjoying immunities in accordance with international law.
- the prohibitions are also not contravened by a relevant activity in relation to consumer communication devices for civilian use, or software updates for civilian use.
- On 8 April 2022, a new UK Department for International Trade general trade licence authorises the export, supply or delivery, making available, transfer, provision of technical assistance, provision of financial services or funds, or provision of brokering services in respect of the following items (as well as the provision of insurance and reinsurance services relating to aviation goods or aviation technology):
 - vessels and their component parts;
 - aircraft and their component parts; and
 - aero gas turbine engines and specially designed components therefor.

On 1 August 2022, the general trade licence was revised to enable the provision of insurance and reinsurance to a person connected with Russia in relation to the above listed items, subject to the wider restrictions and conditions of the licence.

The General Licence applies specifically in relation to vessels or aircraft moving under their own power to/from or transiting Russia and not for the purpose of a transfer of ownership or operator, and (in the case of an aircraft) if it is carrying goods or passengers when removed or it is removed in order to undertake a journey carrying goods or passengers. Any person seeking to rely on the licence is required to register online within 30 days of their first use of the licence.

- Regarding trade exceptions in relation to aircraft, Regulation 60C has been amended so that the relevant prohibitions regarding aviation technical assistance will now not be contravened by the provision of technical assistance in relation to an aircraft owned, chartered or operated by a person connected with Russia at a UK airport provided the assistance is not for the purposes of facilitating a transfer of ownership of the aircraft or any of its component parts or a change in the operator of the aircraft.

Insurance related to Aviation

On 21 June 2022, OFSI updated its guidance on regulation 29A of the UK Russia Regulations, which prohibits the provision of insurance and reinsurance services relating to aviation and space goods and technology to a person/entity connected with Russia or for use in Russia.

OFSI clarified that:

"[The prohibition] would not apply where the insurance is for the benefit of the non-Russian owner of the items, rather than their user or operator. Nor does it apply where the items either remain in Russia as the result of the termination of a lease and against the lessor's will; or are being flown out of Russia in the process of returning them to their owner."

On 4 July 2022, OFSI further updated its guidance to clarify the application of the prohibition on providing insurance and reinsurance services in relation to aviation and space goods and technology, as follows:

"The provision of insurance and reinsurance services in respect of a satellite where the only nexus with Russia is that it is orbiting over Russia, or broadcasting to Russia (and where the insurance and reinsurance services will not be provided to a person connected with Russia), would likewise not come within the scope of these prohibitions."

Import Restrictions

The UK Russia Regulations include a prohibition on the import of arms and related material, as well as iron and steel products which are consigned from Russia; as well as a prohibition on the acquisition, directly or indirectly, of iron and steel products which originate in Russia or which are located in Russia; and the supply or delivery, directly or indirectly, of iron and steel products from a place in Russia to a third country.

The controlled iron and steel products are listed in Schedule 3B of the UK Russia Regulations. There is now also a prohibition on the provision of technical assistance, and financial services, funds, and brokering services relating to prohibited iron and steel imports.

There is also a prohibition on the import, acquisition or supply and delivery of "revenue generating goods" as listed in Schedule 3D which originate from or are located in Russia, as well as a prohibition on the provision of related technical assistance, financial services, funds, and brokering services. The list of "revenue generating goods" includes a number of items ranging from various types of chemicals and fertilisers to shellfish and caviar.

The Amendment No. 14 Regulations (which came into force on 21 July 2022) have expanded the trade prohibitions in the UK Russia Regulations to include restrictions on imports and purchases of:

- Russian origin oil and oil products (as specified in new Schedule 3F). Under Chapter 4I, from 31 December 2022.
- Russian origin gold (as specified in new Schedule 3G),
- Russian origin coal and coal products (as specified in new Schedule 3H) – these restrictions will take effect from 10 August 2022

The Amendment No. 15 Regulations have expanded the trade prohibitions in the UK Russia Regulations to include restrictions on imports and purchases of:

- gold, gold jewellery and products related to gold (as specified in Schedule 3G to the Regulations) from 29 October 2022; and
- LNG (as specified in Chapter 4L to the UK Russia Regulations) from 1 January 2023.

In relation to each category there is also a prohibition on the provision of related technical assistance, and financial services, funds, and brokering services.

Maritime - Ports and Shipping

Regulation 57A of the UK Russia Sanctions Regulations prohibits UK port access being granted to any ship owned, controlled, chartered or operated by persons connected with Russia or which is flying the flag of Russia, or which is registered in Russia.

The Regulations provide the government with a power to control the movement of Russian ships or specified ships by requiring them to leave or enter specified ports, proceed to a specified place or remain where they are.

The Regulations also confer powers on the government and harbour authorities to detain Russian ships or specified ships at ports or anchorages.

Registration of ships on the UK Ship Register is prohibited where they are owned, controlled, chartered or operated by a designated person or persons connected with Russia, or where they are a specified ship.

The Russia (Sanctions) (EU Exit) (Amendment) (No. 7) Regulations 2022 also prohibit the provision to, or for the benefit of, a designated person of technical assistance relating to Russian ships or specified ships.

There is also a prohibition on the export, supply or delivery of maritime goods and technology (as specified in Chapter 4 (Navigation Equipment) and Chapter 5 (Radio-Communication Equipment) of Annex 1 of Merchant Shipping Notice 1874 for placing on board a Russian-flagged vessel).

Import Tariffs

Additional customs duties have been imposed on a number of goods originating in Russia and Belarus came into force. The products requiring additional duties when imported from Russia and Belarus are listed here.

Crimea, Donetsk and Luhansk

The UK Russia Sanctions Regulations include broad restrictions on finance and investments in, and trade relating to the Autonomous Republic of Crimea and city of Sevastopol as well as the non-government controlled areas of the Donetsk oblast and Luhansk oblast of Ukraine.

The restrictions include prohibitions relating to:

- investments in the non-government controlled Ukrainian territory
- the import of goods which originate in non-government controlled Ukrainian territory;
- the export, making available, supply, or delivery and making available of military goods or infrastructure-related goods to a person connected with, or for use in, non-government controlled Ukrainian territory;
- the provision of technical assistance, brokering services, financial services and funds related to military goods or infrastructure-related goods to a person connected with, or for use in, non-government controlled Ukrainian territory; and
- providing certain services relating to a relevant infrastructure sector, and tourism, in non-government controlled Ukrainian territory.

The Amendment No.13 Regulations, which came into force on 18 July 2022, introduced a new Regulation 61ZA to provide an exception to certain prohibitions concerning infrastructure-related goods and related services in relation to non-government controlled Ukrainian territory for activities necessary to ensure the timely delivery of humanitarian assistance activity in non-government controlled areas of Donetsk and Luhansk oblast.

Interception and Monitoring Services

The UK Russia Regulations include a prohibition on the provision of "interception and monitoring services" (i.e., any service that has as its object or effect the interception of a communication in the course of its transmission by means of a telecommunication system) to or for the benefit of, the Government of Russia.

Other Sanctions Legislation

On 25 February 2022, the Air Navigation (Restriction of Flying) (Russian Aircraft) Regulations 2022 were enacted. These Regulations provide that no aircraft on a scheduled service which is owned, chartered or operated by a person connected with Russia, or which is registered in Russia shall fly in United Kingdom airspace, including in the airspace above the United Kingdom's territorial sea, without a licence.

The Economic Crime (Transparency and Enforcement) Act 2022:

- sets up a requirement for overseas entities who own land to register their beneficial owners in certain circumstances;
- broadens the scope of unexplained wealth orders;
- removes the requirement for OFSI to pay attention to whether a person knew or had reasonable grounds to suspect they were committing a breach of UK sanctions when determining whether to impose a monetary penalty; and
- enables OFSI to publish the names of parties who breach financial sanctions even if no penalty is imposed.

On 17 March 2022, the UK Government announced that it is suspending the exchange and sharing of tax information with Russia and Belarus. The tax information is exchanged as part of global collaboration to address tax compliance risks.

Following the previous instruction of the UK Government, on 18 March 2022 the UK media regulator Ofcom concluded its investigation of RT (Russia Today) for potential breaches of its broadcasting code. The watchdog used its power to revoke RT's broadcast licence "with immediate effect."

On 1 August 2022, a new register of overseas entities owning UK property came into effect through the Economic Crime \(Transparency and Enforcement\) Act 2022, which received royal assent in March. The register is intended to target foreign criminals using UK property to launder money, including those using secretive chains of shell companies to evade sanctions.

Overseas entities who want to buy, sell or transfer property or land in the UK, must now register with UK Companies House and disclose the identity of the registrable beneficial owners, including confirmation as to whether they are on the UK Sanctions List. There are also certain retrospective requirements for those who bought property or land in the UK in the past.

Of direct relevance to the invasion of Ukraine and the ensuing imposition of various sanctions restrictions, entities that disposed of property or land in the UK after 28 February 2022 will also need to register and provide details of that disposal.

The UK Government has published provisional guidance about adding overseas entities and their registrable beneficial owners to the Register of Overseas Entities.

Sanctions against Belarus

On 5 July 2022, The Republic of Belarus \(Sanctions\) \(EU Exit\) \(Amendment\) Regulations 2022 came into force to introduce new economic, trade and transport sanctions on Belarus in response to the active facilitation by the Belarus regime of the Russian invasion of Ukraine.

The package extends some of the significant measures made against Russia to Belarus, including:

Financial sanctions

- Existing restrictions on dealing with financial instruments and providing loans have been extended to a broader range of transferable securities, money market instruments, loans and credit.
- New prohibitions have been imposed in relation to providing financial services for the purpose of foreign exchange reserve and asset management of the Central Bank of Belarus and the Ministry of Finance of Belarus and related persons.

Trade sanctions

- New export restrictions have been imposed on goods and technology relating to critical industry, quantum computing and oil refining, and luxury goods.
- Existing prohibitions have been widened in relation to dual-use goods and technology.
- New import restrictions have been imposed on mineral products, arms and related material, iron and steel.
- A range of related trade activities are also now prohibited, including technical assistance and financial services relating to certain other prohibited trade activities, and enabling or facilitating military activities.
- An existing prohibition on providing technical assistance to designated persons in relation to aircraft has been widened to include technical assistance provided in relation to ships.

Transport sanctions

- Aircraft restrictions have been widened so that it will now be an offence for certain Belarus-related aircraft to land in, or overfly, the UK, and for such aircraft to be registered in the UK.
- Shipping restrictions prohibiting certain Belarus-related or other specified ships from entering UK ports or being registered in the UK have been imposed, in addition to the provision of powers to the Secretary of State to direct the movement and detention of such ships.

To coincide with the new sanctions on Belarus, OFSI has issued two General Licences.

General Licence INT/2022/1976232 had allowed a period of until 4 August 2022 for the provisions of financial services for the purpose of winding down any derivatives, repurchase, and reverse repurchase transactions entered into prior to 5 July 2022 involving:

- National Bank of Belarus;
- Ministry of Finance of Belarus; and
- Persons owned or controlled, directly or indirectly, by the above entities, or persons acting on behalf of or at the direction of the above entities.

The General Licence has now expired.

General Licence INT/2022/1976332 allows for a 7-day wind down period in respect of, category C loans (as defined by Regulation 15B (5)) as well as transferable securities and money market instruments (as defined by Regulation 15A (2C)). The General Licence expired on 12 July 2022.

EU SANCTIONS

With respect to the designation of Bank Rossiya, Promsvyazbank and VEB.RF, there was the ability for EU Member States to authorise the release of frozen funds or economic resources belonging to those 3 banks or the making available of funds or economic resources to them, if this was necessary for the termination by 24 August 2022 of operations, contracts, or other agreements, including correspondent banking relations, concluded with those banks before 23 February 2022.

With respect to the designation of VTB Bank, Otkritie FC Bank, Novikombank and Sovcombank, there was the ability for EU Member States to authorise the release of frozen funds or economic resources belonging to those 4 banks or the making available of funds or economic resources to them, if this was necessary for the termination by 9 October 2022 of operations, contracts, or other agreements, including correspondent banking relations, concluded with those banks before 8 April 2022.

With respect to the designation of Sberbank, the EU adopted Council Regulation (EU) No. 2022/1273 of 21 July 2022 introducing the ability for EU Member States to authorise the release of frozen funds or economic resources belonging to Sberbank or the making available of funds or economic resources to it, if this is necessary for the termination by 22 August 2023 of operations, contracts, or other agreements, including correspondent banking relations, concluded with Sberbank before 21 July 2022. In addition, there was the possibility for EU Member States to authorise the release of certain frozen funds or economic resources, or the making available of certain funds or economic resources to Sberbank if this was necessary for the completion, by 31 October 2022, of an ongoing sale and transfer of proprietary rights directly or indirectly owned by Sberbank in a legal person, entity or body established in the EU.

Furthermore, with respect to the designation of Bank Rossiya, Promsvyazbank, VEB.RF, VTB Bank, Otkritie FC Bank, Novikombank, Sovcombank and Sberbank, the EU introduced the ability for EU Member States to authorise the release of certain frozen funds or economic resources, or the making available of certain funds or economic resources to these entities if this is necessary for the purchase, import or transport of agricultural and food products, including wheat and fertilisers.

With respect to the designation of PJSC KAMAZ, by Council Regulation (EU) 2022/1905 of 6 October 2022, the EU introduced the ability for EU Member States to authorise the release of certain frozen funds or economic resources, or the making available of certain funds or economic resources to PJSC KAMAZ if this is necessary for the completion of transactions, including sales, which are strictly necessary for the wind-down, by 31 December 2022, of a joint venture or similar legal arrangement concluded before 16 March 2022, involving certain sanctioned Russian state-owned or state-controlled entities listed in Council Regulation (EU) No. 833/2014.

In addition, with respect to the designation of the NSD, by Council Regulation (EU) 2022/1905 of 6 October 2022, the EU introduced the ability for EU Member States to authorise the release of certain frozen funds or economic resources, or the making available of certain funds or economic resources to the NSD if this is necessary for the termination by 7 January 2023 of operations, contracts or other agreements concluded with, or otherwise involving, the NSD before 3 June 2022.

In addition, the EU has introduced the ability for EU Member States to authorise the release of certain frozen funds or economic resources, or the making available of certain funds or economic resources to designated persons if (1) this is necessary for the sale and transfer by 31 December 2022, or within 6 months from the date of the listing of the relevant designated person, whichever is latest, of proprietary rights in a legal person, entity or body established in the EU where those proprietary rights are directly or indirectly owned by a designated person and (2) the proceeds of such sale and transfer remain frozen.

By Council Regulation (EU) No. 2022/1273 of 21 July 2022, the EU introduced the ability for EU Member States to authorise the release of certain frozen funds or economic resources if (1) this is necessary for the urgent prevention or mitigation of an event likely to have a serious and significant impact on human health and safety or the environment and (2) the proceeds resulting from the release of such economic resources are frozen.

In addition, by Council Regulation (EU) No. 2022/625 of 13 April 2022, the EU introduced a specific exemption for certain humanitarian organisations and agencies with respect to transactions necessary for exclusively humanitarian purposes in Ukraine. In addition, the EU introduced a specific ability for EU Member States to authorise other transactions necessary for exclusively humanitarian purposes in Ukraine.

By Council Regulation (EU) No. 2022/880 of 3 June 2022, the EU introduced a specific exemption with respect to funds and economic resources which are strictly necessary for the provision of electronic communication services by EU telecommunication operators, for the provision of associated facilities and services necessary for the operation, maintenance and security of such electronic communication services, in Russia, in Ukraine, in the EU, between Russia and the EU, and between Ukraine and the EU, and for data centre services in the EU.

By Council Regulation (EU) No. 2022/1273 of 21 July 2022, the EU extended the reporting obligations for EU operators, requiring them, in particular, to supply immediately any information which would facilitate compliance with Council Regulation (EU) No. 269/2014, such as (1) information on accounts and amounts frozen or (2) information held about funds and economic resources within the EU territory belonging to, owned, held or controlled by designated persons and "which have not been treated as frozen by the natural and legal persons, entities and bodies obliged to do so," to the competent authorities in the EU Member State where the EU operators are resident or located, and to transmit such information, directly or through the EU Member State, to the European Commission.

In addition, by Council Regulation (EU) No. 2022/1273 of 21 July 2022, the EU introduced an obligation for designated persons listed under Council Regulation (EU) No. 269/2014 to, in particular, report before 1 September 2022 or within 6 weeks from the date of their listing, whichever is latest, funds or economic resources within the jurisdiction of an EU Member State belonging to, owned, held or controlled by them, to the competent authority of the EU Member State where those funds or economic resources are located. It is stipulated that failure to comply with this obligation shall be considered as participation in circumventing EU sanctions measures, which may constitute a criminal offence under the laws of the EU Member States.

In its Frequently Asked Questions, the European Commission has stated that there is a presumption that if non-designated entities are owned or controlled by designated persons, their assets must be frozen and no funds or economic resources can be made available to them. The European Commission guidance states that this presumption can be rebutted on a case-by-case basis by the entity concerned, "if it can be demonstrated that some or all of its assets are outside the control of the listed person, and/or that funds or economic resources made available to it would in fact not reach the listed person."

By contrast, in its (German-language) Frequently Asked Questions, the German Central Bank (Bundesbank) has said it takes the view that if a non-designated company with its own legal personality is majority-owned by a designated person, (as translated) "this does not as a rule mean that the company's funds and economic resources are subject to the asset freeze." According to the German Central Bank, the restriction would only apply to funds and economic resources of a non-designated person if they are in fact "held" or "controlled" by a designated person; the mere fact that a designated person or entity has influence over the management of a non-designated person or entity through its (majority) ownership is not sufficient to presume that all of its assets are controlled (and frozen). According to the German Central Bank, this is particularly the case in relation to non-designated entities in the EU, as the management of such companies is also subject to EU law. In relation to non-designated entities established outside of the EU, according to the German Central Bank, the existence of a control relationship (as translated) "should be examined particularly thoroughly." In addition, with respect to the prohibition on making funds or economic resources (indirectly) available to designated persons, the German Central Bank states that (as translated) "it cannot be assumed without further ado that a payment of funds to the non-designated entity is an indirect provision of funds to the benefit of the designated person," but that "the decisive factor is whether it is to be feared that there will be a forwarding of funds received by the non-designated entity to the designated person." According to the German Central Bank, if the non-designated entity is an EU entity required to comply with applicable EU law itself, (as translated) "unless the circumstances of the individual case indicate otherwise, weighty aspects speak against onward transmission (and thus against an indirect prohibition of making available funds and economic resources)." However, if the non-designated entity owned or controlled by a designated person is a non-EU entity, the German Central Bank takes the view that (as translated) "as a rule, payments may no longer be made to this entity, because it is to be feared that these payments would indirectly benefit a designated person (prohibited indirect provision of funds)."

In its Frequently Asked Questions, the European Commission, inter alia, states that in determining whether an entity is more than 50% owned by designated persons, "one should take into account the aggregated ownership of the entity," i.e. shareholdings of several designated persons need to be aggregated. If the aggregated shareholdings of designated persons exceed 50%, the entity should be considered as "owned by listed persons." This is a new interpretation by the European Commission and contrasts directly with the position in the UK, outlined above.

By contrast, in their German-language Frequently Asked Questions, the German Federal Ministry for Economic Affairs and Climate Action and the German Central Bank (Bundesbank) take the view that, in principle, shareholdings of several designated persons are not to be aggregated when determining ownership or control. However, according to the German authorities, (as translated) "an aggregation of the ownership interests of EU designated persons in the same entity can be required in individual cases if there are indications that several EU designated persons are acting together in exercising the shareholder rights resulting from the respective ownership positions."

The Frequently Asked Questions of the European Commission also confirm previously expressed views in various Commission Opinions, including that

EU banks are required to freeze payments received from designated banks. In addition, the European Commission points out that intellectual property rights qualify as economic resources and that, in its view, working for an entity owned or controlled by a designated person or entity can be considered as making economic resources indirectly available to the designated person or entity insofar as this labour enables the designated person or entity to obtain funds, goods, or services.

In addition, with respect to situations where EU entities have designated shareholders, the European Commission states in its Frequently Asked Questions that, as shares qualify as funds, they "must be frozen if belonging to, owned, held or controlled by a listed person." Further, according to the European Commission, voting rights as such can be considered an intangible economic resource "since they can be used to obtain funds, goods or services," so that they "must be fully frozen" and "under no circumstance nor for any purpose may listed shareholders exercise directly or indirectly their voting rights in a company or fund."

With respect to the designation of the Russian National Settlement Depository (NSD), the European Commission points out in its Frequently Asked Questions that, principally, (1) "it is not possible anymore to instruct any transaction which may, directly or indirectly, result in any charge payable to the NSD or any other funds or economic resources to or for the benefit of NSD" and (2) all assets belonging to, owned, held or controlled by NSD and "funds and economic resources coming from it" (such as in the case of incoming transfers from NSD) must be frozen. In addition, in connection with the designation of the NSD, in its Frequently Asked Questions, the European Commission addresses the question of termination of Russian Depository Receipts (DRs) programs and the conversion of Russian DRs where DR holders are required to become the direct holders of the underlying Russian stock. The European Commission states that the conversion of DRs "would likely involve the NSD". Further, it states that "when NSD is involved in the conversion of DRs, even if certain fees are formally waived, it is possible that the conversion results in directly or indirectly making available funds and economic resources to or for the benefit of NSD (e.g. from settlement fees charged to third parties) – which is prohibited" due to the designation of the NSD. However, the European Commission refers to the afore-mentioned derogation enabling the EU Member States to authorise the release of certain frozen funds belonging to the NSD, or the making available of certain funds or economic resources to the NSD, if these funds or economic resources are necessary for the wind-down by 7 January 2023 of operations involving the NSD. The European Commission states that "for conversion to take place, Russian law requires the opening of a bank account in Russia" and that "even if Russian banks accept this operation, the funds would likely remain blocked on a type C account". As a number of Russian banks have been designated or otherwise been affected by EU sanctions, the European Commission concludes that "in practice it might be impossible for EU investors to comply with Russian requirements for conversion and subsequently access their securities".

Furthermore, in its Frequently Asked Questions, the European Commission addresses situations where assets of a designated person were transferred to a non-designated third person (e.g. a family member) before the designation took effect. The European Commission states that, in situations involving third persons (and possible family ties), in addition to the criteria on control set out in previous EU guidance, other elements could also be taken into account, such as the closeness of business and family ties between the designated person and the third person, the professional independence of the third person now owning the assets, previous gifts given to the third person and how they compare to the transaction in question, the frequency/regularity of previous gifts to the third person, the content of formal agreements between the designated person and the third person, the nature of the assets (e.g. whether these are shares in a company owned or controlled by the designated person).

The Frequently Asked Questions now clarify previously inconsistent guidance on whether securities held by non-designated persons which were previously issued by designated persons need to be frozen and cannot be traded. The guidance now confirms that such securities do not need to be frozen and can be freely traded with non-designated persons.

In its Frequently Asked Questions, the European Commission also addresses implications of imposed asset freeze sanctions on obligations under, and interactions in view of, Regulation (EC) No. 1907/2006 (REACH Regulation). Inter alia, it states in this context that also "property rights over data and vertebrate or non-vertebrate studies qualify as economic resources." In addition, where registrants are EU designated persons, according to the European Commission, EU operators are not permitted to comply with mandatory data sharing obligations under the REACH Regulation unless an exemption applies, or a licence is obtained.

The Frequently Asked Questions include guidance on other topics including the EU's expectations on due diligence in relation to the issues of ownership and control as outlined above.

Circumvention prohibition

Council Regulation (EU) No. 833/2014 and 269/2014 contain a broad circumvention prohibition which prohibits participating, knowingly and intentionally, in activities the object or effect of which is to circumvent the measures set out in the relevant Council Regulation.

In response to a parliamentary question, on 18 October 2022 the High Representative of the Union for Foreign Affairs and Security Policy confirmed the following on behalf of the European Commission:

- As EU sanctions are not retroactive, the fact that a person may have transferred the ownership of an asset to a third person before being designated as subject to EU sanctions does not constitute in itself a violation of EU sanctions.
- However, if the person maintains control over the asset after the entry into force of the designation, then persons under EU jurisdiction are required to treat it as frozen.
- If a certain scheme was created in order to assist a person to evade the effects of its possible future designation, then participation in that scheme after the designation is in force can amount to circumvention.

In addition, the High Representative of the Union for Foreign Affairs and Security Policy stated that the European Commission is to conduct a review of practices that seek to circumvent and undermine sanctions.

By Council Regulation (EU) 2022/1905 of 6 October 2022, the EU introduced an additional criterion for the designation of individuals, entities and bodies: The EU can now also designate persons who facilitate infringements of the prohibition against circumvention of the Russia-related EU sanctions regulations. In a press statement on 28 September 2022, the European Commission stated with respect to this new criterion that, "for example", if individuals "buy goods in the European Union, bring them to third countries and then to Russia, this would be a circumvention of our sanctions, and those individuals could be listed".

In its Frequently Asked Questions, the European Commission, inter alia, addresses certain aspects with respect to the circumvention prohibition.

Transactions with certain Russian state-owned entities

By Council Regulation (EU) No. 2022/428 of 15 March 2022, the EU introduced a prohibition on directly or indirectly engaging in "any transactions" with (1) certain listed Russian state-owned entities, (2) any entity or body established outside the EU directly or indirectly more than 50% owned by one of these listed entities, or (3) any entity or body acting on behalf or at the direction of any of these entities or bodies. Council Regulation (EU) 2022/1904 of 6 October 2022, extended the list of Russian state-owned entities, which now includes the following entities:

- OPK Oboronprom
- United Aircraft Corporation
- Uralvagonzavod
- Rosneft
- Transneft
- Gazprom Neft
- Almaz-Antey
- Kamaz
- Rostec (Russian Technologies State Corporation)
- JSC Po Sevmasht
- Sovcomflot
- United Shipbuilding Corporation
- Russian Maritime Register of Shipping (RMRS)

Exemptions apply with respect to (1) transactions which are strictly necessary for the direct or indirect purchase, import or transport of natural gas, titanium, aluminium, copper, nickel, palladium and iron ore from or through Russia into the Union, a country member of the European Economic Area, Switzerland, or the Western Balkans, (2) transactions related to energy projects outside Russia in which the Russian state-owned or state-controlled entities listed above are a minority shareholder, (3) transactions, including sales, which are strictly necessary for the wind-down, by 31 December 2022, of a joint venture or similar legal arrangement concluded before 16 March 2022, involving the aforementioned entities, (4) transactions related to the provision of electronic communication services, data center services, and the provision of services and equipment necessary for their operation, maintenance, security, including the provision of firewalls, and call center services, to the Russian state-owned or state-controlled entities listed above, (5) unless otherwise prohibited under Council Regulation (EU) No. 833/2014, transactions which are strictly necessary for the direct or indirect purchase, import or transport of oil, including refined petroleum products, from or through Russia, (6) transactions which are necessary for the purchase, import or transport of pharmaceutical, medical, agricultural and food products, including wheat and fertilisers whose import, purchase and transport is allowed under Council Regulation (EU) No. 833/2014, and (7) under certain circumstances, transactions which are strictly necessary to ensure access to judicial, administrative or arbitral proceedings in an EU Member State, as well as for the recognition or enforcement of a judgment or an arbitration award rendered in an EU Member State. Furthermore, an exemption applied to transactions for the purchase, import or transport into the EU of certain listed coal and other solid fossil fuels until 10 August 2022.

Furthermore, with respect to entities listed before 6 October 2022 (now the entities under "Part A" of the relevant Annex to the relevant regulation – i.e. all of the above entities except for the Russian Maritime Register of Shipping), an exemption applies to the reception of payments due by the relevant entities pursuant to contracts performed before 15 May 2022. In addition, with respect to such entities, an exemption applied to the execution until 15 May 2022 of contracts concluded before 16 March 2022 (or ancillary contracts necessary for the execution of such contracts).

With respect to the Russian Maritime Register of Shipping, exemptions apply to (1) the execution until 8 January 2023 of contracts concluded with the Russian Maritime Register of Shipping before 7 October 2022 (or of ancillary contracts necessary for the execution of such contracts) and (2) the reception of payments due by the Russian Maritime Register of Shipping pursuant to contracts performed before 8 January 2023.

By Council Regulation (EU) 2022/1904 of 6 October 2022, the EU introduced a prohibition on holding any posts in the governing bodies of any of the listed Russian state-owned entities, any entity or body established outside the EU directly or indirectly more than 50% owned by one of the listed entities, or any entity or body acting on behalf or at the direction of any of these entities or bodies. This applies as from 22 October 2022.

Further, by Council Regulation (EU) 2022/1904 of 6 October 2022, the EU withdrew its recognition of the Russian Maritime Register of Shipping under Regulation (EC) No 391/2009 and Directive (EU) 2016/1629, thereby enabling EU Member States to withdraw authorisations granted to the Russian Maritime Register of Shipping.

In its Frequently Asked Questions, the European Commission states that the prohibition applies to (i) the conclusion of new contracts with the specified entities after 16 March 2022, (ii) the execution of existing contracts with the specified entities after 15 May 2022 and (iii) "the provision of any sort of economically valuable benefit (such as services or payments), even in the absence of such contractual relationship."

In addition, the European Commission also addresses implications on obligations under, and interactions in view of, Regulation (EC) No. 1907/2006 (REACH Regulation). Inter alia, it states that EU operators are principally not permitted to comply with mandatory data sharing obligations under the REACH Regulation if the potential registrant falls within the list of the aforementioned entities.

In its (German-language) Frequently Asked Questions, the German Federal Office for Economic Affairs and Export Control (Bundesamt für Wirtschaft und Ausfuhrkontrolle, "BAFA") takes the view, inter alia, that EU subsidiaries of the listed Russian state-owned or state-controlled entities do not fall within the scope of the prohibition. BAFA argues that, with respect to subsidiaries, the scope of application is limited to non-EU subsidiaries and that the mentioning of entities acting on behalf or at the direction of the listed entities or their non-EU subsidiaries only refers to "other entities that are not in an affiliated group with the listed entities." So far, the European Commission has not taken a similar view in its guidance.

Specialised financial messaging services (such as SWIFT)

The EU introduced an exclusion of certain listed Russian banks from the SWIFT messaging system. Precisely, the EU introduced a prohibition on providing specialised financial messaging services, which are used to exchange financial data, to the following banks or to any legal person, entity or body established in Russia whose proprietary rights are directly or indirectly owned for more than 50% by these banks:

- Bank Otkritie (as of 12 March 2022)
- Novikombank (as of 12 March 2022)
- Promsvyazbank (as of 12 March 2022)
- Bank Rossiya (as of 12 March 2022)
- Sovcombank (as of 12 March 2022)
- Vnesheconombank (VEB) (as of 12 March 2022)
- VTB Bank (as of 12 March 2022)
- Sberbank (as of 14 June 2022)
- Credit Bank of Moscow (as of 14 June 2022)
- Joint Stock Company Russian Agricultural Bank, JSC Rosselkhozbank (as of 14 June 2022)

In addition, the EU introduced the same prohibition with respect to the following Belarusian banks or any legal person, entity or body established in Belarus whose proprietary rights are directly or indirectly owned for more than 50% by these banks:

- Belagroprombank (as of 20 March 2022)
- Bank Dabrabyt (as of 20 March 2022)
- Development Bank of Belarus (as of 20 March 2022)
- Belinvestbank (Belarusian Bank for Development and Reconstruction) (as of 14 June 2022)

There is no exemption or possibility for EU Member State authorities to grant authorisations for relevant services.

Financial and Capital Markets Restrictions

Council Regulation (EU) No. 2022/262 of 23 February 2022 amended existing sanctions in Council Regulation (EU) No. 833/2014 (imposing so-called sectoral sanctions) as follows:

- a prohibition on purchasing, selling or otherwise dealing with transferable securities and money-market instruments issued after 9 March 2022 by (1) Russia and its government, (2) the Russian Central Bank or (3) entities / bodies acting on behalf / at the direction of the Russian Central Bank; and
- a prohibition on making / being part of arrangements to make any new loans or credit after 23 February 2022 to (1) Russia and its government, (2) the Russian Central Bank or (3) entities / bodies acting on behalf / at the direction of the Russian Central Bank (without any maturity limits for loans / credit applying in this context).

In this context, in its Frequently Asked Questions, the European Commission states that EU sanctions principally do "not impose any impediments to receive income payments, dividend payments or principal repayments of existing securities from Russian issuers," such as coupon payments by the Russian state on its Eurobonds.

In addition, on 25 February 2022, by Council Regulation (EU) No. 2022/328 the EU significantly extended the existing sanctions relating to the financial sector. In particular:

- in addition to the existing sectoral sanctions applying to Sberbank, VTB Bank, Gazprombank, Vnesheconombank (VEB) and Rosselkhozbank, OPK Oboronprom, United Aircraft Corporation, Uralvagonzavod, Rosneft, Transneft and Gazprom Neft, it is now prohibited to purchase, sell, provide investment services for or assistance in the issuance of, or otherwise deal with any transferable securities and money-market instruments issued by those entities (or by non-EU entities more than 50% owned by them or by entities acting on their behalf / at their direction) after 12 April 2022 (without any maturity threshold applying).
- the same prohibition applies to the following entities (and to non-EU entities more than 50% owned by them and to entities acting on their behalf / at their direction):
 - Alfa Bank
 - Bank Otkritie
 - Bank Rossiya
 - Promsvyazbank
 - Almaz-Antey
 - Kamaz
 - Novorossiysk Commercial Sea Port
 - Rostec (Russian Technologies and State Corporation)
 - Russian Railways
 - JSC PO Sevmash
 - Sovcomflot

- United Shipbuilding Corporation
- Russian Maritime Register of Shipping (added to the list by Regulation (EU) 2022/394 of 9 March 2022)
- there is also a new prohibition on making or being part of any arrangement to make a new loan or credit to any of the aforementioned entities (or to non-EU entities more than 50% owned by them or entities acting on their behalf / at their direction) – again without any maturity threshold applying. This restriction applies as of 26 February 2022.

Certain exemptions apply, such as under certain circumstances, with respect to loans intended for providing emergency funding for EU entities more than 50% owned by Sberbank, VTB Bank, Gazprombank, VEB or Rosselkhozbank.

In its Frequently Asked Questions, the European Commission confirms, inter alia, that the prohibition on dealing with transferable securities also applies in relation to derivative products where the underlying securities fall within the scope of the prohibition. Furthermore, the European Commission states that none of the affected shares issued after the relevant dates may be traded via multi-asset products such as ETFs.

Further, the new sanctions introduce the following additional prohibitions related to capital markets activities:

- a prohibition as of 12 April 2022 on listing or providing services on trading venues registered or recognised in the EU for the transferable securities of any entity established in Russia with over 50% public ownership.

In its Frequently Asked Questions, the European Commission clarifies that trading venues can no longer list and provide services in relation to transferable securities of any legal person, entity or body established in Russia and with over 50% public ownership as of 12 April 2022, irrespective of their date of issuance. Furthermore, the European Commission states, inter alia, that the prohibition "does not require EU benchmark administrators to withdraw or exclude securities from their indices," but that, nonetheless, "product manufacturers making available products tracking such benchmarks will be subject to restrictions on the underlying securities which are themselves subject to sanctions," so that "benchmark administrators should adapt their benchmark compositions accordingly."

- a prohibition on EU central securities depositories ("CSDs") providing relevant services (core services, non-banking-type ancillary services and banking-type ancillary services as defined in the Annex of Council Regulation (EU) No. 909/2014) for transferable securities issued after 12 April 2022 to any Russian national or natural person residing in Russia or any entity established in Russia. The prohibition does not apply to nationals of, or to natural persons having a temporary or permanent residence permit in, an EU Member State, a country member of the European Economic Area or Switzerland.

In its Frequently Asked Questions, the European Commission confirmed, inter alia, that this provision applies to relevant services provided to any Russian national or natural person residing in Russia or any legal person, entity or body established in Russia in relation to transferable securities issued after 12 April 2022. In addition, the European Commission states that, where securities accounts opened with the CSDs do not identify the underlying clients but only the custodian, the CSDs "shall use all relevant information that is available to them to ensure they can identify whether the underlying clients are Russian nationals or natural persons residing in Russia or legal persons, entities or bodies established in Russia" and that, "to the extent possible, CSDs shall also cooperate with their participants in that respect."

- a prohibition on selling transferable securities denominated in any official currency of an EU Member State issued after 12 April 2022 or units in collective investment undertakings providing exposure to such securities, to any Russian national or natural person residing in Russia or any entity established in Russia. The prohibition does not apply to nationals of, or to natural persons having a temporary or permanent residence permit in, an EU Member State, a country member of the European Economic Area or Switzerland.

In its Frequently Asked Questions, the European Commission states that this prohibition does not apply in principal to an entity owned by Russian citizens but registered in a country other than Russia. However, in this context the European Commission explicitly states that the prohibition "should be read in conjunction with Article 12 which prohibits EU operators from knowingly and intentionally circumventing the measures in the Regulation," which is why "EU operators should (...) exert enhanced due diligence to make sure that they are not selling securities denominated in the official currency of a Member State to an entity owned by a Russian national or a natural person residing in Russia." In addition, with respect to units in collective investment undertakings, the European Commission states that "any ownership, investment or 'exposure' to transferable securities issued after 12 April 2022 by units in collective investment undertakings brings such units in collective investment undertakings within the scope of the prohibition" (irrespective of the percentage such transferable securities represent of the fund's assets). Furthermore, the European Commission states that allocating free shares to Russian employees as part of variable remuneration schemes does not amount to a sale of securities and, as such, does not fall within the scope of the prohibition.

- In addition, by Council Regulation (EU) No. 2022/576, the EU introduced a prohibition on selling, supplying, transferring or exporting banknotes denominated in any official currency of an EU Member State to Russia or to any natural or legal person, entity or body in Russia, including the Russian government and the Russian Central Bank, or for use in Russia. Exemptions apply under certain limited circumstances, such as where such sale, supply etc. is necessary for the personal use of natural persons travelling to Russia or members of their immediate families travelling with them.

In its Frequently Asked Questions, the European Commission clarifies that the prohibition only applies to physical banknotes, but not to transfers via bank accounts. Furthermore, the European Commission states, inter alia, that the exemption allowing the supply of EUR banknotes for personal use of natural persons travelling to Russia or members of their immediate families travelling to them, "should be interpreted in narrow terms" and that for the consideration of the term "personal use" the determining factor is the "non-commercial nature." According to the European Commission, in cases where Russian companies are closing down and returning to Russia with cash belonging to the company and as regards employees of such companies "there is no reason to allow Russians to repatriate their savings in Russia." Furthermore, the European Commission states that financial institutions are not expected to change their practices with respect to ATM usage, card caps for cash withdrawals or card usage, "but to heighten their vigilance and be able to detect sudden increases of banknotes withdrawal/requests." In addition, it states that the prohibition also covers subsidiaries of Russian entities in the EU "to the extent that there are grounds to believe that the banknotes would reach the parent companies or other Russian entities," pointing out that "in complying with the prohibition, EU operators have an obligation of result."

Russian Central Bank

On 28 February 2022, the EU adopted Council Regulation (EU) No. 2022/334 (which amends Council Regulation (EU) No. 833/2014), and which significantly expands the sanctions on the Russian Central Bank, prohibiting any transactions related to the management of reserves as well as of assets of the Russian Central Bank and any transactions with any entity / body acting on behalf / at the direction of the Russian Central Bank, such as the Russian National Wealth Fund. The competent authorities in the Member States of the EU may grant authorisations for such transactions only if it is strictly necessary to ensure the financial stability of the EU as a whole or of the EU Member State concerned.

In its Frequently Asked Questions, the European Commission, inter alia, states that paying lawfully due taxes in Russia does not amount to enabling the Russian Central Bank to manage its reserves or assets, so that the aforementioned prohibition "does therefore not apply to the payment of taxes."

Russian Direct Investment Fund

By Council Regulation (EU) No. 2022/345, which was published on 2 March 2022, the EU introduced a prohibition on investing, participating or otherwise contributing to projects co-financed by the Russian Direct Investment Fund.

There is a possibility for Member State authorities to authorise a relevant investment, participation or contribution if such is due under contracts concluded before 2 March 2022 or ancillary contracts necessary for the execution of such contracts.

In its (German-language) Frequently Asked Questions, the German Central Bank (Bundesbank) takes the view, inter alia, that the prohibition with respect to projects co-financed by the RDIF does not apply to "participations already existing at the time of entry into force" (as translated) of the prohibition. However, it states that "new investments, participations or other contributions are prohibited" without a licence, also "if they are made within the framework of existing relationships or build on such relationships" (as translated).

In its (German-language) Frequently Asked Questions, the German Federal Ministry for Economic Affairs and Climate Action states that, in principle, EU operators can continue to exercise shareholder rights resulting from a participation already existing at the time of the entry into force of the prohibition (such as a claim to profit distribution, voting rights at the shareholders' meeting or control rights). However, according to the German Federal Ministry for Economic Affairs and Climate Action, the exercise of shareholder rights may not be used to contribute to a change in the shareholding structure (e.g. an increase of the own shareholding or the share of the Russian Direct Investment Fund). Exceptions could only be conceivable in individual cases, e.g. if an obligation to make additional contributions was already bindingly agreed in the context of the old investment.

Furthermore, in its (German-language) Frequently Asked Questions the German Central Bank (Bundesbank) points out that due to the very broad term "co-financing" it can be assumed that the participation or similar of the Russian Direct Investment Fund does not have to meet any special requirements for the prohibition to apply, in particular that it does not have to reach a certain threshold value, and that also "indirect 'co-financing'" (as translated) should suffice.

Deposits

The EU introduced a prohibition on accepting any deposits from Russian nationals, natural persons residing in Russia, entities established in Russia or (due to an extension of the scope of the provision introduced by Council Regulation (EU) 2022/1269 of 21 July 2022) entities established outside the EU which are directly or indirectly majority owned by Russian nationals or natural persons residing in Russia if the total value of the deposit of these persons / entities exceeds EUR 100,000 (per credit institution). Further, the EU has introduced a prohibition on providing any crypto-asset wallet, account or custody services to Russian nationals or natural persons residing in Russia, or legal persons, entities or bodies established in Russia, irrespective of any value thresholds – a previously applicable threshold for the prohibition to apply of the total value of crypto-assets of the natural or legal person, entity or body per wallet, account or custody provider of more than EUR 10,000 was abolished by Council Regulation (EU) 2022/1904 of 6 October 2022. The aforementioned prohibitions do not apply to nationals of, or to natural persons having a temporary or permanent residence permit in, an EU Member State, a country member of the European Economic Area or Switzerland. Initially, an exemption also applied to deposits necessary for non-prohibited cross-border trade in goods and services between the EU and Russia. However, by Council Regulation (EU) No. 2022/1269 of 21 July 2021, this exemption was abolished. It is now required to obtain an authorisation from the EU Member States for accepting relevant deposits necessary for such non-prohibited cross-border trade.

In its Frequently Asked Questions, the European Commission clarifies that the restriction applies "per banking licence." Furthermore, it states, inter alia, that the prohibition principally also comprises subsidiaries of EU operators incorporated in Russia. Further, irrespective of the extension of the prohibition to non-EU entities established outside the EU which are directly or indirectly majority owned by Russian nationals or natural persons residing in Russia, the European Commission states that "the provision should be read in conjunction with Article 12 of Council Regulation 833/2014 which prohibits to participate knowingly and intentionally in activities the object or effect of which is to circumvent prohibitions in the Regulation," so that where deposit are made to accounts of an entity (apparently of an EU entity) owned by a Russian national or a natural person residing in Russia, "EU operators should (...) exert enhanced due diligence." In addition, according to the European Commission, non-EU entities which are directly or indirectly majority owned by Russian nationals or natural persons residing in Russia shall benefit from the relevant exemption if their relevant owners have a citizenship or residence rights of an EU/EEA member state or Switzerland, unless the non-EU entity is established in Russia.

For the purposes of the prohibition, a "deposit" means a credit balance which results from funds left in an account or from temporary situations deriving from normal banking transactions and which a credit institution is required to repay under the legal and contractual conditions applicable, including a fixed-term deposit and a savings deposit, but excluding a credit balance where: (1) its existence can only be proven by a financial instrument, unless it is a savings product which is evidenced by a certificate of deposit made out to a named person and which exists in an EU Member State on 2 July 2014; (2) its principal is not repayable at par; or (3) its principal is only repayable at par under a particular guarantee or agreement provided by the credit institution or a third party.

We consider that any account balance is therefore a deposit. The currency is not relevant.

In its Frequently Asked Questions, the European Commission states, inter alia, that transactions or corporate events resulting in a positive cash flow, and thereby becoming a deposit as defined in the Regulation, into a relevant account would principally fall within the prohibition. In addition, the European Commission explains that payments of interest or dividend should not be accepted if the threshold of EUR 100,000 is already exceeded. In the view of the European Commission, where and how the interest or dividend payment should be made to in such cases "would need to be decided by the parties involved."

The restriction does not prohibit transfers from existing accounts (of otherwise non-sanctioned persons), nor does it require that existing deposits over the threshold are reduced. But for accounts already over that threshold, effectively no additional funds can be received into those accounts.

Under certain circumstances, the competent authorities in the Member States of the EU may grant relevant authorisations, inter alia, as stated above, if deposits are necessary for non-prohibited cross-border trade in goods and services between the EU and Russia.

Information obligations have also been introduced, requiring credit institutions to provide their competent national authorities, by no later than 27 May 2022, with lists of relevant deposits exceeding EUR 100,000 (the extension of the prohibition to deposits from entities established outside the EU which are directly or indirectly majority owned by Russian nationals or Russian residents has not yet been reflected in the provision on the information obligation, which is probably due to an editorial oversight and may be corrected in future amendments). In its Frequently Asked Questions, the European Commission states that the information to be reported "shall be provided as soon as possible" so that "credit institutions should take proper action to swiftly collect the information." According to the European Commission, "where credit institutions are not able to provide this information by the set deadline because the information is still being collected, they shall inform the respective competent authorities of the delay and its reasons, and agree on a reasonable deadline with the competent authorities." The European Banking Authority

(EBA) published a template for such reporting and the European Commission encourages credit institutions to apply it.

There is the broad circumvention prohibition, which means deposits from non-Russian entities on behalf of Russian persons or entities should also be prohibited.

Services with respect to trusts and similar legal arrangements

By Council Regulation (EU) 2022/576 of 8 April 2022, the EU introduced a prohibition on registering, providing a registered office, business or administrative address as well as management services to, a trust or any similar legal arrangement having as a trustor or a beneficiary (1) Russian nationals or natural persons residing in Russia, (2) legal persons, entities or bodies established in Russia, (3) legal persons, entities or bodies whose proprietary rights are directly or indirectly owned for more than 50% by Russian nationals, natural persons residing in Russia or legal persons, entities or bodies established in Russia, (4) legal persons, entities or bodies controlled by the aforementioned natural or legal persons, entities or bodies, or (5) a natural or legal person, entity or body acting on behalf or at the direction of the aforementioned natural or legal persons, entities or bodies.

In addition, by Council Regulation (EU) 2022/879 of 3 June 2022, the EU introduced a prohibition as of 5 July 2022 on acting as, or arranging for another person to act as, a trustee, nominee shareholder, director, secretary or a similar position, for such trusts or similar legal arrangements (previously, this prohibition applied as of 10 May 2022, and has now been amended).

In its Frequently Asked Questions, the European Commission states that as there is "no single definition of what qualifies as a 'similar legal arrangement,'" it "would be relevant to assess such an arrangement's structure or function as compared to that of a trust, such as the establishment of a fiduciary bond between parties and a separation or disconnection of legal and beneficial ownership of assets." The European Commission points out that foundations fall within the scope of the prohibition as they "are regarded as the civil law equivalent to a common law trust", so that "persons holding equivalent positions in foundations as settlors and beneficiaries should be construed as being subject to the (...) restrictions."

Further, according to the European Commission, the qualification of undertakings for the collective investment in transferable securities (UCITS) or alternative investment fund (AIF) structures needs to be assessed based on the individual circumstances, "such as the nature, structure, administration function, location/custody of assets, discretionary/non-discretionary mandate of the fund in question and the beneficial owners of the assets." The European Commission states that although UCITS should normally not be deemed to be covered by the term trust or similar legal arrangements since UCITS are regulated financial products, "as UCITS may be constituted in accordance with contract law (as common funds, including unit trusts managed by management companies), trust law (as unit trusts), or statute (as investment companies)", assessing the structure or function of UCITS may be necessary, "especially where UCITS have been constituted in accordance with trust law."

In addition, according to the European Commission "the generic term AIF structures" may, in principle, be deemed to fall within the notion of trusts or similar legal arrangements, in particular "where AIFs are constituted in accordance with trust law or contract law, for non-EU AIFs, AIFs with no legal personality, self-managed AIFs and certain offshore AIF structures of third countries which may happen to be largely unsupervised and non-transparent or non-reporting vehicles with opaque nature/function of the management mandate, assets and their location and/or beneficial owners."

In addition, according to the European Commission, as the provision of the prohibited services may be necessary for the operation of relevant trusts or similar legal arrangements which are already established, "the prohibition requires their dissolution, the resurfacing of all assets as well as the restitution of assets to the trustor or distribution to beneficiaries" (additional restrictions apply if a settlor or beneficiary of a trust or similar legal arrangement is a person subject to an asset freeze under EU sanctions).

An exemption applies when the trustor or beneficiary is a national of, or holds a temporary or permanent residence permit in, an EU Member State, a country member of the European Economic Area or Switzerland. In its Frequently Asked Questions, the European Commission states that this exemption provides that prohibitions do not apply where a trust or similar legal arrangement has "only one trustor or one beneficiary" who is a national of an EU Member State or has a temporary or permanent residence permit in an EU Member State.

Further, an exemption applied to operations that were strictly necessary for the termination by 5 July 2022 of contracts which were not compliant with the aforementioned prohibitions concluded before 9 April 2022 or of ancillary contracts necessary for the execution of such contracts.

In addition, EU Member States may authorise services concerned by the aforementioned two prohibitions if this is necessary for (1) humanitarian purposes, (2) civil society activities that directly promote democracy, human rights or the rule of law in Russia or (3) the operation of trusts whose purpose is the administration of occupational pension schemes, insurance policies or employee share scheme, charities, amateur sports clubs, and funds for minors or vulnerable adults.

Further, EU Member States may authorise continuing beyond 5 July 2022 to act as, or arrange for another person to act as, a trustee, nominee shareholder, director, secretary or a similar position, for relevant trusts or relevant similar legal arrangements, provided that the service providers do not accept from, or make available to, the relevant trustors or beneficiaries referred to in the prohibitions any funds or economic resources, directly or indirectly, or otherwise provide such persons with any benefit from assets placed in a trust. In its Frequently Asked Questions, the European Commission states that "this means that a trust or similar legal arrangement can continue to operate, for instance, where there are several beneficiaries including EU persons" (based on an individual authorisation by the relevant EU Member State). In addition, the European Commission states that where beneficiaries of trusts include both Russian nationals and non-Russian nationals, the aforementioned services could be provided or continue if the persons referred to in the prohibitions "are removed from the trust or similar legal arrangement." Furthermore, there was the ability for EU Member States to authorise continuing to hold relevant positions for relevant funds for the completion by 5 September 2022 of operations strictly necessary for the termination of contracts concluded before 9 April 2022, provided that such operations were initiated before 11 May 2022.

Accounting, auditing, bookkeeping, consulting/IT consulting, architectural, engineering and legal advisory services

By Council Regulation (EU) No. 2022/879 of 3 June 2022, the EU introduced a prohibition on providing, directly or indirectly, accounting, auditing, bookkeeping, tax consulting, business and management consulting or public relations services to (1) the Russian government or (2) legal persons, entities or bodies established in Russia. By Council Regulation (EU) No. 2022/1904 of 6 October 2022, the EU extended the prohibition to the provision of architectural and engineering services, legal advisory services and IT consultancy services.

According to the recitals of Council Regulation (EU) No. 2022/1904 of 6 October 2022, the term "architectural and engineering services" covers also "integrated engineering services, urban planning and landscape architectural services and engineering-related scientific and technical consulting services." The provision of technical assistance related to goods exported to Russia shall however remain allowed as long as the sale, supply, transfer or export of such goods is not prohibited under the EU sanctions against Russia. The term "IT consultancy services" shall cover "consultancy services related to the installation of computer hardware, including assistance services to the clients in the installation of computer hardware (i.e. physical equipment) and computer networks, and software implementation services, including all services involving consultancy services on, development of and implementation of software." The term "IT consultancy services" is defined by reference to the United Nations' Central Products Classification "CPC" of 1991 (Statistical Office of the United Nations, Statistical Papers, Series M, No 77, CPC prov., 1991), according to which "software implementation services" include, in particular, (1) systems and software consulting services, (2) systems analysis services, (3) systems design services, (4) programming services and (5) systems maintenance services (the United Nations CPC of 1991 further specifies those categories).

The term "legal advisory services" shall cover "the provision of legal advice to customers in non-contentious matters, including commercial transactions, involving the application or interpretation of law; participation with or on behalf of clients in commercial transactions, negotiations and other dealings with third parties; and preparation, execution and verification of legal documents." However, it shall not include "any representation, advice, preparation of documents or verification of documents in the context of legal representation services, namely in matters or proceedings before administrative agencies, courts or other duly constituted official tribunals, or in arbitral or mediation proceedings."

In its Frequently Asked Questions, the European Commission states, inter alia, that lobbying services could also constitute public relations services and therefore fall within the scope of the prohibition. However, inter alia, "activities by employers and trade unions acting as participants in social dialogue, activities carried out by individuals acting in a strictly personal capacity and not in association with others, and spontaneous, purely private or social meetings and meetings taking place in the context of an administrative procedure established by the treaties or legal acts of the EU" shall not be covered by the definition of lobbying activities and therefore fall outside the scope of the prohibition. In addition, the European Commission points out that EU subsidiaries of Russian entities are prohibited from providing the relevant services to their Russian parent entities and that employees of Russian entities who are EU nationals or persons located in the EU are also prohibited from providing the relevant services to their Russian employers in their capacity as employees. Further, the European Commission states that, generally, it is not prohibited to provide relevant services to entities not established in Russia, even if they are subsidiaries of entities established in Russia. However, the prohibition on "indirectly" providing the relevant services "means for example that it is prohibited for an EU auditing services provider to provide services to EU or other non-Russian entities that are subsidiaries of entities established in Russia if those services would actually be for the benefit of the parent company established in Russia". In addition, the European Commission in this context points to the broad circumvention prohibition.

Exemptions apply to the provision of services that are (1) strictly necessary for the exercise of the right of defence in judicial proceedings and the right to an effective legal remedy, (2) strictly necessary to ensure access to judicial, administrative or arbitral proceedings in an EU Member State, or for the recognition or enforcement of a judgment or an arbitration award rendered in an EU Member State, provided that such provision of services is consistent with the objectives of the EU sanctions against Russia, or (3) intended for the exclusive use of entities established in Russia that are owned by, or solely or jointly controlled by, an entity incorporated or constituted under the law of an EU Member State, a country member of the European Economic Area, of Switzerland, the US, Japan, the UK or South Korea (so-called "partner countries").

In addition, with respect to architectural and engineering services, legal advisory services and IT consultancy services, exemptions apply to the provision of services (1) that are strictly necessary for the termination by 8 January 2023 of contracts which were not compliant with this prohibition concluded before 7 October 2022 (or of ancillary contracts necessary for the execution of such contracts), (2) necessary for public health emergencies, the urgent prevention or mitigation of an event likely to have a serious and significant impact on human health and safety or the environment, or as a response to natural disasters, or (3) under certain conditions, necessary for software updates for non-military use and for a non-military end user. Further, with respect to accounting, auditing, bookkeeping or tax consulting services, business and management consulting or public relations services, an exemption applied to the provision of services that were strictly necessary for the termination by 5 July 2022 of contracts which were not compliant with this prohibition concluded before 4 June 2022 (or of ancillary contracts necessary for the execution of such contracts).

In its Frequently Asked Questions, the European Commission states, inter alia, in relation to the afore-mentioned exemptions that the terms "strictly" and "exclusive" are used in this context to make sure that the exemptions "are correctly interpreted by EU operators when assessing whether they can rely on these provisions" and that these exemptions "are to be interpreted restrictively". According to the European Commission, the term "strictly" means "that there is no other way to terminate contracts or to exercise the right of defense other than to rely on the provision of these otherwise prohibited services".

In addition, EU Member State authorities may authorise relevant services if this is necessary for (1) humanitarian purposes, (2) civil society activities that directly promote democracy, human rights or the rule of law in Russia, (3) the functioning of diplomatic and consular representations of the EU and of the EU Member States or partner countries in Russia, (4) ensuring critical energy supply within the EU and the purchase, import or transport into the EU of titanium, aluminium, copper, nickel, palladium and iron ore, (5) ensuring the continuous operation of infrastructures, hardware and software which are critical for human health and safety, or the safety of the environment, (6) the establishment, operation, maintenance, fuel supply and retreatment and safety of civil nuclear capabilities, and the continuation of design, construction and commissioning required for the completion of civil nuclear facilities, the supply of precursor material for the production of medical radioisotopes and similar medical applications, or critical technology for environmental radiation monitoring, as well as for civil nuclear cooperation, in particular in the field of research and development, or (7) the provision of electronic communication services by EU telecommunication operators necessary for the operation, maintenance and security, including cybersecurity, of electronic communication services, in Russia, in Ukraine, in the EU, between Russia and the EU, and between Ukraine and the EU, and for data centre services in the EU.

Credit Rating Services

The EU introduced a prohibition on the provision of credit rating services to or on any Russian national or natural person residing in Russia or any entity or body established in Russia. Furthermore, the EU introduced a prohibition as of 15 April 2022 on the provision of access to any subscription services in relation to credit rating activities, to any Russian national or natural person residing in Russia or any entity or body established in Russia. An exemption applies with respect to nationals of an EU Member State or natural persons having a temporary or permanent residence permit in an EU Member State.

In its Frequently Asked Questions, the European Commission states, inter alia, that the prohibition also extends to any service encompassing market forecasts, estimates of economic trends, pricing analysis and other general data analysis as well as related distribution services to any Russian national or natural person residing in Russia or any legal person, entity or body established in Russia. In addition, it states that the prohibition applies to any entities delivering the services or performing the activities covered by the prohibition and not only to persons subject to Regulation (EC) No 1060/2009 on credit rating agencies (CRA Regulation).

Energy Industry

By Council Regulation (EU) No. 2022/328 of 25 February 2022 and Council Regulation (EU) No. 2022/576 of 8 April 2022, the EU introduced a prohibition on the sale, supply, transfer or export of certain listed goods and technology suited for use in oil refining and liquefaction of natural gas to any natural or legal person, entity or body in Russia or for use in Russia. Council Regulation (EU) No. 2022/1269 of 21 July 2022 amended the list of relevant goods and technology.

The prohibition also applies to the provision of technical assistance, brokering services and other services as well as of financing or financial assistance related to the listed goods and technology.

An exemption applied to the execution until 27 May 2022 of contracts concluded before 26 February 2022. The competent authorities in the Member States of the EU may, under very limited circumstances, also grant authorisations to relevant sales, exports etc.

By Council Regulation (EU) No. 2022/428 of 15 March 2022, the EU extended existing export restrictions for certain listed equipment, technology and services for the energy industry in Russia. It is now prohibited, inter alia, to sell, supply, transfer or export, directly or indirectly, listed goods or technology suited for the energy industry to any natural or legal person, entity or body in Russia or for use in Russia. In addition, there is a prohibition on providing related technical assistance, brokering services or other services, financing or financial assistance.

Exemptions apply to (1) the sale, supply, transport or export or the provision of technical or financial assistance necessary for the transport of natural gas and oil, including refined petroleum products, from or through Russia into the EU (unless such activities are otherwise prohibited under Council Regulation (EU) No. 833/2014, as amended), and (2) the urgent prevention or mitigation of an event likely to have a serious and significant impact on human health and safety or the environment. An exemption also applies to the provision of insurance or reinsurance to entities or bodies incorporated or constituted under the law of an EU Member State with regard to their activities outside the energy sector in Russia. An exemption applied to the execution until 17 September 2022 of an obligation arising from a contract concluded before 16 March 2022 (or ancillary contracts necessary for the execution of such a contract) provided that the competent EU Member State authority had been informed at least 5 working days in advance. In addition, EU Member State authorities may authorise the sale, supply, transfer or export and the provision of technical or financial assistance if (1) it is necessary for ensuring critical energy supply within the EU, or (2) it is intended for the exclusive use of entities owned, or solely or jointly controlled, by an entity or body incorporated or constituted under the law of an EU Member State.

By Council Regulation (EU) No.2022/428 of 15 March 2022, the EU further introduced comprehensive investment prohibitions with respect to the Russian energy sector. It is now prohibited, inter alia, to (1) acquire any new or extend any existing participation in any entity or body incorporated or constituted under the law of Russia or any other third country and operating in the energy sector in Russia, (2) grant or be part of any arrangement to grant any new loan or credit or otherwise provide financing, including equity capital, to any such entity or body, (3) create any new joint venture with any such entity or body, or (4) provide investment services directly related to the aforementioned activities.

EU Member State authorities may grant an authorisation for such activities if (1) it is necessary for ensuring critical energy supply within the EU, as well as the transport of natural gas and oil, including refined petroleum products, from or through Russia into the EU (unless such activities are otherwise prohibited under Council Regulation (EU) No. 833/2014, as amended), or (2) it exclusively concerns an entity or body operating in the energy sector in Russia owned by an entity or body which is incorporated or constituted under the law of an EU Member State.

In its Frequently Asked Questions, the European Commission, inter alia, states that the prohibition "does not prohibit drawdowns or disbursements made under pre-existing loans or credits in line with the agreed terms and conditions of the contract," but that the prohibition "must not be circumvented through changes to the existing terms and conditions." According to the European Commission, any amendments to existing loans resulting in a "financial benefit for the entity" would re-qualify an existing loan as new loan or credit (such as, e.g., extending the dates for loan repayment or lowering the interest rates applicable in case of delays). Furthermore, it states that persons or entities that own or control a company operating in the Russian energy sector "should be considered as 'operating in the energy sector' as well."

In its (German-language) Frequently Asked Questions, the German Federal Ministry for Economic Affairs and Climate Action states that the prohibition on granting new loans or credits or otherwise providing financing applies to "new allocations" and takes the view that "where certain financial resources were already made available regularly and for a specific purpose before 16 March 2022, a future making available for the same purpose in the previous scope is not subject to the prohibition" (as translated). However, the relevant question explicitly addressed the provision of "funds to be used for employee salaries or rental costs" that were already demonstrably paid on a regular basis before 16 March 2022, and it is not fully clear from the Frequently Asked Questions to what extent the view of the German authorities goes beyond the provision of funds for such or comparable purposes.

Oil – including price cap mechanism with respect to services related to maritime transport of oil to third countries

By Council Regulation (EU) No. 2022/879 of 3 June 2022, the EU introduced a prohibition on purchasing, importing or transferring, directly or indirectly, certain listed crude oil or petroleum products if they originate in Russia or are exported from Russia.

The prohibition also applies to the provision of related technical assistance, brokering services and other services as well as of related financing or financial assistance.

In its Frequently Asked Questions, the European Commission states, inter alia, that the prohibition shall only apply to the transfer of Russian crude oil that is destined for import into EU Member States, but that it is still possible "to ship those goods to third countries, provided this does not entail any risk of circumvention" of the prohibition. However, as mentioned below, there is a separate prohibition on providing technical assistance, brokering services, financing or any financial assistance in relation to the transport of such goods to third countries.

Further, in its Frequently Asked Questions, the European Commission states that Russian oil transported together with oil of other origin in mixed fashion is subject to the prohibition. However, the European Commission admits that "as a consequence of transportation through a pipeline that serves both non-Russian and Russian origin productions, oil originating in a third country can be mixed for technical reasons with Russian originating oil, due to infrastructural constraints." Such mixing "should not increase or facilitate the production and or marketing of Russian-origin oil, nor generate any avoidable financial flows or indirect benefits in favour of Russian actors for the Russian-origin oil transported via the pipeline, excluding the necessary transportation costs." In such case, according to the European Commission, "as oil is a fungible material that cannot be physically segregated once mixed, a quantity corresponding to the volume not originating in Russia can be allowed into the Union if the share of the transported oil which does not originate in Russia can be clearly demonstrated to the national authorities of the Member State, for instance through documentation proving the exact volume of oil originating in the non-Russian third country, such as a certificate of origin." In a Notice to operators of 3 August 2022, the European Commission advises economic operators involved in imports of crude oil and/or petroleum products "to take all necessary due diligence measures in order to ensure that no Russian sanctioned crude oil is imported, even if blended with a majority content of oil originating in a third country, and to prove that this is the case, unless the exact share of the product which does not originate in Russia can be clearly demonstrated to the national authorities of the Member State." According to the European Commission, this can be done, e.g., through "proofs regarding the origin of the oil loaded in the ship or if possible through results of chemical analysis." In addition, the European Commission advises importers also "to write in the purchase contract a clause according to which the exporter confirms that the oil sold does not contain any Russian oil and that should it be the case the exporter would be contractually responsible for any misdeclaration." The European Commission does explicitly not only advise importers, but "any actors involved in oil imports into the EU – including carriers, insurers and financial institutions opening credit lines or issuing letters of credit –" to exercise due diligence so that they do not engage in carrying or insuring the transport of Russian crude oil for import into the EU.

With respect to petroleum oils and oils obtained from bituminous minerals, other than crude (CN Code 2710), the European Commission points out that only those which originate in Russia or are exported from Russia fall under the general prohibition. However, according to the European Commission, a case-by-case analysis of "the production process and proportion of the components used is needed to determine the origin." The European Commission takes the view that, for example, petroleum oils and oils obtained from bituminous minerals, other than crude (CN Code 2710) obtained in a third country "mixing Russian oil" falling under CN code 2710 and locally produced oil exported from that third country could be subject to the prohibition "depending on the proportion of the Russian component."

Certain exemptions apply, in particular:

- to purchases in Russia of listed crude oil or petroleum products which are required to meet the essential needs of the purchaser in Russia or of humanitarian projects in Russia.

In its Frequently Asked Questions, the European Commission states that this exemption allows EU natural or legal persons situated in Russia to purchase the listed crude oil or petroleum products "for their own daily consumption, for instance to refuel their car or heat their homes."

According to the European Commission, this "would typically apply to EU tourists visiting Russia, EU expats living in Russia, EU humanitarian aid providers etc." and "to a branch of an EU company in Russia which would need to purchase the goods for its own use," but "it would not cover (...) purchases of such goods for resale or refining for example."

- to one-off transactions for near term delivery of petroleum oils and oils obtained from bituminous minerals, crude (CN Code 2709 00) until 5 December 2022, provided that these transactions are notified by the relevant EU Member States to the Commission within 10 days of their completion.

In its Frequently Asked Questions, the European Commission states that one-off transactions for near-terms delivery "should be understood as spot market transactions." The European Commission points out that relevant contracts concluded "cannot foresee multiple deliveries and the oil should be delivered within 30 days maximum after the transaction has been concluded." Further, according to the European Commission, with respect to the notification requirement, completion should be understood as the final delivery of the goods.

- to the execution until 5 December 2022 of contracts for the purchase, import or transfer of petroleum oils and oils obtained from bituminous minerals, crude (CN Code 2709 00) concluded before 4 June 2022, provided that those contracts have been notified by the relevant EU Member States to the Commission by 24 June 2022.

In its Frequently Asked Questions, the European Commission states that only contracts for the import of the goods should be notified, and that the notification requirement does not apply to insurers or reinsurers, or to agreements on the transportation of oil or petroleum products originating in Russia or on the storage or technical assistance for such oil or petroleum products. Furthermore, it states that the economic operator in the EU Member State releasing the goods for free circulation should report concluded contracts to the relevant EU Member State indicating (if different) the country of destination of the cargo, and that the relevant EU Member States should then report all of the contracts concluded for the import of oil into their own territory to the European Commission.

- to one-off transactions for near term delivery of petroleum oils and oils obtained from bituminous minerals, other than crude (CN Code 2710) until 5 February 2023, provided that these transactions are notified by the relevant EU Member States to the Commission within 10 days of their completion.
- to the execution until 5 February 2023 of contracts for the purchase, import or transfer of petroleum oils and oils obtained from bituminous minerals, other than crude (CN Code 2710) concluded before 4 June 2022, provided that those contracts have been notified by the relevant EU Member States to the Commission by 24 June 2022.
- to the purchase, import or transfer of seaborne crude oil and of petroleum products listed in Annex XXV where those goods originate in a third country and are only being loaded in, departing from or transiting through Russia, provided that both the origin and the owner of those goods are non-Russian.
- to crude oil falling under CN code 2709 00 delivered by pipeline from Russia into EU Member States (until the Council of the European Union decides that the prohibitions apply also in that regard). However, crude oil delivered into EU Member States under this exemption needs to be specially marked and the transfer or transport of such crude oil delivered into EU Member States to other EU Member States or to third countries, or its sale to purchasers in other EU Member States or in third countries, are prohibited. In its Frequently Asked Questions, the European Commission states that the resale prohibition does not apply to situations where "a Member State purchases its crude oil using a company based in another Member State provided that this intermediary does not receive the physical delivery of the oil." In addition, as from 5 February 2023, where crude oil has been delivered into an EU Member State under this exemption, there is a prohibition on transferring or transporting petroleum products falling under CN code 2710 which are obtained from such crude oil to other EU Member States or to third countries, or to sell such petroleum products to purchasers in other EU Member States or in third countries (with a certain temporary derogation applying to the import and transfer into Czechia).

There is a specific possibility for the Bulgarian authorities to authorise the execution until 31 December 2024 of contracts concluded before 4 June 2022 for the purchase, import or transfer of listed Russian seaborne crude oil and petroleum products. Furthermore, there is a specific possibility for the Croatian authorities to authorise, under certain circumstances, until 31 December 2023 the purchase, import or transfer of certain Russian vacuum gas oil. However, goods imported under such licenses from the Bulgarian or Croatian authorities may not be sold on to buyers located in another EU Member State or in a third country.

Further, in the event that the supply of crude oil by pipeline from Russia to a landlocked EU Member State is interrupted, under certain circumstances seaborne crude oil from Russia falling under CN code 2709 00 may be imported into that Member State.

In its Frequently Asked Questions, the European Commission states that the prohibition does not apply to goods which were "already released for free circulation within the territory of the Union (i.e. usually already placed on the market)" prior to 4 June 2022.

Further, the European Commission has stated that, before purchasing listed crude oil and petroleum products from other EU Member States benefitting from the exemption for imports by pipeline or from the specific derogations for Bulgaria and Croatia, EU operators and national authorities "must conduct appropriate due diligence" and "should do the necessary checks to ensure that such goods do not originate from Russia, are not exported from Russia or are not petroleum products (...) which are obtained from crude oil originating or exported from Russia."

In addition, as mentioned above, Council Regulation (EU) No. 2022/879 introduced a prohibition on providing, directly or indirectly, technical assistance, brokering services or financing or financial assistance related to the transport, including through ship-to-ship transfers, to third countries of the listed crude oil or petroleum products if they originate in Russia or have been exported from Russia. In its Frequently Asked Questions, the European Commission states that this prohibition only applies to maritime transport and does not extend to pipeline transport.

Further, by Council Regulation (EU) No. 2022/1904 of 6 October 2022, the EU also introduced a prohibition on the transport, including through ship-to-ship transfers, to third countries, of petroleum oils and oils obtained from bituminous minerals, crude (CN Code 2709 00) (which applies after 5 December 2022), or petroleum oils and oils obtained from bituminous minerals, other than crude (CN Code 2710) (which applies after 5 February 2023), if the relevant goods originate in Russia or have been exported from Russia. This prohibition will only apply from the date on which the EU adopts the necessary measures to introduce an oil price cap which is to be agreed by the so-called Price Cap Coalition in coordination between the EU and partner countries.

Once a price cap has been implemented at an EU level (which requires inter alia specifying the relevant prices in an Annex to the relevant regulation), an exemption from the aforementioned prohibitions (on the transfer or provision of related services), will apply as of 5 December 2022 in relation to petroleum oils and oils obtained from bituminous minerals, crude (CN Code 2709 00), and as of 5 February 2023 in relation to petroleum oils and oils obtained from bituminous minerals, other than crude (CN Code 2710), provided that the purchase price per barrel of such products does not exceed the specified price cap. The recitals to Council Regulation (EU) No. 2022/1904 of 6 October 2022 emphasise that the price cap should apply to the maritime transport to third countries and to the provision of related services, but that it does not affect in any way the exceptions allowing certain EU Member States to continue importing crude oil and petroleum products from Russia.

Furthermore, exemptions from the aforementioned prohibitions (on the transfer or provision of related services) will apply (1) to the listed crude oil or petroleum products where those goods originate in a third country and are only being loaded in, departing from or transiting through Russia, provided that both the origin and the owner of those goods are non-Russian and (2) to the transport, or to technical assistance, brokering services, financing or financial assistance related to such transport to certain third countries in connection with certain specified energy projects for a specified duration.

Further exemptions from the prohibition on providing technical assistance, brokering services or financing or financial assistance related to the transport to third countries apply to (1) the execution of contracts concluded before 4 June 2022 (or of ancillary contracts necessary for the execution of such contracts) (i) until 5 December 2022, for petroleum oils and oils obtained from bituminous minerals, crude (CN Code 2709 00), and (ii) until 5 February 2023 for petroleum oils and oils obtained from bituminous minerals, other than crude (CN Code 2710), (2) the payment of insurance claims after 5 December 2022 for petroleum oils and oils obtained from bituminous minerals, crude (CN Code 2709 00), or after 5 February 2023 for petroleum oils and oils obtained from bituminous minerals, other than crude (CN Code 2710), on the basis of insurance contracts concluded before 4 June 2022 and provided that the insurance coverage has ceased by the relevant date, and (3) the provision of pilot services necessary for reasons of maritime safety.

In addition to the aforementioned prohibitions, the EU introduced a prohibition on providing technical assistance, brokering services or financing or financial assistance related to the transport of the listed crude oil and petroleum products to third countries by vessels which, after the implementation of a price cap, transported listed crude oil or petroleum products whose purchase price per barrel exceeded the price cap on the date of conclusion of the contract for such purchase.

Coal

By Council Regulation (EU) No. 2022/576 of 8 April 2022, the EU introduced a prohibition on purchasing, importing, or transferring, directly or indirectly, certain listed coal and other listed products if they originate in Russia or are exported from Russia.

The prohibition also applies to the provision of technical assistance, brokering services and other services as well as of financing or financial assistance related to the listed items.

In its Frequently Asked Questions, the European Commission states that the prohibition applies with respect to all CN codes mentioned in Annex XXII of Council Regulation (EU) No. 833/2014 (as amended), regardless of whether products are coal-based or not or whether they are solid or not. Further, the European Commission states that the prohibition applies irrespective of the final destination of the goods and that "it is not relevant whether the goods are destined for the EU or not." However, referring to its aim to avoid an impact on the energy security of third countries around the globe, the European Commission states that the transfer (but apparently not the purchase) of the listed coal and other solid fossil fuels to third countries, as well as financing or financial assistance related to such transfer, carried out by EU operators "should be allowed" as long as such transfer occurs "from point to point (e.g., from Russia to a third country) without transiting via the EU territory." In addition, it states that the prohibition does "not concern goods which are already released for free circulation within the territory of the Union (i.e. usually already placed on the market)" at the time when the prohibition becomes applicable.

An exemption applied to the execution until 10 August 2022 of contracts concluded before 9 April 2022, or ancillary contracts necessary for the execution of such contracts.

In its Frequently Asked Questions, while referring to the national competent authorities in the EU Member States, the European Commission states that in its view an exemption to a purchase, import or transfer restriction allowing for the execution of prior contracts until a specified date (such as the former exemption to the restrictions relating to Russian coal) would not allow for a payment to be made to the Russian counterpart beyond that date even if the goods originating in Russia have already been received.

Iron and Steel

By Council Regulation (EU) No. 2022/428 of 15 March 2022, the EU imposed a prohibition on (directly or indirectly) importing, purchasing or transporting certain listed iron and steel products located or originated in Russia or exported from Russia, as well as on providing related technical assistance, brokering services, financing or financial assistance (including financial derivatives) and insurance and re-insurance. Council Regulation (EU) No. 2022/1904 of 6 October 2022 extended the list of relevant iron and steel products.

In addition, Council Regulation (EU) No. 2022/1904 of 6 October 2022 introduced a prohibition on importing or purchasing, as from 30 September 2023, directly or indirectly, the listed iron and steel products when processed in a third country incorporating listed iron and steel products originating in Russia (with respect to listed products processed in a third country incorporating steel products originating in Russia of CN Code 720711 or 72071210 (certain semi-finished products of iron or non-alloy steel), this prohibition applies only as of 1 April 2024 for CN Code 720711 and only as of 1 October 2024 for CN Code 72071210). Also in that regard there is the prohibition on providing related technical assistance, brokering services, financing or financial assistance (including financial derivatives) and insurance and re-insurance.

In its Frequently Asked Questions, the European Commission states that the prohibition applies irrespective of the final destination of the goods and that "it is not relevant whether the goods are destined for the EU or not." However, it states that the prohibition does "not concern goods which are already released for free circulation within the territory of the Union (i.e. usually already placed on the market)" at the time when the prohibition becomes applicable.

With respect to the goods listed before 6 October 2022 (now the goods under "Part A" of the relevant Annex to the relevant regulation), an exemption applied to the execution until 17 June 2022 of contracts concluded before 16 March 2022 (or ancillary contracts necessary for the execution of such contracts). With respect to the goods newly listed by Council Regulation (EU) No. 2022/1904 of 6 October 2022 (the goods under "Part B" of the relevant Annex to the relevant regulation), but with the exception of goods falling under CN Code 720711 or 72071210 (certain semi-finished products of iron or non-alloy steel), an exemption applies to the execution until 8 January 2023 of contracts concluded before 7 October 2022 (or of ancillary contracts necessary for the execution of such contracts). With respect to goods falling under CN Code 72071210 (certain semi-finished products of iron or non-alloy steel), an exemption applies to the import, purchase or transport, or related technical or financial assistance, of certain quantities between 7 October 2022 and 30 September 2023 and 1 October 2023 and 30 September 2024, respectively. With respect to goods falling under CN Code 720711 (certain semi-finished products of iron or non-alloy steel), an exemption applies to the import, purchase or transport, or related technical or financial assistance, of certain quantities between 7 October 2022 and 30 September 2023, 1 October 2023 and 31 December 2023 and 1 January 2024 and 31 March 2024, respectively. The relevant import volume quotas will be managed by the European Commission and the EU Member States.

Furthermore, there is the ability for EU Member States to authorise the purchase, import or transfer of the listed iron and steel products if this is necessary for the establishment, operation, maintenance, fuel supply and retreatment and safety of civil nuclear capabilities, and the continuation of design, construction and commissioning required for the completion of civil nuclear facilities, the supply of precursor material for the production of medical radioisotopes and similar medical applications, or critical technology for environmental radiation monitoring, as well as for civil nuclear cooperation, in particular in the field of research and development.

Luxury Goods

By Council Regulation (EU) No. 2022/428 of 15 March 2022, the EU imposed a prohibition on selling, supplying, transferring or exporting, directly or indirectly, several listed luxury goods to any natural or legal person, entity or body in Russia or for use in Russia, including, inter alia, beer, champagne, cigars, perfumes, travel goods, handbags, certain clothing and shoes, jewellery, porcelain, electronic items, vehicles, watches, musical instruments, works of art and sports equipment. Council Regulation (EU) No. 2022/576 of 8 April 2022 amended the list of relevant luxury goods.

Unless otherwise specified in the relevant Annex to the EU Council Regulation, the prohibition applies to the listed luxury goods insofar as their value exceeds EUR 300 per item. Higher values apply, inter alia, for electronic items for domestic use (value exceeding EUR 750), apparatus for recording and reproducing sound and images (value exceeding EUR 1,000), vehicles (value exceeding EUR 50,000) and motorbikes (value exceeding EUR 5,000).

There is an exemption for goods which are necessary for the official purposes of diplomatic or consular missions of EU Member States or partner countries (currently the US, Japan, the UK and South Korea) in Russia or of international organisations enjoying immunities in accordance with international law, or to the personal effects of their staff. Furthermore, by Council Regulation (EU) No. 2022/1269 of 21 July 2022, the EU introduced an exemption for (1) articles of jewellery (and parts thereof), of precious metal or of metal clad with precious metal (falling under CN code 71130000) and (2) articles of goldsmiths' or silversmiths' wares (and parts thereof), of precious metal or of metal clad with precious metal (falling under CN code 71140000) for personal use of natural persons travelling from the EU or members of their immediate families travelling with them, owned by those individuals and not intended for sale. In addition, by Council Regulation (EU) No. 2022/576 of 8 April 2022, the EU introduced the ability for EU Member States to authorise the transfer or export to Russia of cultural goods which are on loan in the context of formal cultural cooperation with Russia.

In its Frequently Asked Questions, the European Commission states, inter alia, that the value threshold for the items is to be assessed "based on the statistical value of the goods in the export declaration," which is defined as "the price actually paid or payable for the exported goods, excluding arbitrary or fictitious values." The European Commission clarifies that VAT is not to be included in the statistical value, but that the value "must be adjusted, where necessary, in such a way that the statistical value contains solely and entirely the incidental expenses, such as transport and insurance costs, incurred to deliver the goods from the place of their departure to the border of the Member State of export."

In addition, the European Commission states that the term "item" is to be understood as the "supplementary unit," being "the quantity of the item in question, expressed in the unit laid down in Union legislation, as published in TARIC." The European Commission clarifies that this principally means "usual packaging for retail sale, e.g. a package of 3 bottles of perfume if they are sold together, or a bottle of perfume if it is meant to be sold separately."

Ban on import of "goods which generate significant revenues for Russia"

By Council Regulation (EU) No. 2022/576 of 8 April 2022, the EU introduced a prohibition on purchasing, importing, or transferring, directly or indirectly, certain listed goods "which generate significant revenues for Russia" into the EU if they originate in Russia or are exported from Russia. The list of goods includes, inter alia, crustaceans, caviar, certain cement, potassium chloride and other fertilisers, certain polymers, certain pneumatic tyres, wood and articles of wood, uncoated kraft paper and paperboard, certain glass, bottles and certain other products of glass, glass fibres, silver, certain aluminium plates, sheets and strip, lead, turbojets and other gas turbines, certain ships and vessels and furniture. By Council Regulation (EU) 2022/1904 of 6 October 2022, the list of goods was significantly extended. It now also includes, inter alia, wood pulp and paper, certain elements used in the jewellery industry such as stones and precious metals, certain machinery and chemical items, cigarettes, plastics and finished chemical products such as cosmetics.

In its Frequently Asked Questions, the European Commission states that the prohibition applies irrespective of the final destination of the goods and that "it is not relevant whether the goods are destined for the EU or not." However, referring to its aim to avoid an impact on the food and energy security of third countries around the globe, the European Commission states that the transfer (but apparently not the purchase) of the following goods to third countries, as well as financing or financial assistance related to such transfer, carried out by EU operators or via the EU territory (including in transit) "should be allowed": (1) fertilisers falling under CN codes 310420, 310520; 310560, ex31059020 and ex31059080 and (2) animal feed falling under CN code 2303 (the previously longer list of exempted goods in that context was recently reduced). In addition, according to the European Commission, the transfer (but apparently again not the purchase) of energy goods falling under CN Codes 4401 (fuel wood) and 4402 (charcoal) to third countries, as well as financing or financial assistance related to such transfer, carried out by EU operators "should be allowed" as long as such transfer occurs "from point to point (eg, from Russia to a third country) without transiting via the EU territory."

In addition, the European Commission states that the prohibition does "not concern goods which are already released for free circulation within the territory of the Union (i.e. usually already placed on the market)" at the time when the prohibition becomes applicable.

The prohibition also applies to the provision of technical assistance, brokering services and other services as well as of financing or financial assistance related to the listed goods.

With respect to the goods listed already before 6 October 2022 (now the goods under "Part A" of the relevant Annex to the relevant regulation), an exemption applied to the execution until 10 July 2022 of contracts concluded before 9 April 2022 (or of ancillary contracts necessary for the execution of such contracts). Exemptions apply (1) to purchases in Russia which are necessary for the functioning of diplomatic and consular representations of the EU and of the EU Member States or for the personal use of nationals of EU Member States and their immediate family members, (2) with respect to the goods newly listed by Council Regulation (EU) No. 2022/1904 of 6 October 2022 (the goods under "Part B" of the relevant Annex to the relevant regulation) to the execution until 8 January 2023 of contracts concluded before 7 October 2022 (or of ancillary contracts necessary for the execution of such contracts) and (3) as of 10 July 2022, to the import, purchase etc. necessary for the import into the EU of a certain quantity of potassium chloride between 10 July of a given year and 9 July of the following year and a certain combined quantity of certain other listed fertilisers between 10 July of a given year and 9 July of the following year (the relevant import volume quotas will be managed by the European Commission and the EU Member States).

With respect to the goods listed already before 6 October 2022 (now the goods under "Part A" of the relevant Annex to the relevant regulation), an exemption applied to the execution until 10 July 2022 of contracts concluded before 9 April 2022 (or of ancillary contracts necessary for the execution of such contracts). Exemptions apply (1) to purchases in Russia which are necessary for the functioning of diplomatic and consular representations of the EU and of the EU Member States or for the personal use of nationals of EU Member States and their immediate family members, (2) with respect to the goods newly listed by Council Regulation (EU) No. 2022/1904 of 6 October 2022 (the goods under "Part B" of the relevant Annex to the relevant regulation) to the execution until 8 January 2023 of contracts concluded before 7 October 2022 (or of ancillary contracts necessary for the execution of such contracts) and (3) as of 10 July 2022, to the import, purchase etc. necessary for the import into the EU of a certain quantity of potassium chloride between 10 July of a given year and 9 July of the following year and a certain combined quantity of certain other listed fertilisers between 10 July of a given year and 9 July of the following year (the relevant import volume quotas will be managed by the European Commission and the EU Member States).

Furthermore, Council Regulation (EU) No. 2022/1904 of 6 October 2022 introduced the ability for EU Member States to authorise the purchase, import or transfer of listed goods, or the provision of related technical and financial assistance, if this is necessary for the establishment, operation, maintenance, fuel supply and retreatment and safety of civil nuclear capabilities, and the continuation of design, construction and commissioning required for the completion of civil nuclear facilities, the supply of precursor material for the production of medical radioisotopes and similar medical applications, or critical technology for environmental radiation monitoring, as well as for civil nuclear cooperation, in particular in the field of research and development.

Gold and jewellery

By Council Regulation (EU) No. 2022/1269 of 21 July 2022, the EU introduced a prohibition to purchase, import, or transfer, directly or indirectly, (1) gold, waste and scrap of gold or gold coins if they originate in Russia and have been exported from Russia into the EU or to any third country after 22 July 2022, (2) the listed gold products when processed in a third country incorporating listed gold products which originate in Russia and have been exported from Russia into the EU or to any third country after 22 July 2022, and (3) articles of jewellery (and parts thereof), of gold or containing gold, or of metal clad with gold (falling under CN code 7113) or articles of goldsmiths' or silversmiths' wares (and parts thereof), of gold, containing gold, or of metal clad with gold (falling under CN code 7114) if they originate in Russia and have been exported from Russia into the EU after 22 July 2022.

The prohibition also applies to the provision of technical assistance, brokering services and other services as well as of financing or financial assistance related to the listed goods.

Certain exemptions apply to (1) listed gold or products which are necessary for the official purposes of diplomatic missions, consular posts or international organisations in Russia enjoying immunities in accordance with international law and (2) listed jewellery for personal use of natural persons travelling to the EU or members of their immediate families travelling with them, owned by those individuals and not intended for sale. In addition, there is the possibility for EU Member States to authorise the transfer or import of cultural goods which are on loan in the context of formal cultural cooperation with Russia.

In its Frequently Asked Questions, the European Commission has published certain guidance on these restrictions. Inter alia, the European Commission confirms that the prohibition does not apply to e.g. gold of Russian origin "already held by central banks, investors, companies or pension funds across Member States, if it was exported from Russia before 22 July 2022."

Road Transport

By Council Regulation (EU) 2022/576, the EU introduced a prohibition for any road transport undertaking established in Russia to transport goods by road within the territory of the EU, including in transit.

Road transport undertaking means any natural or legal person, entity or body engaged with a commercial purpose in the transport of freight by means of motor vehicles or combinations of vehicles.

An exemption applies to road transport undertakings transporting mail as a universal service or goods in transit through the EU between the Kaliningrad Oblast and Russia (provided that the transport of such goods is not otherwise prohibited under the EU sanctions against Russia). In this context, in its Frequently Asked Questions, the European Commission confirmed that transit of sanctioned goods through EU territory to or from the Kaliningrad Oblast by road is not allowed. However, it states that "no such specific regime applies to rail transport on the same route," pointing out, inter alia, that "the transit of sanctioned military and dual use goods and technology (...) is prohibited in any event" and that "Member States must also ensure that sanctioned goods that have illegally arrived in any part of Russia cannot be transported onwards via the EU customs territory."

In addition, until 16 April 2022 an exemption applied to the transport of goods that started before 9 April 2022, provided that the vehicle of the road transport undertaking was already in the territory of the EU on 9 April 2022 or needed to transit through the EU in order to return to Russia.

In addition, there is the ability for EU Member States to authorise the transport of goods if this is necessary for (1) the purchase, import or transport into the EU of natural gas and oil, including refined petroleum products, as well as titanium, aluminium, copper, nickel, palladium and iron ore (unless such activities are otherwise prohibited under Council Regulation (EU) No. 833/2014, as amended), (2) the purchase, import or transport of pharmaceutical, medical, agricultural and food products, including wheat and fertilisers whose import, purchase and transport is allowed under the EU sanctions against Russia, (3) humanitarian purposes, (4) the functioning of diplomatic and consular representations in Russia, or (5) the transfer or export to Russia of cultural goods which are on loan in the context of formal cultural cooperation with Russia.

In its Frequently Asked Questions, the European Commission, inter alia, states with respect to the restrictions concerning road transport that it is for the transporter to apply for and obtain relevant authorisations from EU Member State authorities to carry out the transport in the EU territory, but that the EU Member State authorities are free to accept authorisation requests made on behalf of the transporter by other persons and entities involved in the relevant transaction, such as the importer or the consignor, if national law allows that.

Further, the European Commission states that the national competent authorities of all EU Member States through which the goods are transported should grant authorisations and that authorisations granted by individual EU Member States do not, in and of themselves, bind any other EU Member State. However, the European Commission points out that "by virtue of the principle of sincere cooperation," EU Member States should collaborate to avoid disproportionate administrative burdens in dealing with transports crossing several national territories.

Aviation Industry

By Council Regulation (EU) No. 2022/328 of 25 February 2022 and Council Regulation (EU) No. 2022/576 of 8 April 2022, the EU introduced a prohibition on the sale, supply, transfer or export of aircraft, spacecraft or parts thereof and certain listed jet fuels and fuel additives to any natural or legal person, entity or body in Russia or for use in Russia. This includes, inter alia, supplying aircraft to Russian persons or entities or for use in Russia by way of leasing.

By Council Regulation (EU) No. 2022/1904 of 6 October 2022, the EU extended the prohibition to certain further listed goods used in the aviation sector, such as, inter alia, certain hydraulic oil, tyres, brake disks or linings, machines and instruments.

The prohibition also applies to the provision of technical assistance, brokering services and other services as well as of financing or financial assistance related to the listed goods and technology. An exemption applies with respect to the provision of technical assistance, brokering services and other services where it concerns the exchange of information aimed at establishing technical standards in the framework of the International Civil Aviation Organization (ICAO) in relation to aircraft, spacecraft or parts thereof and the listed jet fuels and fuel additives. In its Frequently Asked Questions, the European Commission states that with this exemption, technical data pertaining to EU manufactured aircraft and spacecraft (including parts thereof) or to listed jet fuels and fuel additives "can be shared to contribute to the technical standard setting work within ICAO groups and panels even in cases where Russia is, among other countries, a member of these groups and panels." However, the European Commission points out that the provision of direct or indirect technical assistance to any natural or legal person, entity or body in Russia or for use in Russia remains otherwise prohibited.

With respect to aircraft, spacecraft and parts thereof, an exemption applied to the execution until 28 March 2022 of contracts concluded before 26 February 2022.

With respect to the further listed goods used in the aviation sector (but not with respect to the listed jet fuels and fuel additives), an exemption applied to the execution until 6 November 2022 of contracts concluded before 7 October 2022 (or of ancillary contracts necessary for the execution of such contracts).

Furthermore, by Council Regulation (EU) No. 2022/1904 of 6 October 2022, the EU introduced the ability for EU Member States to authorise the sale, supply, transfer or export of the further listed goods used in the aviation sector or related technical assistance, brokering services, financing or financial assistance, if this is necessary for the production of titanium goods required in the aeronautic industry, for which no alternative supply is available.

By Council Regulation (EU) 2022/576 of 8 April 2022, the EU introduced the ability for EU Member States to authorise the execution of an aircraft financial lease concluded before 26 February 2022 if (1) this is strictly necessary to ensure lease re-payments to a legal person, entity or body incorporated or constituted under the law of an EU Member State which does not fall under any of the EU sanctions against Russia and (2) no economic resources will be made available to the Russian counterpart, with the exception of the transfer of ownership of the aircraft after full reimbursement of the financial lease.

The provision of insurance and reinsurance and of maintenance activities concerning aircraft or components in relation to such listed goods and technology to any natural or legal person, entity or body in Russia or for use in Russia is also prohibited. The exemption noted above did not apply in relation to those activities, so that the prohibition was of immediate effect.

In its Frequently Asked Questions, the European Commission states, inter alia, that the term "'for use in Russia' should be understood as covering the sale/supply/transfer/export of goods/services which would be used in Russia, including operations between two points in Russia." According to the European Commission, this applies, for example, "to flights between two points in Russia, whether in connection or not with an international service." However, according to the European Commission, "strictly speaking, in-and-out types of operations are not covered by the sanctions" unless "the in-and-out operation is complemented with a service inside Russia (e.g. Istanbul-Moscow-Saint Petersburg-Istanbul)."

Further, in its Frequently Asked Questions, the European Commission states that it needs to be differentiated between (1) insurance in relation to a sale, supply, transfer or export of aircraft etc. and (2) specific insurance or reinsurance in relation to an aircraft. Insurance in relation to a sale, supply, transfer or export of aircraft etc. benefitted from the exemption for execution until 28 March 2022 if the insurance contract was concluded before 26 February 2022. In line with that, in its Frequently Asked Questions, the European Commission states, inter alia, that the exemption allowed, until 28 March 2022, the provision of insurance or reinsurance to leasing companies for aircraft and engines subject to operating or finance lease arrangements signed before 26 February 2022, including when such aircraft or engine was used in Russia or leased to a Russian person.

By contrast, specific insurance or reinsurance in relation to an aircraft or components did not benefit from the exemption. However, in its Frequently Asked Questions on Insurance and Reinsurance, the European Commission states that the provision of insurance or reinsurance in the context of an international flight in and out of Russia by a non-Russian airline which does not have a Russian insurance or reinsurance is not covered by the prohibition "as it is not for 'use in Russia' but part of the normal international services provided by an airline."

In addition, on 28 February 2022, Council Regulation (EU) No. 2022/334 closed the airspace of the EU for Russian aircraft with immediate effect. It is now prohibited for any aircraft operated by Russian air carriers (including as a marketing carrier in code-sharing or blocked-space arrangements), and for any Russian registered aircraft or for any non-Russian-registered aircraft which is owned, chartered, or otherwise controlled by any Russian natural or legal person, entity or body, to land in, take off from or overfly the territory of the EU. "Russian air carrier" is defined in this context as an air transport undertaking holding a valid operating licence or equivalent issued by the competent authorities of the Russian Federation.

An exemption only applies in cases of emergency landings or emergency overflights. Furthermore, under very limited circumstances, the competent authorities in the Member States of the EU may grant authorisations to such landing, overflight etc., if it is required for humanitarian purposes.

In addition, Eurocontrol, as the Network Manager appointed by the European Commission, is required to reject all flight plans filed by aircraft operators indicating an intent to carry out activities over the territory of the EU that violate the aforementioned prohibition, such that the pilot is not permitted to fly.

In its Frequently Asked Questions, the European Commission addresses several aspects related to the closure of EU airspace.

Maritime sector and ban on access to EU ports and locks

By Council Regulation (EU) No. 2022/394 of 9 March 2022, the EU introduced a prohibition on the sale, supply, transfer or export of certain maritime navigation equipment and radio-communication equipment to any natural or legal person, entity or body in Russia or for use in Russia or for the placing on board of a Russian-flagged vessel.

The prohibition also applies to the provision of technical assistance, brokering services and other services as well as of financing or financial assistance related to the listed goods and technology.

An exemption applies in cases of non-military use and non-military end-users, inter alia, for sales, exports etc. for humanitarian purposes or as a response to natural disasters. Furthermore, the competent authorities in the Member States of the EU may grant authorisations in cases of non-military use and non-military end-users if the sale, export etc. is intended for maritime safety. In its Frequently Asked Questions, the European Commission states, inter alia, that maritime safety can be defined in this context as the safety of life, health, property and the environment against environmental and operational risks associated with navigation and that, accordingly, an authorisation may be granted "if a ship is in need of assistance and/or seeking a place of refuge, if a ship in a Member State's port or territorial waters cannot safely continue its voyage without the necessary equipment, or again if it needs regular software updates of nautical charts as required by SOLAS chapter V (Regulation 27)."

By Council Regulation (EU) No. 2022/576 of 8 April 2022, the EU introduced a prohibition on providing access after 16 April 2022 to EU ports to any vessel registered under the flag of Russia as well as to vessels that have changed their Russian flag or their registration to the flag or register of any other State after 24 February 2022. By Council Regulation (EU) No. 2022/1269 of 21 July 2022, this prohibition was extended to providing access after 29 July 2022 to locks in the territory of the EU to any vessel registered under the flag of Russia, with the exception of access to locks for the purpose of leaving the territory of the EU. By Council Regulation (EU) No. 2022/1904 of 6 October 2022, the prohibition was again extended now covering also providing access to ports or locks after 8 April 2023 to any vessel certified by the Russian Maritime Register of Shipping.

An exemption applies with respect to vessels in need of assistance seeking a place of refuge or in cases of emergency port calls for reasons of maritime safety, or for saving life at sea. In addition, EU Member States may authorise a vessel to access an EU port or lock if such access is necessary for (1) the purchase, import or transport into the EU of natural gas and oil, including refined petroleum products, titanium, aluminium, copper, nickel, palladium and iron ore, as well as certain listed chemical and iron products (unless such activities are otherwise prohibited under Council Regulation (EU) No. 833/2014, as amended), (2) the purchase, import or transport of pharmaceutical, medical, agricultural and food products, including wheat and fertilisers whose import, purchase and transport is allowed under the EU sanctions against Russia, (3) humanitarian purposes or (4) the transport of nuclear fuel and other goods strictly necessary for the functioning of civil nuclear capabilities. In addition, there was the ability for EU Member States to grant authorisations if access was necessary for the purchase, import or transport into the EU of certain listed coal and other solid fossil fuels until 10 August 2022. Furthermore, by Council Regulation (EU) 2022/1269 of 21 July 2022, the EU introduced the ability for EU Member States to authorise vessels that have changed their Russian flag or their registration, to the flag or register of any other state prior to 16 April 2022, to access a port or lock if (1) a Russian flag or registration was required by contract and (2) the access is necessary for the unloading of goods strictly necessary for the completion of renewable energy projects in the EU, provided that the import of such goods is not otherwise prohibited under Council Regulation (EU) No. 833/2014 (as amended). By Council Regulation (EU) No. 2022/1904 of 6 October 2022, the ability for EU Member States to authorise a vessel to access a port or lock was extended.

In its Frequently Asked Questions, the European Commission states, inter alia, that if a ship falling under the scope of the prohibition and carrying goods the transport of which may justify an authorisation to access a port requests access to a port in the EU, it is "the responsibility of the port authorities to make a case-by-case assessment and supervise that the unloading concerns only goods falling under the derogations and that their unloading is not otherwise prohibited by EU sanctions." In addition, the European Commission states that ship-to-ship operations between Russian flagged vessels and vessels not subject to the port access ban which take place with the objective or effect of circumventing the prohibition are also caught by the provision. According to the European Commission, in that context, the "determining element is that such a ship-to-ship operation is orchestrated in order for a vessel that is not subject to the port access ban to call in an EU port, where otherwise a Russian flagged vessel could not call." Furthermore, the European Commission clarifies that where a vessel has been authorised to call on a port in order to unload goods subject to a derogation, it must obtain a separate authorisation in order to load goods.

Technology sector

By Council Regulation (EU) No. 2022/328 of 25 February 2022, the EU introduced a prohibition on the sale, supply, transfer or export of certain listed goods and technology which might contribute to Russia's technological enhancement of its defence and security sector ("Advanced Technology"). Council Regulation (EU) No. 2022/1904 of 6 October 2022 extended the list of relevant goods and technology (in particular by including certain chemical substances, nerve agents and goods which could be used for capital punishment, torture or other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment).

The prohibition also applies to the provision of technical assistance, brokering services and other services as well as of financing or financial assistance related to the listed goods and technology.

Certain exemptions apply in cases of non-military use and non-military end-users, inter alia, for sales, exports etc. for humanitarian or medical purposes, software updates or for use as consumer communication devices. Furthermore, the competent authorities in the Member States of the EU may, under certain circumstances, grant authorisations, inter alia, in cases of non-military use and non-military end-users if the sale, export etc. is intended for civilian non-publicly available electronic communications networks which are not the property of an entity that is publicly controlled or with over 50% public ownership, for the exclusive use of entities owned by – among others – EU entities or, where relevant authorisations were requested before 1 May 2022, if goods etc. are due under contracts concluded before 26 February 2022.

In its Frequently Asked Questions on the export-related restrictions concerning, inter alia, Advanced Technology, the European Commission states that EU nationals working for non-EU companies are personally bound by EU sanctions and can be held personally liable for participating in transactions which breach EU sanctions, for instance if such EU nationals facilitate transactions carried out by a non-EU entity.

In addition, the European Commission points out that decisions taken by a non-EU entity which need to be cleared or "green-lighted" by an EU parent company "would be relevant, in that the latter (the EU parent entity) is bound in respect of its own actions."

These statements are in our view not limited to the export-related restrictions concerning Advanced Technology and other controlled items.

"For purely informative purposes," these Frequently Asked Questions contain, inter alia, a "non-binding" correlation table with references correlating the Advanced Technology goods listed in the relevant Annex to the Council Regulation (EU) No. 833/2014 with the corresponding commodity codes as defined under the rules of the Common Customs Tariff and Combined Nomenclature (CN). However, it is stated that, despite this correlation table, an additional technical assessment is necessary for drawing conclusions as to whether a good is subject to the relevant export restrictions.

Goods "which could contribute in particular to the enhancement of Russian industrial capacities"

By Council Regulation (EU) 2022/576 of 8 April 2022, the EU introduced a prohibition on selling, supplying, transferring or exporting, directly or indirectly, numerous listed "goods which could contribute in particular to the enhancement of Russian industrial capacities" to any natural or legal person, entity or body in Russia or for use in Russia. Council Regulation (EU) No. 2022/1904 of 6 October 2022 extended the list of relevant goods.

The prohibition also applies to the provision of technical assistance, brokering services and other services as well as of financing or financial assistance related to the listed goods and technology.

Exemptions apply (1) with respect to coal, briquettes, ovoids and similar solid fuels manufactured from coal (goods falling under CN Code 2701), lignite, whether or not agglomerated, excluding jet (goods falling under CN Code 2702), peat (including peat litter), whether or not agglomerated (goods falling under CN Code 2703) and coke and semi-coke of coal, of lignite or of peat, whether or not agglomerated as well as retort carbon (goods falling under CN Code 2704), to the execution until 8 January 2023 of contracts concluded before 7 October 2022 (or of ancillary contracts necessary for the execution of such contracts) and (2) to goods which are necessary for the official purposes of diplomatic or consular missions of EU Member States or partner countries in Russia or of international organisations enjoying immunities in accordance with international law, or to the personal effects of their staff. In addition, EU Member States may authorise relevant activities if this is necessary for (1) medical or pharmaceutical purposes, or for humanitarian purposes, such as delivering or facilitating the delivery of assistance, including medical supplies, food, or the transfer of humanitarian workers and related assistance or for evacuations, (2) the exclusive use and under the full control of the authorising EU Member State and in order to fulfil its maintenance obligations in areas which are under a long-term lease agreement between that EU Member State and the Russian Federation, or (3) the establishment, operation, maintenance, fuel supply and retreatment and safety of civil nuclear capabilities, and the continuation of design, construction and commissioning required for the completion of civil nuclear facilities, the supply of precursor material for the production of medical radioisotopes and similar medical applications, or critical technology for environmental radiation monitoring, as well as for civil nuclear cooperation, in particular in the field of research and development. Initially, a general exemption applied to the execution until 10 July 2022 of contracts concluded before 9 April 2022 or ancillary contracts necessary for the execution of such contracts.

In relation to this prohibition, in its German-language Frequently Asked Questions, the German Federal Ministry for Economic Affairs and Climate Action states that (as translated) "it is conceivable" that commercial transactions of a Russian subsidiary owned or controlled by a German parent company (or a subsidiary in a third country) with persons in Russia or for use in Russia "may be attributable to a German parent company under EU sanctions law." According to the Ministry, this may be the case, in particular, "if the parent exerts a controlling influence on specific EU-sanctions-relevant transactions of the subsidiary, if the subsidiary was founded in order to circumvent the sanctions or if the subsidiary takes over supplies that were provided by the German parent or subsidiaries located in the EU prior to the imposition of the export bans" (as translated). However, according to the Ministry, in particular, the mere fact that a German parent company provides certain basic services to the foreign subsidiary that have no connection to the specific business decisions that may be relevant to EU sanctions (such as IT and accounting services) and that do not in themselves constitute technical assistance shall "not be sufficient for such attribution" (as translated).

Dual-use goods and technology

By Council Regulation (EU) No. 2022/328 of 25 February 2022, the EU extended the existing restrictions with respect to dual-use goods and technology.

The new sanctions include a prohibition on the sale, supply, transfer or export of any dual-use goods and technology to any natural or legal person, entity or body in Russia or for use in Russia, irrespective of whether such goods and technology are intended for military use or for military end-users.

The prohibition also applies to the provision of technical assistance, brokering services and other services as well as of financing or financial assistance related to the listed goods and technology.

Certain exemptions apply in cases of non-military use and non-military end-users, inter alia, for sales, exports etc. for humanitarian or medical purposes, software updates or for use as consumer communication devices. Furthermore, the competent authorities in the Member States of the EU may, under certain circumstances, grant authorisations, inter alia, in cases of non-military use and non-military end-users if the sale, export etc. is intended for civilian non-publicly available electronic communications networks which are not the property of an entity that is publicly controlled or with over 50% public ownership, for the exclusive use of entities owned by – among others – EU entities or, where relevant authorisations were requested before 1 May 2022, if goods etc. are due under contracts concluded before 26 February 2022.

The Frequently Asked Questions published by the European Commission also address the export-related restrictions concerning dual-use goods and technology. These FAQs confirm that in addition to the requirements under Council Regulation (EU) No. 833/2014 (as amended by, inter alia, Council Regulation (EU) 2022/328) the requirements under the EU Dual-Use Regulation (Council Regulation (EU) No. 2021/821) also need to be complied with where the export, sale etc. of dual-use goods is concerned.

Firearms

By Council Regulation (EU) 2022/1904 of 6 October 2022, the EU introduced a prohibition on the sale, supply, transfer or export of firearms, their parts and essential components and ammunition to any natural or legal person, entity or body in Russia or for use in Russia.

The prohibition also applies to the provision of technical assistance, brokering services and other services as well as of financing or financial assistance related to the specified goods.

Prohibition on public financing or financial assistance for trade with or investment in Russia

By Council Regulation (EU) No. 2022/328 of 25 February 2022, the EU imposed a prohibition on providing public financing or financial assistance for trade with, or investment in, Russia.

Certain exemptions apply, such as in relation to binding financing or financial assistance commitments established prior to 26 February 2022 or, under certain circumstances, in relation to financing up to EUR 10 million per project.

Public or concession contracts

By Council Regulation (EU) 2022/576, the EU introduced a prohibition on awarding or continuing the execution of any public or concession contract falling within the scope of, inter alia, the EU public procurement Directives as well as a large part of the public procurement or concession contracts excluded from their scope to or with (1) a Russian national or resident or a legal person, entity or body established in Russia, (2) a legal person, entity or body whose proprietary rights are directly or indirectly owned for more than 50% by an entity established in Russia, or (3) a natural or legal person, entity or body acting on behalf or at the direction of the aforementioned entities (including, where they account for more than 10% of the contract value, subcontractors, suppliers or entities whose capacities are being relied on within the meaning of the EU public procurement Directives).

An exemption applied to the execution until 10 October 2022 of contracts concluded before 9 April 2022.

In addition, EU Member States may authorise the award and continued execution of contracts under certain limited circumstances, such as, inter alia, if it is intended for (1) the provision of strictly necessary goods or services which can only be provided, or which can only be provided in sufficient quantities, by persons or entities falling within the scope of the prohibition or (2) the purchase, import or transport of natural gas and oil, including refined petroleum products, as well as titanium, aluminium, copper, nickel, palladium and iron ore from or through Russia into the EU (unless such activities are otherwise prohibited under Council Regulation (EU) No. 833/2014, as amended). Furthermore, there was the ability for EU Member States to grant authorisations for contracts intended for the purchase, import or transport into the EU of certain listed coal and other solid fossil fuels until 10 August 2022.

In its Frequently Asked Questions, the European Commission addresses several aspects concerning the prohibition regarding public procurement and concession contracts. It confirms, inter alia, that there is no exemption for dual citizenship, i.e. that in case of individuals having Russian nationality is decisive. Further, it states that Russian involvement should be checked all the way down the supply chain ("e.g. energy or raw materials") as long as there is a possibility of a subcontractor or supplier whose involvement exceeds 10% of the contract value. In addition, it states, inter alia, that for determining whether there is more than 50% Russian ownership of an entity, "if the Russian participation is partial, a proportion should be calculated and summarised as needed, even if the partial ownership comes from different ownership levels," so that "if a tenderer is owned by 30% by a Russian citizen and 70% by an EU company, which is owned by 40% by a Russian entity, the tenderer is owned for 58% by covered entities and should be excluded."

Prohibition on supporting Russian state-owned or state-controlled entities or bodies under EU, Euratom and EU Member State programmes

By Council Regulation (EU) 2022/576, the EU introduced a prohibition on providing direct or indirect support, including financing and financial assistance or any other benefit under an EU, Euratom or EU Member State national programme and contracts within the meaning of Regulation (EU, Euratom) 2018/1046, to any legal person, entity or body established in Russia with over 50% public ownership or public control.

Certain limited exemptions apply, such as, inter alia, to (1) humanitarian purposes, (2) the operation, maintenance, decommissioning and radioactive waste management, fuel supply and retreatment and safety of civil nuclear capabilities or (3) climate and environmental programmes, with the exception of support in the context of research and innovation.

In its Frequently Asked Questions, the European Commission states that any payments concerned by this prohibition must be withheld while the sanctions are in force and that, in view of the prohibition to satisfy related claims, interests claimed by Russian contractual counterparts for alleged damages cannot be satisfied.

Russian Media

The EU imposed a prohibition for operators to broadcast or to enable, facilitate or otherwise contribute to broadcast, any content by the following bodies, including through transmission or distribution by any means such as cable, satellite, IP-TV, internet service providers, internet video-sharing platforms or applications:

In addition, the suspension of any broadcasting licence or authorisation, transmission and distribution arrangement with those entities is required.

By Council Regulation (EU) No. 2022/879 of 3 June 2022, the EU introduced a prohibition on advertising products or services in any content produced or broadcast by the listed entities, including through transmission or distribution by any means such as cable, satellite, IP-TV, internet service providers, internet video-sharing platforms or applications.

In its Frequently Asked Questions, the European Commission states, inter alia, that the aforementioned prohibition applies to any person, entity or body "exercising a commercial or professional activity that broadcasts or enables, facilitates or otherwise contributes to broadcast the content at issue." Furthermore, it states that the field of application of the prohibition goes beyond the mere broadcasting of TV stations and also covers the dissemination of content through other means such as a website, covering also caching services, search engines, social media or hosting service providers whose services can be used to disseminate content from the targeted entities. In addition, it states that, as the prohibition applies not only to the broadcasting activities themselves, but also to those activities enabling, facilitating or otherwise contributing to the broadcast of any content by the listed bodies, also making available satellite capacities enabling companies in a third country to broadcast content of the listed bodies is prohibited.

Non-government controlled areas in the oblasts of Donetsk, Kherson, Luhansk and Zaporizhzhia

By Council Regulation (EU) No. 2022/263 of 23 February 2022, the EU imposed wide-ranging sanctions on the DNR and LNR regions, largely mirroring existing EU sanctions on Crimea/Sevastopol. By Council Regulation (EU) No. 2022/1903 of 6 October 2022, the EU extended those sanctions to all non-government controlled areas of Ukraine in the oblasts Donetsk, Luhansk, Kherson and Zaporizhzhia.

These sanctions include, in particular, trade and investment restrictions concerning those territories relating to the export and import of goods, technology, real estate, tourism etc.

By Council Regulation (EU) No. 2022/626, the EU introduced specific exemptions for certain defined categories of bodies, persons, entities, organisations and agencies with respect to the supply etc. of goods and the provision of technical assistance, services and financing necessary exclusively for humanitarian purposes in the relevant regions. In addition, the EU introduced specific abilities for EU Member States to authorise the supply etc. of goods and the provision of technical assistance, services and financing under other circumstances if necessary for exclusively humanitarian purposes in the relevant regions.

In its Frequently Asked Questions, the European Commission states that, with respect to the restriction on the import of goods from the DNR and LNR regions, the prohibition covers all areas of the DNR and LNR regions that are not under the control of the authorities of Ukraine at the time of the import of the goods, so that, "considering the fluid situation, a dynamic assessment could be necessary." The relevant FAQ have not yet been updated after the extension of the sanctions also to the Kherson and Zaporizhzhia regions. However, it is to be expected that they will apply to those regions accordingly.

Restrictions of visa policy

By Council Decision (EU) 2022/1500 of 9 September 2022, the EU fully suspended, as from 12 September 2022, an agreement between the EU and Russia facilitating the issuance of visas as regards Russian citizens. As of 12 September 2022, Russian citizens are therefore no longer able to benefit from visa facilitation provisions allowing privileged access to the EU. This decision follows a previous decision of 25 February 2022 by which the EU had already partially suspended the application of this agreement with respect to Russian diplomats, other Russian officials and Russian businesspeople.

There must be no exportation from, transshipment in, or transit through, Singapore of any goods falling within the class or description specified in the new Eighth Schedule of the Regulation of Imports and Exports Regulations, if the destination is or intended to be Russia, whether or not the goods originated in Singapore.

The new Eighth Schedule above states that the following are prohibited exports to (including transhipped goods and goods in transit bound for) Russia:

- Notice SNR-N01 Financial Measures in Relation to Russia; and
- Notice SNR-N02 Financial Measures in Relation to Russia – Non-prohibited Payments and Transactions.

The MAS Notices contain financial measures targeted at designated Russian banks and entities, certain activities in Russia and fundraising activities benefiting the Russian government. Digital payment token service providers are therefore specifically prohibited from facilitating transactions that could aid the circumvention of the financial measures.

Currently the list of Designated Entities has not been published by the MAS.

Financial institutions may continue to process the following payments for Designated Banks and/or Designated Entities:

- basic expenses and reasonable fees for certain services such as insurance premiums, employee allowances and contributions, tax and utility charges.

Export controls

The Singapore Strategic Goods Control System regulates the transfer (export, transit, and transshipment) of strategic goods which are generally military weapons or their parts as well as high technology goods which could be used for both commercial and military purposes. Items subject to strategic goods control are listed in the Strategic Goods (Control) Order (SGCO) 2021.

In order to constrain Russia's capacity to conduct its war in Ukraine and cyber aggression, all permit applications to Russia involving (1) all items on the List of Military Goods under the SGCO; and (2) all category codes under Category 3 - Electronics, Category 4 - Computers and Category 5 – Telecommunications and "Information Security" on the List of Dual-Use Goods under the SGCO will be rejected.

Financial measures

Financial institutions in Singapore will be prohibited from the following:

- (a) entering into transactions or establishing business relationships with the following Russian banks:
- VTB Bank Public Joint Stock Company;

Where there are existing business relationships, financial institutions must freeze any assets and funds of these four banks.

These goods comprise all items in the Military Goods List and specified categories in the Dual-Use Goods List of the Strategic Goods (Control) Order 2021.
- (c) providing financial services in relation to designated Russian non-bank entities which are involved in activities in (b). On 25 February 2022, the Department of Foreign Affairs and Trade announced that Minister Payne intends to specify four entities in addition to those already specified under the Autonomous Sanctions (Russia, Crimea and Sevastopol) Specification 2015.

An exposure draft of the legislative instrument specifies the following 4 entities:

- Cetelem Bank
- Russian Agency for Export Credit and Investment (EXIAR)
- Otkritie Bank
- Russian Direct Investment Fund (RDIF)

If an entity is specified by the Minister, Australians and Australian entities must comply with a range of investment restrictions including directly or indirectly purchasing, selling, or otherwise dealing with, bonds, equity transferrable securities, money market instruments or other similar financial instruments issued by the entity. The Department of Foreign Affairs and Trade noted that the Minister intends to specify the entities in four weeks, allowing a period for those who may hold interests in the entities make the necessary arrangements to comply with the restrictions.

From 25 February 2022, new listing criteria for persons or entities who may be designated or declared under the Autonomous Sanctions Regulations 2011 ("Autonomous Sanctions Regulations") in relation to Russia have come into force to include persons of strategic or economic significance to Russia. These include a person or entity who is, or has been, engaging in an activity or performing a function that is of economic or strategic significance to Russia, a current or former Minister or senior official of the Russian Government, and immediate family members of either.³

On 25 February 2022, the Prime Minister announced that Australia would be imposing further sanctions on (1) various individuals whose economic weight is considered to be of strategic significance in Russia and (2) over 300 members of the Russian parliament who voted to authorise the use of Russian troops to invade Ukraine. The Prime Minister also noted that the Australian Government was working with the United States to align with the United States' sanctions on key Belarusian individuals and entities.

From 26 February 2022, the individuals referred to by the Prime Minister were added to the Sanctions List.⁴ This included:

- Denis Aleksandrovich Bortnikov
- Vladimir Sergeevich Kiriyenko
- Petr Mikhailovich Fradkov
- Igor Arkadyevich Rotenberg
- Elena Aleksandrovna Georgieva
- Yury Borisovich Slyusar
- Kirill Nikolayevich Shamalov
- Igor Ivanovich Sechin

³ Autonomous Sanctions Amendment (Russia) Regulations 2022.

⁴ Autonomous Sanctions (Designated Persons and Entities and Declared Persons – Ukraine) Amendment (No. 4) Instrument 2022.

From 27 February 2022, the Belarusian individuals and entities referred to by the Prime Minister on 25 February 2022 were added to the Sanctions List.⁵

From 28 March 2022, amendments to the Autonomous Sanctions Regulations extended existing sanctions that apply to Crimea and Sevastopol to DNR and LNR.⁶ The Department of Foreign Affairs and Trade has noted that this period allowed those with interests in the regions to consider whether their activities were captured by the sanctions' measures; and to cease their activities or to apply for a sanctions permit as necessary. The Minister of Foreign Affairs may grant a permit if she considers it in the national interest to do so.

From 28 February 2022, the Australian government announced that targeted financial sanctions and travel bans came into effect against President Putin, Foreign Minister Lavrov and Defence Minister Shoigu, Prime Minister Mikhail Mishustin, and Internal Affairs Minister Vladimir Kolokoltsev.

The Prime Minister also announced the Australian Government's support for the announcements by the European Commission, France, Germany, Italy, the United Kingdom, Canada, and the United States on further restrictive economic measures against key Russian banks, institutions and individuals, including:

- the removal of selected Russian banks from the SWIFT global payments messaging system;
- restrictive measures to prevent the Russian Central Bank from using its international reserves in a way that undermines sanctions;
- limiting so-called golden passports for wealthy Russians connected to the Russian government; and
- a trans-Atlantic task force to identify and freeze the assets of sanctioned individuals and companies existing within their jurisdictions.

The Australian Government indicated it would take complementary steps as required in relation to the implementation of the SWIFT measures at a global level.

On 2 March 2022, and consistent with other jurisdictions, the 4 entities referred to in the Department of Foreign Affairs and Trade announcement on 25 February 2022, together with other key Russian entities, such as the Central Bank of Russia, were designated for targeted financial sanctions after being added to the Sanctions List.

The entities that were designated were:

- Cetelem Bank
- Russian Agency for Export Credit and Investment (EXIAR)
- Otkritie Bank
- Russian Direct Investment Fund (RDIF)
- Management Company of the Russian Direct Investment Fund
- RVC Management Company

⁶ Autonomous Sanctions Amendment (Ukraine Regions) Regulations 2022.

- Central Bank of the Russian Federation

This marked a change to the approach previously announced by the Australian Government on 25 February 2022 to specify Cetelem Bank, EXIAR, Otkritie Bank and RDIF for investment restrictions. The Australian Sanctions Office explained the change in approach by saying that targeted financial sanctions impose broader restrictions than investment restrictions and confirmed that the Australian Government will no longer proceed to specify the four entities for investment restrictions.

Investment restrictions however remain in force against the institutions already identified in the Autonomous Sanctions (Russia, Crimea and Sevastopol) Specification 2015 which include:

- Sberbank
- VTB Bank
- Gazprombank
- Vnesheconombank (VEB)
- Rosselkhozbank
- OPK Oboronprom
- United Aircraft Corporation
- Uralvagonzavod
- Rosneft
- Transneft
- Gazprom Neft

From 7 March 2022, further individuals and entities were added to the Sanctions List and are now subject to targeted financial sanctions and travel bans.⁷ The Sanctions List was expanded to include another 16 individuals, including senior naval and other armed forces personnel, senior politicians and certain identified propagandists. The Armed Forces of the Russian Federation is now also included on the Sanctions List.

From 25 April 2022, Australia will prohibit the import of oil, refined petroleum products, natural gas, coal and other energy products from Russia, pursuant to the Autonomous Sanctions (Import Sanctioned Goods—Russia) Designation 2022 registered on 11 March 2022. The 45 days' notice period before the ban comes into effect is intended to facilitate the compliance of Australian businesses who have existing contracts for the import of these goods. As a result of the designation of these goods, it will also be prohibited pursuant to the Autonomous Sanctions Regulations to provide financial assistance or a financial service if it assists with, or is provided in relation to, their import.

On 13 March 2022, the Australian Government made further updates to the Sanctions List to extend targeted financial sanctions and travel bans to an additional 33 persons.⁸ The new additions include Russian oligarchs and executives of various entities (some of which had been previously designated by the Government) such as energy companies, financial institutions and state-owned defence entities. Also included were family members of individuals already identified on the Sanctions List, including the immediate relations of senior politicians and other individuals of strategic significance to Russia due to their amassed personal wealth and links to President Putin.

On 17 March 2022, the Sanctions List was further updated (effective 18 March 2022) to include 2 additional oligarchs with links to business interests in Australia who are the subject of targeted financial sanctions and travel bans.⁹ The oligarchs – Viktor Veksleberg and Oleg Deripaska – were already the subject of sanctions in other jurisdictions. Eleven entities (including financial institutions, the Russian National Wealth Fund and the Ministry of Finance of the Russian Federation) were also designated for targeted financial sanctions as part of the update.¹⁰ Five of the banks included in this latest update were already specified under the Autonomous Sanctions (Russia, Crimea and Sevastopol) Specification 2015 with the effect that these particular entities will continue to be subject to investment restrictions (provided for by the Specification) over and above the new targeted financial sanctions.

Taking effect from 20 March 2022, the Australian Government has imposed a ban on Australian exports of alumina, aluminium ores (including bauxite) and related products to (or for the benefit of) Russia.¹¹ The designation of these products as export sanctioned goods is intended to limit Russia's capability to produce aluminium as Russia relies on Australia for almost 20% of its alumina needs. The Department of Foreign Affairs and Trade noted that the designated goods are key components in the manufacture and development of weapons. The Minister for Foreign Affairs announced that the Government will work with exporting entities impacted by the ban.

On 24 March 2022, further updates were made to the Sanctions List, which took effect from 25 March 2022.¹² Targeted financial sanctions and travel bans were imposed on 45 additional individuals including Belarusian President Alexander Lucashenko and members of his family, as well as senior Belarusian armed forces personnel and bureaucrats of Belarus and Russia as a result of Belarus' strategic significance to Russia. This tranche of designations also extends targeted financial sanctions to various individuals identified as Russian propagandists and disinformation operatives such as senior editors from organisations including Russia Today, the Strategic Culture Foundation, InfoRos and NewsFront.

On 5 April 2022, the Australian Government announced further export sanctions to commence on 7 April 2022 with a view to target President Putin's 'wealthy enablers.' From this date, the supply, sale or transfer of certain luxury goods directly or indirectly to, for use in, or for the benefit of Russia will be prohibited.¹³ The designated luxury goods include consumables such as wine, tobacco and certain delicacy foods, high-value cosmetics, fabrics, garments, jewellery, homewares and luxury vehicles (and their parts), as well as various leisure items such as sporting goods and pure-bred horses. The ban follows the existing sanctions of the same nature imposed by the European Union and the United States, as well as those anticipated by Japan and the United Kingdom.

These expanded export sanctions shortly follow the Australian Government's non-sanctions economic measure relating to import tariffs. Effective 25 April 2022, Australia will revoke Russia and Belarus' entitlement to the Most-Favoured Nation (MFN) tariff status with the effect that all imports from Russia and Belarus will be subject to a further tariff of 35% (in addition to the general duty rates currently in force).

On 7 April 2022, a further 67 persons were added to the Sanctions List for targeted financial sanctions and travel bans (taking effect 8 April 2022).¹⁴ Included in this round of designations are Russian military official Colonel-General Mikhail Mizintsev, Deputy Prime Minister Dmitry Grigorenko and other senior Russian government officials reportedly involved in war crimes, and members of the Ukrainian Parliament working to undermine the Ukrainian Government. The additions also include executive and non-executive officers across a range of entities and sectors such as financial institutions, investment companies and entities in the energy and resources, agriculture, transportation and manufacturing industries. Some of the entities themselves have previously been designated under separate instruments, and the new designations also include family members of already-sanctioned individuals.

On 14 April 2022, the Australian Government added 14 further entities considered of economic and strategic importance to Russia to the Sanctions List.¹⁵ As a result, targeted financial sanctions have been imposed on Russian state-owned enterprises including defence-related entities (such as shipping and transportation), a major railway corporation, as well as companies across electronics production, energy (including oil and hydroelectricity), digital services, mining and insurance industries. These additions include Transneft and Gazprom, entities which were already specified under the Autonomous Sanctions (Russia, Crimea and Sevastopol) Specification 2015 and which will continue to be subject to the existing sanctioned commercial activity restrictions provided for by the Specification.

On 21 April 2022, a further 147 persons were added to the Sanctions List for targeted financial sanctions and travel bans, effective 22 April 2022.¹⁶ The designations comprise of Russian Senators of the Federation Council of the Federal Assembly who approved the Russian Government's recognition of the Donetsk People's Republic and Luhansk People's Republic in violation of Ukrainian sovereignty. Two daughters of President Putin and a daughter of Russian Foreign Minister Sergei Lavrov have also been designated as part of the update.

As of 4 May 2022, a further 110 individuals were added to the Sanctions List.¹⁷ Targeted financial sanctions and travel bans have been placed on Ukrainian separatists in leadership roles who have asserted governmental authority over areas of Ukraine, as well as Russian members of parliament who voted in favour of Russia's recognition of the so-called Donetsk People's Republic and Luhansk People's Republic. Oleg Matveichev, a Member of the State Duma of the Federal Assembly of the Russian Federation, has also been included in this round of designations which the Australian Government had indicated is due to his propaganda and disinformation activities relating to the invasion of Ukraine.

On 17 May 2022, a total of 15 individuals and 15 entities were added to the Sanctions List (taking effect 18 May 2022).¹⁸ The designations include senior officials of the Russian Government, active participants in the Russian Government's disinformation and propaganda efforts as well as other persons deemed to be of economic or strategic significance to Russia. For example, among the designations are two Belarusian defence enterprises equipping the Armed Forces of Belarus, as well as the private military company known as Wagner supporting Russian-backed separatists in the so-called People's Republics of Donetsk and Luhansk.

In addition to autonomous sanctions measures, on 17 May 2022 Australia's Foreign Minister also listed ultra-nationalist terror group, the Russian Imperial Movement, under the counter-terrorism sanctions regime.¹⁹ Pursuant to the Charter of the United Nations (Dealing with Assets) Regulations 2008 and UNSC Resolution 1373 (2001), the Russian Imperial Movement is now subject to targeted financial sanctions as a result of its involvement in the Ukraine-Russia conflict.

On 30 June 2022, an additional 16 individuals were added to the Sanctions List for targeted financial sanctions and travel bans (effective 1 July 2022).²⁰ The new listings include relatives of President Putin as well as senior personnel of financial institutions, private media companies, defence contractors and entities in the gas, insurance, real estate and private equity industries deemed to have engaged in activities and functions of economic or strategic significance to Russia. Various Ministers of the Russian Government have also been added.

On 4 July 2022, the Prime Minister's office issued a media release stating that Australia would prohibit imports of Russian gold, aligning measures adopted by Australia with similar actions taken by other jurisdictions, including Canada, Japan, the United Kingdom and United States. An exposure draft for the legislative instrument which, once in force, would designate gold under the Autonomous Sanctions Regulations, was released on 15 August 2022 and was subject to a period of public consultation which closed on 29 August 2022. In line with the exposure draft, on 29 September 2022 the Autonomous Sanctions (Import Sanctioned Goods — Russia) Designation 2022 was amended to prohibit imports of Russian "[g]old (including gold plated with platinum) in unwrought or in semimanufactured forms, or in powder form" exported after the effective date of the instrument, being 30 September

In her media release announcing the new listings, the Minister for Foreign Affairs referred to Russia's recent annexation of the Ukrainian regions of Luhansk, Donetsk, Kherson and Zaporizhzhia.

SANCTIONS BY UKRAINE

Financial Sanctions

Starting from 24 February 2022, the National Bank of Ukraine:

- prohibited Ukrainian banks to process any transactions in Russian rubles and Belarusian rubles;
- prohibited Ukrainian banks to process any transactions (1) which involve a person which is registered in or resides in the Russian Federation or the Republic of Belarus; (2) which result in the performance of obligations due to such person; or (3) which involve payments at the instruction of Ukrainian companies whose ultimate beneficial owners are residents of the Russian Federation or the Republic of Belarus, except for, in all cases, payment in Ukraine of taxes, salaries, and certain other exceptions;
- cancelled the banking licence and ordered for liquidation of JSC "International Reserve Bank" (controlled by Sberbank of Russia) and JSC "Prominvestbank" (controlled by Russian State Development Corporation "WEB.RF"); and
- prohibited money transfers from the Russian Federation and the Republic of Belarus to Ukraine and usage of any debit and credit cards issued by Russian or Belarusian banks on the territory of Ukraine.

Assets Confiscation

Two confiscation routes are currently in place in Ukraine:

Law No. 2116-IX provides for confiscation of:

- any immovable and movable assets, money, funds on bank accounts, securities, shares and other corporate rights as well as any other assets located or registered on the territory of Ukraine,

which are owned by

- any legal entity which is directly or indirectly owned or controlled by the Russian Federation, or if Russian Federation is directly or indirectly a founder, shareholder, participant or otherwise owns corporate rights with respect to such entity.

The confiscation under Law No. 2116-IX is done on the basis of the decision of Security Counsel of Ukraine which should be approved by the President's decree and by the resolution of the Parliament of Ukraine. The Law has been already used in practice for confiscation of all shares and financial assets of JSC "International Reserve Bank" (controlled by Sberbank of Russia) and JSC "Prominvestbank" (controlled by Russian State Development Corporation "WEB.RF").

Another route is confiscation on the basis of Law No. 7194. It allows for the confiscation of:

- any immovable and movable assets, money, funds on bank accounts, securities, shares and other corporate rights as well as any other assets

located or registered on the territory of Ukraine or subject to Ukraine's jurisdiction,

which are owned by

- any persons and companies (notwithstanding their citizenship or jurisdiction of incorporation) which (i) significantly endanger national security, sovereignty and territorial integrity of Ukraine; or (ii) which facilitate or finance actions referred to in (i).

The confiscation under Law No. 7194 is done in two stages. Firstly, the relevant assets should be blocked by the Security Counsel of Ukraine, which decision should be approved by the President's decree. After this, the Ministry of Justice of Ukraine should apply to the Higher Anticorruption Court of Ukraine with a confiscation request, which the Court considers within 10 days and renders a decision as to whether there are sufficient grounds to confiscate the assets. The appeal on the Court's decision is possible, but after the Appeal Chamber considers it, the decision becomes final. The Law has already been used in practice. Recently, the Higher Anticorruption Court of Ukraine confiscated various assets (land plots, buildings, shares in Ukrainian companies) of a Russian businessmen Vladimir Yevtushenkov. The Government of Ukraine also publicly reports on their plans to confiscate a large number of assets owned by the Russian Federation or Russian businessmen close to Russian government.

Currency Controls

Foreign companies dealing with Ukrainian counterparties should be aware that as of 24 February 2022, the National Bank of Ukraine (NBU) has applied various limitations to cross-border payments by Ukrainian persons in order to limit the outflow of funds from Ukraine. The limitations list is being updated by the NBU often in order to adjust to the current economy needs. Please contract us to get details as to whether a specific transaction with a Ukrainian counterparty may be subject to currency control limitations.

Relevant transactions

The following transactions are subject to prior approval:

- transactions between Russian residents, on one side, and foreign legal entities or individuals from "unfriendly" countries, on the other side, involving the acquisition of any securities (thus covering transactions with shares in Russian joint-stock companies) or real estate assets, or the provision of loans or credit facilities to such foreign legal entities or individuals;
- currency operations in connection with loans in foreign currency provided by Russian residents to non-residents;
- transfers of funds by Russian residents to their accounts in foreign banks as well as through foreign payment systems;
- transactions as described above between Russian residents, on one side, and foreign legal entities or individuals from countries other than "unfriendly" countries, on the other side, where the securities or real estate assets in question were acquired from legal entities or individuals from "unfriendly" countries after 22 February 2022. This is essentially an anti-abuse provision designed to prevent parties from "unfriendly" jurisdictions from circumventing the prior approval requirement by transferring their securities or real estate assets to counterparties that are not located in "unfriendly" jurisdictions.

Importantly, foreign-to-foreign transactions without the involvement of Russian residents do not fall under the above rules.²⁴

Several exemptions from the FDI approval requirement were introduced in May-September 2022, including with respect to:

- foreign entities controlled since before 1 March 2022 by entities or individuals from jurisdictions other than "unfriendly" jurisdictions;
- acquisitions of additional shares in a Russian entity which result in a stake of up to 25% being held by foreign entities or individuals associated with "unfriendly" jurisdictions;
- sale of real estate by non-residents from "unfriendly" countries (or entities controlled by them and registered outside Russia) to Russian residents, where the respective payments are made to a special "Type C" account;

²³ The description of the Russian countermeasures is provided as of 15 October 2022.

²⁴ A broader approach that also covers foreign-to-foreign transactions, was introduced in September 2022 when the FDI clearance regime under Regulation 295 was expanded to include transfers of stakes in Russian LLCs. This new framework is summarised in a separate section below.

- real estate transactions between individuals and pre-construction property transactions; and
- acquisition of real estate from Russian residents by entities from "unfriendly" countries (or entities controlled by them, whether the latter are registered in or outside Russia).

Procedure and timeline

As opposed to an ordinary Russian FDI submission, which is filed with the Russian competition authority (the Federal Antimonopoly Service, or "FAS"), submissions under Regulation 295 are filed with the Russian Ministry of Finance ("MinFin"). Under Regulation 295, the competent authority that reviews each transaction is a special sub-commission of the Russian Government Commission on Monitoring Foreign Investment (the "Sub-commission"). This Sub-commission is comprised of an official from MinFin (who chairs the Sub-commission), as well as officials from the Russian Presidential Administration, the Ministry of Economic Development and the Central Bank of Russia ("CBR").

The scope of the filing is rather limited compared to an ordinary FDI submission. Decisions of the Sub-commission are taken unanimously. Approval can be made contingent upon the satisfaction of certain conditions. Similar to an ordinary FDI submission, submissions under Regulation 295 are also subject to a confidentiality regime. The Sub-commission can also issue approvals authorising all legal entities or individuals to perform a particular type of transaction.

Regulation 295 does not stipulate any time limit for the review of transactions and for an approval decision to be taken or not. However, in practice the review process generally tends to take about 2 to 3 months.

September 2022 - Additional clearance requirements created for the transfer of stakes in Russian limited liability companies

Russia has significantly expanded the regulatory clearance requirements for transfers of stakes in Russian LLCs. It had been expected for some time that there would be increased government scrutiny of exits by Western entities from local LLCs, but the scope of application of the new requirements is much broader than expected.

On 8 September 2022, the Russian President adopted Decree No. 618 ("Decree 618"), which stipulates that transactions involving the transfer of any stake in an LLC, whether direct or indirect, are subject to prior clearance by the Sub-commission under Regulation 295 (see the section "Procedure and timeline" above).

Decree 618 marks a pivotal change in the Russian counter-sanctions regime, which previously did not cover most transactions involving Russian LLCs, save for certain companies in the oil and gas, energy and banking sectors, which are regulated separately under Decree 520 (see below).

Notably, the scope of application of Decree 618 is not limited to transactions between Russian residents and "unfriendly" foreign parties; it also applies to foreign-to-foreign transactions that do not involve of a Russian resident, specifically where the transaction in question involves one or more "unfriendly" foreign parties and affects a Russian LLC. This differs from the analogous regime applicable to shares in Russian joint-stock companies, which was introduced back in March 2022 (see the section "Foreign direct investment review of transactions between Russian residents and undertakings from "unfriendly" countries" above) and only covers acquisitions by Russian residents from "unfriendly" foreign entities. Decree 618 also extends to the transfer of minority stakes, as the filing requirement is not linked to any minimum threshold for the stakes transferred.

The procedure for obtaining clearance under Decree 618 is the same as had been enacted earlier for clearances under Decree 81 and Regulation No. 295²⁵ (see above). Importantly, no statutory timelines are established for the procedure. As of today, the review process takes approximately 2 to 3 months, but this period is expected to become longer, given the large number of new filings under Decree 618. There are no statutory grounds based on which clearance can be denied. In other words, the Sub-commission enjoys broad discretion in terms of refusals and, more importantly, with respect to conditional clearances.

Russian LLCs operating in the banking sector (including banks and non-banking financial institutions) are exempt from the scope of Decree 618 but may be subject to clearance under Presidential Decree No. 520 of 5 August 2022 ("Decree 520"). Decree 520 introduced a temporary ban until 31 December 2022 on transactions involving stakes in JSCs or LLCs owned by shareholders from "unfriendly" jurisdictions. A finalised list of banks affected by Decree 520 has not been officially announced, but a relatively broad draft list was prepared in September 2022.

Decree regulating the performance of Russian obligors' obligations to certain categories of creditors, and "Type C" accounts

Decree 95

On 5 March 2022, the Russian President issued Decree No. 95 ("Decree 95"), introducing a temporary regime for the performance by Russian resident obligors of their obligations under credit facilities, loans and financial instruments.

This regime was subsequently extended in May 2022 to additionally apply to:

- performance of obligations under independent guarantees and sureties securing obligations under credit facilities, loans and financial instruments; and
- payment of dividends by limited liability companies, etc.

The regime envisaged by Decree 95 applies to payments exceeding the equivalent of RUB 10 million per month.

If a Russian obligor has an obligation to a foreign creditor from a jurisdiction that takes "unfriendly" actions against Russia (a "creditor from an "unfriendly" jurisdiction"), the Russian obligor can open a special "Type C" account with a Russian bank in the name of the creditor from an "unfriendly" jurisdiction. The currency of the Type C account must be Russian roubles.

The CBR (for Russian obligors that are financial institutions) and MinFin (for other obligors) are authorised to set out an alternative framework for the performance of obligations. Until the relevant special regimes are introduced, the CBR and MinFin have the power to grant permission to Russian obligors on a case-by-case basis to perform their obligations in deviation from the regime prescribed by Decree 95.

²⁵ Regulation No. 295 was amended on 20 September 2022 with a view to applying it in the context of the new Decree 618.

CBR revises the Type C account regime

On 24 June 2022, the Board of Directors of the CBR revised the regime established in Decree 95 for special Type C accounts.

The new regulation envisages Type C accounts for residents. Essentially, such accounts are used if a foreign creditor assigns its claim against a resident debtor to a resident entity. The types of debits that can be made from residents' Type C accounts are limited.

The types of account that may be opened for non-residents have not substantially changed since the earlier version of the CBR regulation dated 18 March 2022.

That said, changes have been made to the exhaustive list of permitted credits to, and permitted debits from, Type C accounts – please see Appendix 1.

October 2022 - Public prosecutors granted authority to challenge transactions that violate Russian countermeasures

Amendments to the Russian procedural legislation will come into force on 18 October 2022, which will significantly expand the powers of public prosecutors. Prosecutors will be authorised to file court claims for invalidation of transactions made in violation of countermeasures that were introduced in response to Western sanctions or to protect the Russian economy. For example, this will enable prosecutors to seek invalidation of transactions implemented without necessary clearance under Decree 618 (see above).

Prosecutors will also be enabled to join any civil court proceedings should they have reasons to believe that the underlying dispute aims to circumvent countermeasures or other relevant statutory regimes.

October 2022 – Clearance requirements expanded further

On 15 October 2022, two new presidential decrees, No. 737 and No. 738, were enacted ("Decrees 737 and 738"), which further expand the list of transactions to which an "unfriendly" entity is a party which require the prior approval of the Russian Government FDI Commission.

Under Decrees 737 and 738, the following types of transactions are now also subject to the Russian FDI regime:

1. Transactions that lead to direct or indirect acquisition, alteration or disposal of rights to more than 1% of the shares and/or voting rights in Russian financial organisations (banks, pension funds, insurance companies, investment funds etc.), with the exception of transactions that are subject to special approval by the Decree 520 (which contains a list of financial institutions, transactions with the shares of which are subject to such approval; to date, however, the list has not been formally put into effect). Given the wording of Decrees 737 and 738, this restriction seems to also apply to foreign-to-foreign transactions.
2. Transactions that lead to direct or indirect acquisition, alteration or disposal of rights to shares, corporate rights or rights to determine the business activity of Russian JSCs. A similar regime was introduced earlier by decree 618 with respect to Russian LLCs. This means that now any transactions, including foreign-to-foreign, which have a Russian JSC in their scope require prior approval by the Russian Government FDI Commission.

Decrees 737 and 738 also stipulate that any payments made to "unfriendly" entities in the framework of decreasing the charter capital or the bankruptcy or liquidation of Russian entities must be made through the highly restrictive Type C accounts, which effectively means that such payments will be frozen unless special permission is granted by either the CBR (for financial organisations) or MinFin (for all other companies).

In addition, Decrees 737 and 738 envisage significant carve-outs from some of the FDI clearances for transactions with the following organisations:

- Asian Infrastructure Investment Bank (AIIB), a leading Chinese development bank;
- International Bank for Economic Co-operation (IBEC), which was founded by the USSR and other former and present socialist countries in Europe and Asia, and in which Russia has a majority stake;
- International Investment Bank (IIB), an international development organisation very similar to the IBEC, described above;
- New Development Bank (NDB), an international development bank, the members of which are the BRICS countries; and
- Russian-Kyrgyz Development Fund, a development fund aimed at fostering economic cooperation between Russia and Kyrgyzstan.

November 2022 – All British Overseas Territories added to the list of "unfriendly" jurisdictions

The FDI clearance requirements and Type C account regime described above apply to residents and undertakings from so-called "unfriendly" jurisdictions on a special list.

Introduced in March 2022 to include countries that at the time had announced economic sanctions against Russia, the list of "unfriendly" jurisdictions has since been amended twice:

- In July 2022, the Bahamas was added to the list, and the sub-list of UK Crown Dependencies and British Overseas Territories covered was also revised to include the Crown Dependencies of Guernsey and the Isle of Man (in addition to Jersey (Crown Dependency) and the British Overseas Territories of Anguilla, the British Virgin Islands and Gibraltar).
- As of 31 October 2022, a catch-all wording was added in relation to the UK, from which it follows that all Crown Dependencies and all British Overseas Territories are now considered "unfriendly" jurisdictions.

These new sanctions and export controls are complex, multilateral, and in some cases extraterritorial and incrementally changing in real time in response to the situation on the ground in Ukraine. We will endeavour to keep our briefings up to date. It is essential that companies and individuals react quickly to assessing their risk of exposure to these new sanctions and export controls, to understand the application and duration of the licences, and to be mindful that while apparently coordinated, there is not complete overlap or prohibitions across the various sanctions programs, applicability and jurisdiction.
